U. N. Asked To Penalize Israel State By Sanctions

Economic Pressure Proposal by Britain And China Is Said To Have U.S. Backing

Paris, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—The United Nations Security Council today poised the threat of economic sanctions over the new state of Israel as it defied a U. N. order to give up newly conquered positions in south Palestine.

With the support of the United States, Britain and China urged the Council to order Israel to give up the positions or face economic punishment.

A majority of the Council indicated it would support the Britain-China resolution when it comes up for a vote, probably Friday. It appeared that only a Soviet veto could prevent its adoption, but no veto was expected.

Diplomatic and economic sanctions would be the stiffest action the council could take as all sources agree the Big Five would never agree on military action to enforce any U. N. decision.

Canada, Belgium and France today announced support of the resolution. An unimpeachable source said the United States State Department had directed the American delegation to vote for the British-Chinese proposal but no one here knew whether President Truman had been consulted.

Russia's Yakov Malik asked for a two-day delay but lost in a tie vote. Then delegates agreed unanimously to adjourn until 10:30 a.m. (4:30 a.m. EST) Friday, when a vote is expected.

With seven members of the Council privately or publicly committed to the measure, it was assured of passage unless Malik uses his veto—a measure Russia has not resorted to in Palestine matters.

Israeli Troops Advance Unopposed in Negev

Tel Aviv, Israel, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Israel's troops made new unopposed advances at Egypt's expense in southern Palestine today, and the Israeli Prime Minister declared "We will never retreat" to truce-line positions.

Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion made his statement to the state council as Jewish army headquarters said Israel troops today occupied Isdud and nearby villages 20 miles south of Tel Aviv when the Egyptians withdrew.

Yesterday Israel rejected Mediator Ralph Bunche's orders to withdraw to positions occupied on October 14 when Israel's offensive against Egypt in the Negev desert started. Israel said the Security Council's cease-fire proposed negotiations for a withdrawal but did not actually order a withdrawal. Today Ben-Gurion went further.

"We will never retreat to positions held on October 14, before fighting in the south started," he said.

He strongly attacked the truce, saying it "leads to nowhere, in any case not to peace."

The Israeli victory in the south, he declared, was "a great debacle for United Nations endeavors in Palestine, for the Egyptians, for the whole Arab League and also for the puppet (Arab) Gaza government."

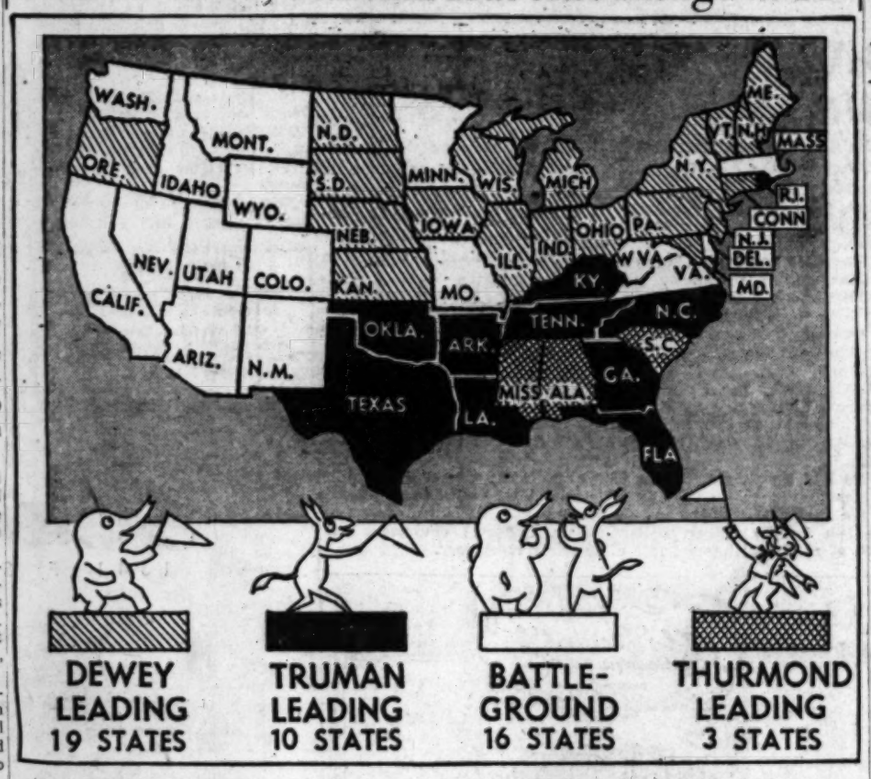
Haifa dispatches said U. N. observers reported outbreaks of hostilities in central Palestine, around Jenin, Kfar Assim and Kousiya, with fighting still in progress tonight. The observers gave no details.

In Haifa two teen-age girls went on trial before a secret Israeli military court charged with membership in the outlawed Stern group.

The trial is viewed as a test of the Israeli government's action outlawing the group after the assassination of the United Nations mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte.

The Gallup Poll: Semi-Final Roundup

Dewey Holds Wide Margin in 19 States, Smaller in 12; Truman Has Advantage in 14



Governor Dewey holds substantial leads in 19 States in the Gallup Poll's semifinal roundup of political sentiment, President Truman in 10 States and Governor Thurmond in 3. Sixteen States comprise the "battleground" areas of 1948, and Dewey leads in 12 of these and Truman in four.

Truman Dares Dewey to Tell What He's For

Big Business Control Of GOP Alleged In New York Speech

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

New York, Oct. 28.—President Truman tonight stood on his Republican opponent's front doorstep and dared him to come out and fight.

Before a wildly cheering crowd in Madison Square Garden, the President repeated his charges of Republican mismanagement and control of big business and challenged Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to answer them in detail.

He taunted his Republican opponent with following so closely behind his current speaking tour and called Governor Dewey his "shadow."

"The Republican candidate," Mr. Truman said, "can follow me to ever city, town and village in the country. But so long as he is afraid to tell where he stands on the issues, he will lose more votes than he gains.

"A Democratic victory is on the way and he is doing all he can to help us win it."

For the first time during the campaign Mr. Truman mentioned his opponent by name while addressing a Democratic gathering in City Hall Park in New York just after arriving here. He quoted Governor Dewey as saying civil service employes were "mediocre for the most part."

"That," he said "is what Dewey says."

The President was greeted in New York by tremendous but curiously unresponsive crowds. Police said one and a half million people lined his route down Broadway to City Hall and back along Second ave., and heard him make three brief addresses. The total number greeting the President of his two days here was put at 2,100,000. The crowds were there, but they gave him little applause and almost no cheering.

Introduced to a rally of CIO Amalgamated Clothing Workers in Union Square, by Jacob Potofsky, their president, Mr. Truman said:

"We're going to lick them just as sure as you're standing there. I don't care how much money the Republicans have.

Referring to 1944 campaign charges that he and the late President Roosevelt "cleared everything with Sidney Hillman," late clothing workers president, Mr. Truman said:

"We didn't have to clear any-

Governor's Electoral Vote Would Be 363, President's 140

(This is the second of two articles presenting the Gallup Poll's semifinal roundup of political sentiment in each of the 48 States. The first reported on the New England, Middle Atlantic and Midwest sections, while today's article covers the West and South and gives the picture for the entire Nation.)

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 28.—The Institute's second Nation-wide State-by-State survey shows Governor Thomas E. Dewey holding a marked advantage in popular votes in 19 States and leading by smaller margins in 12 others.

President Truman today enjoys a substantial lead in 10 States and has a smaller advantage in four of the 16 "battleground States of 1948."

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond holds long leads in three of the Southern States.

[The electoral vote, based on this survey, would be Dewey 363, Truman 140, Thurmond 28, Wallace 0. Editor's note.]

All voters who have not yet made up their minds on a choice for President have been eliminated from consideration in this semi-final analysis of political sentiment throughout the Nation.

These figures for the most part represent voter opinion up to the middle of October and are not the Institute's final figures on presidential standings. The final standings will be reported next Monday and will be based on surveys of voters across the country which were being conducted during the last days of the campaign.

Since the first State-by-State summary was reported two weeks ago, five States have moved into the "battle ground" category, where neither candidate has a lead of more than 8 percentage points over his rivals. Delaware, Colorado and Wyoming are now in that marginal position whereas they previously gave Dewey an advantage of more than 8 percentage points. Missouri and New Mexico in the earlier report showed substantial leads for Truman, whereas today the gap has been narrowed somewhat in both States.

Connecticut, Maryland and Florida have moved out of the battleground column, the first two giving good leads today to Dewey and Florida swinging over to Truman.

As compared with the earlier

Dewey Offers Own Social Security Plan

Higher Pay Minimum And Wider Benefits Proposed in Speech

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Boston, Mass., Oct. 28.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey tonight had bad news for the Eightieth Congress and its soon-to-be-chosen successor.

He proposed here what amounted to a GOP "New Deal" in social security.

More than that, he predicted the Eighty-first Congress will take it and like it.

The Republican Eightieth Congress not only had profound distaste for a similar program presented by President Truman—it bypassed it altogether.

The Republican nominee, who has been all out for economy and even some tax revision, laid down social security proposals almost as ambitious as the President's own. But in delivering his speech, Dewey ad libbed a line saying the program "lays practically no further financial burden on the country."

In addition to increased benefits, a higher minimum wage and improved veterans' welfare, he called for extension of liberalized security payments to Government employes, farm workers, household domestics, professional people and self-employed small businessmen.

A street crush of 200,000, by far the largest turnout for Governor Dewey during his six-week campaign, cheered his circuitous parade from Boston's South Station to the Statler Hotel . . . Spaghetti-like strings of ticker tape showered down from the tall buildings.

But this Democratic town put on an even bigger, 250,000 strong.

Stalin Charges West Violated Berlin Accords as Step to War; U.S. Denies Compacts Existed

(From Press Dispatches)

Paris, Oct. 28.—The United States tonight denied formally and completely the statement of Premier Josef Stalin that America and Britain repudiated an agreed solution of the Berlin crisis during negotiations here.

The denial was made by Philip C. Jessup, American delegate on the United Nations Security Council.

It was learned the American delegation, led by Secretary of State George C. Marshall, especially resented Stalin's implication of a split between the United States and Britain on one side and France on the other in the Berlin crisis. Stalin, though he criticized France, absolved it of blame in the alleged repudiation of bases of agreement.

'Familiar Reiteration'

Jessup referred specifically to Stalin's statement that a basis of agreement was reached in private talks here.

"If Stalin's reference to an agreed solution which subsequently was repudiated refers to any resolution agreed to by the three Western powers and six neutrals, no such agreement ever existed," Jessup said. "Therefore there was no question of any violation.

"Most of what Stalin said is a familiar reiteration of the various arguments Russia has been making here. They have been fully answered.

"I think that everyone will regard as unfortunate, to say the least, Stalin's disparagement of the sincere efforts of the six neutral members of the Security Council.

"They made a sincere effort to arrive at a fair solution."

Stalin Kills Optimism

Stalin's statement killed what wary optimism existed in United Nations circles that a peaceful solution of the Berlin problem is still possible in the near future.

Delegates were amazed by errors of facts which are said to form the basis of the Soviet leader's argument. Concern was caused by the unusually belligerent words employed by Stalin.

These mistakes were noted in Stalin's answers:

1. He refers to the Moscow directive of August 30 as an "agreement" which was "violated" by the Western powers. The text of the document, however, says the validity of the directive was "subject to agreement being reached among the four military governors in Berlin for their practical implementation." No understanding was reached in Berlin by the fixed September 7 deadline, so the directive became inoperative.

2. He says that another agreement was reached recently in Paris and that "representatives of the United States and Great Britain" later declared this agreement was nonexistent. Any such understanding is news to the non-Soviet members of the Security Council. The only possible explanation is that at one point Soviet Delegate Andrei Vishinsky was confused by

Russian Complaints Reveal Increasing Interest in Japan

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

Quickened Soviet interest in Japan was shown yesterday when Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin made new complaints against the American authorities there and drew new denials from the State Department.

The Ambassador issued a statement saying he had asked the 11-nation Far Eastern Commission in Washington to find out what took place at a "secret military conference" in Tokyo this month.

According to his statement, issued after a closed meeting of the commission yesterday, the Ambassador demanded official confirmation of an Associated Press report on October 15. This report said Gen. Douglas MacArthur had met with Lieut. Gen. Nathan F. Twining, commanding the Alaska defenses, and Vice Admiral John L. McCrea, deputy commander of the Pacific Fleet, to discuss "practical precautions against the possibility of another surprise attack," and also "cooperation and coordination" of the American fighting services.

"It is known to everyone that nobody threatens Japan," Panyushkin said. He also cited the same report as saying that the former Japanese naval base at Yokosuka "is being converted into a modern naval base capable of serving large naval forces."

This, the Ambassador said, would be contrary to the Cairo and Potsdam inter-allied agreements and to decisions of the Far Eastern Commission itself.

As to the "secret military conference," a State Department spokesman said that "General MacArthur, as a top United States commander, holds conferences in Tokyo with high United States military officials from time to time," and that "these are purely routine matters of sole concern to this Government."

As for the Yokosuka base, the State Department "categorically" denied the charge.

"This base has been used from the beginning of the occupation by United States naval forces supporting the Supreme Commander for the Allied Powers in carrying out the objectives of the occupation, which it is both necessary and proper for them to do," the State Department said. "Accordingly, the implications that the Far Eastern Commission's decision on

6 Neutral Nations Accused of Giving Support to Policy Of 'Aggression'

By Eddy Gilmore

Moscow, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Stalin charged today the Western powers have backed out of two agreements on Berlin because they are pursuing a policy of "unleashing a new war."

In six sharp answers to questions by a reporter of Pravda, Communist Party newspaper, Stalin also charged the six neutrals on the U. N. Security Council who have been seeking a Berlin solution were "lending their support to a policy of aggression."

But he declared any instigators of a new war are doomed to "ignominious failure" because "the horrors of the recent war are still too fresh in the memories of peoples, and the public forces favoring peace are too strong."

Statements Broadcast

The Russian leader's statements were distributed to foreign correspondents here by the foreign ministry's press department too late for today's edition of Pravda, but were broadcast on the Moscow radio and will be printed Friday.

Stalin said the two agreements on Berlin were reached in Moscow on August 30 and in Paris during recent unofficial discussions with Argentine Foreign Minister Juan Bramuglia of the Security Council.

Both, he said, were disavowed and declared null and void by the governments of Britain and the United States.

Observers here believed Stalin was trying to implant the impression that agreement on the Berlin question and East-West cooperation are possible. It was believed he would like to see new talks on Berlin initiated, although he did not say so.

Stalin said he regarded the Berlin case as a "display of the aggressiveness of the policy of Anglo-American and French ruling circles."

Text of Interview

The text of the Stalin interview:

Q. How do you regard the results of the discussions in the Security Council on the question of the situation in Berlin and the conduct of the Anglo-American and French representatives in this matter?

A. I regard them as a display of the aggressiveness of the policy of Anglo-American and French ruling circles.

Q. Is it true that in August of this year agreement had already been reached among the four powers on the question of Berlin?

A. Yes, that is true. Agreement is known to have been reached in Moscow on August 30, last, among the representatives of the U. S. S. R., United States of America, Great Britain and France regarding the simultaneous implementation of measures for the lifting of transport restrictions (the blockade) on the one hand and for the introduction of the Russian mark of the Soviet zone in Berlin as the sole currency on the other hand. That agreement does not hurt anyone's prestige. It takes into account the interests of the parties concerned and insures the possibility of further cooperation. But the governments of the United States of America and Great Britain disavowed their representatives in Moscow and declared the agreement to be null and void, i. e., they violated the agreement, having decided to refer the question to the Security Council, where the

AMG Spokesman Reaffirms Policy as Reds Hint Departure

Berlin, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—Armed forces of the United States, "backed by all America's great productive power and new secret weapons," will stay in Germany until a new German state is firmly established and western Europe is strong enough to defend itself, an American spokesman said tonight.

The statement was made by an unidentified commentator, referred to as an official spokesman for the United States Military Government, on a regularly scheduled Thursday night broadcast over American radio stations in Berlin, Frankfurt, Stuttgart, Munich and Bremen.

The commentator said American policy in Germany was designed to aid Germany "in the life and death struggle with the ruthless architects of the Communist system" and that the "Allied stand in Berlin has completely upset the Politbureau's plans."

Withdrawal Suggestion By Briton 'His Own Idea'

London, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—A British Foreign Office spokesman in London said today that Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British military governor, was speaking for himself when he suggested withdrawal of occupation troops from Germany "may well be the only means" of solving East-West difficulties.

Robertson said yesterday that before such a solution was adopted it would be necessary to be sure the peace of Europe would not be endangered, and the Germans would be "free really to run their own affairs."

The London spokesman said "there is a long way to go" before Britain would consider such a step, and certainly not "until such time as the blockade (of Berlin) is lifted."

Battle Raging To Decide Fate Of No. China

Red Broadcast Claims Greatest Victory, 12 Divisions 'Destroyed'

Peiping, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—A major battle that might decide the fate of north China and Manchuria was reported in progress 65 miles southwest of Mukden today.

(The Chinese Communist radio said 12 government divisions were "destroyed" Thursday morning in the greatest Red victory of the war in Manchuria. At Nanking, a government spokesman denied the Red claim and said fighting was continuing with no word of the outcome.)

[The United Press said the government's Manchurian army, battered and retreating, today raced south before 150,000 Communist troops in hopes of staging a "Dunkerque" at a Yellow Sea port. Six Nationalist divisions battled the superior Communist force along a 130-mile battlefront around Hsinlitun, covering the government's effort to withdraw from Manchuria.]

(The Communist broadcast asserted that American artillery, trucks and other war materials littered the battlefield near Tahushan, widway between Mukden and Chinhsien.

(The broadcast declared "six division commanders have already been identified among the milling hordes of prisoners."

(This, the broadcast contended, brought government losses in Manchuria in the past fortnight to more than 300,000 men. It said the Communist army "is now launching an offensive all along the line to wipe out all Kuomintang troops in Manchuria.")

Government reports said national troops, probing southwest from Mukden, had come into "contact" with 150,000 of the Communists' best troops under Gen. Lin Piao along the Peichen-Heishan line.

Substantial government forces at Hulutao, southernmost Manchuria port some 90 miles from Mukden, faced heavy opposition without the support of a "second front." These Hulutao forces were said unofficially to total more than eight divisions.

Peru Air Force To Fight Rebels

The government of Peru last night ordered its air force into action against a rebellious army garrison at Arequipa, main city of southern Peru, but declared peace prevailed elsewhere in the country.

The rebel radio, however, reported all southern Peru under rebel control. The rebels said President Bustamente failed to act promptly against leftists; Bustamente replied that "rightists" were responsible for the new revolt. Details on page 2.

On Barrett's Advice

City Heads Refuse to Aid Girl Crippled by Policeman's Shot

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

The District Commissioners yesterday refused to ask Congress for authority to compensate Miss Dorothy Kilmer for injuries suffered as a result of an accidental shooting by a policeman.

The action was taken on the recommendation of Police Chief Robert J. Barrett, who declared that "to institute any action in seeking authority from Congress for relief to Miss Dorothy Kilmer would be establishing a bad precedent.

"No doubt we would have other cases where claims would be made for misconduct on the part of officers of this department while off duty."

Miss Kilmer, a 20-year-old pretty blonde, was shot in the Palm Grove Club, 1601 14th st. nw., by an off-duty probationary policeman. As a result she is paralyzed from the waist down and is now convalescing at the Washington Sanitarium.

The proposal for aid to Miss Kilmer was made by the Thomas Circle Citizens Association in a resolution adopted October 12 and forwarded to the District Commissioners. Frank M. Thompson, corresponding secretary of the group, said the matter will be discussed again at a meeting November 9 at 8 p. m. at 1536 16th st. nw.

Barrett wrote to the Commissioners in his recommendation that Miss Kilmer was shot by Pvt. Wayne W. Edmondson, 22-year-old probationary policeman, who entered the club in company with another probationary policeman, Roland H. Holifield, 26.

"In handling a revolver, Private Edmondson shot Dorothy Kilmer, left the premises with his companion without making any effort to obtain medical aid and it was not until late the next day the identity of the officers was learned," Barrett reported.

"The probationary appointments of the two officers were terminated by the Commissioners immediately upon the recommendation of the

Thousands Demonstrate

U. S. Tanks, Cavalry Quell Price Rioters in Stuttgart

Stuttgart, Germany, Oct. 28 (A.P.). United States Army constabulary forces used tanks and cavalry against Germans today to break up a riot that began when thousands demonstrated against the high cost of living in this American zone city.

It was the first time since the war that Germans had fought with United States troops. Two American military policemen were reported to have suffered minor stab wounds. Twelve demonstrators and at least two German policemen were injured.

No shots were fired. German police arrested some 20 demonstrators.

The riot followed a mass meeting of 40,000 workers in a two-hour protest strike. The meeting itself was quiet. But when it broke up, a crowd assembled in a business street where several newly built shops displayed luxury goods. Store windows were smashed when some of the demonstrators hurled stones.

An estimated 100 German policemen tried to stop the outbreak and were met by a barrage of sticks and stones.

An American military police unit that was stationed outside the meeting area moved into action. It was too small, so it withdrew and called for reinforcements.

The crowd reacted with jeers, insults and a shower of stones and bottles.

Nate Malchman, an armed forces radio correspondent who saw the riot, said: "The crowd was definitely hostile. The Germans stood defiantly despite the MP's orders to

Long Ambition—Short Stature

Police Force Aspirant Trails By Quarter-Inch in Stretch

This is a short story that may sound like a tall tale, of a man who came within a quarter of an inch of realizing his long ambition to be a policeman.

When Peter G. Barrick, 21, of 1318 Holbrooke st. ne., first tried out for the Metropolitan force last spring he was told, "Sorry, buddy, you're too short. Five feet 8 inches is the minimum."

Barrick drew himself up to his, then, 5 feet 7¼ inches and pleaded, "Aw, can't you stretch a point and pass me."

"Go stretch a point yourself—then come back," Barrick was told, in effect.

Now Pete, who did a stretch in the Navy during the war, is long on perservance. He took his troubles to a chiropractor.

"Well, we can try, anyway," the doctor agreed as he strapped Pete's legs to one end of a bed and his head to the other.

A wheel was turned, and things began to look like an old-fashioned taffy pull.

Pete's neck enlongated as the straps were tightened. His vertebrae cracked faintly. His toes receded a bit from his hair line. Pete remained calm, although a couple of times he felt he might lose his head.

After 10 such treatments, Pete again appeared before police examiners. This time the bar hit 5 feet 7¾ inches. Not much of a gain, but Pete knew he was beginning to inch toward his goal.

And so today, after a quick visit to another chiropractor, Pete, who is currently employed as a clerk for the Veterans Administration

Diplomat and Poetaster, Dr. Bustamente Has Irked Peruvians by Centrist Course

The recent rash of revolts besetting Dr. Jose Luis Bustamente y Rivero, President of Peru, stems from his personal philosophy that in a land of political and economic extremes, he must take a middle course.

As a result, the shy, scholarly patriot has been catching the deuce from both the right and left.

Last June a right-wing Army faction attempted a revolution. Early this month a left-wing Navy group tried it, also abortively. Yesterday's rebellion again came from the military right.

Dr. Bustamente took up residence in Lima's grand Presidential Palace three years ago, but only after he had been persuaded to run for the office against his better judgment.

After he became President, though, the mild-mannered lawyer-diplomat made it clear that though he was as patient as a pack-carrying llama, he could also be just as stubborn when the burden became too heavy.

Thus he successively cracked down on the radical left, but anti-Communist Apra Party, which had elected him and then tried to shove his moderation aside, and with the radical rightists who sought to take advantage of the break.

Ever since Pizarro and his conquistadores crushed the Inca, some 400 years ago Peru has been ruled by the landlords, army and church. The Spanish viceroys were succeeded, when Peru became a republic, by a series of distators or cliques.

JOSE LUIS BUSTAMENTE
Man in the middle

Then, in 1945, Peru held its first free election. The Apra Party, which represents the illiterate poverty-stricken Indians who make up the bulk of Peru's 6,500,000 population, was given access to the polls. Apra combined forces with the Socialists, Communists and a dissident Rightist faction to best the incumbent oligarchy, winning a majority in Peru's Congress and electing Bustamente for a six-year term.

An earnest Catholic with conservative viewpoint, 54-year-old Dr. Bustamente is no politician or party-man. For 10 years he'd served his country as a diplomat in Bolivia, in Uruguay, and in Inter-American conferences. He had a high reputation as a jurist, some little fame as a poet and literary light.

The bespectacled, mustached, dark-haired don would have preferred to be left alone, and in fact, turned down the presidential nomination offered by the rightist groups. But he was prevailed upon to become opposite candidate as a patriotic gesture.

On winning the election, he immediately lifted the long-standing press censorship, restored civil rights, and freed political prisoners. He then embarked on a mild program of liberal reform.

Bustamente moved too slowly for the Apristas, who sought drastic economic changes, and when that party tried to run over him, the little former professor got mad nad slapped it down. Some of the reactionaries thought Bustamente was moving too fast, so he had to slap them down, too.

Despite his announced intentions, Dr. Bustamente has had to become a "strong-man," albeit not a very strong one, to hold onto his suite in the Presidential Palace. He's had to revoke most of the civil rights he had earlier given the citizenry. At a recent military review, the spectators gave the once-popular President the Lima whistle, which is a Latin version of the Bronx cheer.

Revolutions are old stuff to Peruvians. Sometimes when some of the senors with a grievance or two against the administration gulp down a couple too many pisco-straights, revolt gets under way right at the cafe table.

But the outbreak of rebellion during the past year has been dead-sober serious. Seems that Dr. Bustamente's middle road might just as well be a tightrope between two Andean peaks.

Peru Sends Planes to Stem Revolt in South

Lima, Peru, Oct. 28 (AP).—The Peruvian government tonight ordered its air force to start operations against an army garrison which revolted at Arequipa, main city of southern Peru. The government said peace prevailed in all other parts of the country.

"The army forces in northern Peru remain loyal to the government as well as those quartered at Cuzco, Puno, Juliaca, Pomata Ilave, Tacna and Moquegua," a communique said. "Excepting Arequipa, other army, air, navy and police forces stand by the side of the government."

Rebels Claim All of South

(The Arequipa radio refuted this and asserted all southern Peru is under rebel control. Brig. Gen. Manuel Odria, leader of the revolt, said by radio the uprising was caused because President Jose Luis Bustamante was incapable of governing the country and that "chaos" threatened. He said the government was vacillating last month in putting down the (leftist) Aprista revolution at Callao, the port of Lima, and that the Apristas "were conspiring to install a totalitarian regime."

(The insurgent radio said the Third and Fourth Infantry and Third Engineer Battalions have joined the revolt along with the Third Artillery Group and various communications, antitank, antiaircraft, headquarters and veterinary battalions.)

Lieut. Col. Alfonso Llosa and other exiles who tried an abortive coup in Puno recently were detained in Bolivia when they tried to cross into Peru.

Citizens were warned that the "state of emergency" decreed recently is in force and that gathering of crowds is not allowed.

Lima was outwardly calm. Commerce and traffic proceeded normally. News from Arequipa, 135 miles from Bolivia, was meager.

Brig. Gen. Manuel Odria, a former cabinet member, was believed to have entered Arequipa secretly to lead the revolt which broke out last night. There was no announcement of government troops being sent south.

Bustamente early today said by radio a "small rightist group supported by some misled men" are responsible for the Arequipa revolt.

"The regime is resolved to act serenely and firmly," he said.

All traffic and private communications to the south were ordered halted.

Navy Agrees To Publish Files On Gen. R. Smith

By the United Press

The Navy yesterday agreed to publish its official files on the Battle of Saipan and the long-standing controversy involving two generals named Smith.

Defense Secretary James Forrestal must give his consent, however, before the secret documents become public.

Marine Gen. Holland M. (Howling Mad) Smith, retired, asked the Navy to publish them and "clear up the record" on the dispute he touched off four years ago by relieving Army Maj. Gen. Ralph Smith from command of the Twenty-seventh Infantry Division during the Battle of Saipan.

He said Ralph Smith's Army sympathizers were trying to "whitewash" the record of the Twenty-seventh and its commander. He referred to an article in the Infantry Journal, an unofficial service publication, which said a secret report by an Army board had cleared the Army Smith of charges of misconduct.

President Truman has released an additional $154,817,000 to buy 125 new warplanes and modify aircraft already on order, the Air Force announced last night.

Contracts will be placed for the following:

Ten Boeing B-47 jet bombers, expected to have a speed of 650 miles an hour and a range greatly in excess of present jet bombers.

Thirty Northrop Pioneer transports, three-engined craft designed for operation from small, unprepared fields.

Other Types Ordered

A total of 36 helicopters—26 Sikorsky H-5Gs and ten Kellett designed H-10s.

Twelve Cessna liaison planes and 37 Consolidated Vultee T-29 trainers. The latter are special designed Convair 240 transports used to train bomber crews on navigational-bombardment missions.

The President, on recommendation of the Bureau of the Budget, withheld approval of additional $16,200,000 earmarked for guided missiles. Except for the latter, all of the funds appropriated for USAF aircraft and missile procurement now have been certified for expenditure by Mr. Truman.

Officials said the 75 million dollars released by the President for modification of planes on order will be spent to winterize planes for Arctic operations, to install more modern fire-control and electronics equipment, and give added safety to aircraft.

No breakdown was given of the sums going to various plane builders, but it was understood that about half of the $79,817,000 will be spent for the Boeing jet bombers. This is the first production order of the B-47 and much of the sum will be required to tool up for possible later mass production.

Of the $3,198,000,000 voted by Congress last spring for Air Force and Navy planes, aircraft tooling and modifications, all but 558 millions now have been released by President Truman. Under a special provision of the appropriation act, he must certify that the money is to be spent for the most modern planes.

Of this sum, 92 million dollars is for Navy planes and the remainder USAF funds for tooling, plant facilities, modifications and guided missiles. Before Defense Secretary James Forrestal is a Navy request for release of $84,900,000 of its funds. Of this $67,600,000 would be spent for planes, 15 million dollars for plant facilities and the remainder for guided missiles plants and missiles.

Earlier in the day, the Air Force announced that the McDonnell XF-88 jet fighter had successfully completed its first test flight at Muroc Dry Lake, Calif. The craft has swept-back wings to give it added speed and is designed as "a penetration fighter to operate deeply within enemy territory," the Air Force said.

3 Nations Back on Aid List After Signing Loan Accords

Ireland, Denmark and Sweden got back on the list of countries eligible for American recovery grants yesterday by signing formal agreements for Marshall Plan loans.

They were among nine European nations cut off Wednesday from further American grants—which do not have to be repaid—for failing to conclude loan agreements with the Economic Cooperation Administration.

France, Italy, The Netherlands, Belgium, Norwey and Turkey still are ineligible for further gifts, pending conclusion of their loan pacts.

The Irish agreement covers a 60 million dollar loan, the Danish pact is for 25 million dollars and the Swedish for 70 million dollars, each at an annual interest rate of 2½ per cent and repayable in semi-annual instalments beginning in 1956 and running for 35 years.

A temporary grant of about $6,500,000 already has been authorized for Ireland, but it will be repaid out of the new loan funds and no other grants are scheduled at present for that country.

The Irish will use their ECA loan primarily to increase their farm production and thus contribute to general European recovery. The Danes plan to use theirs principally to finance purchases of raw materials and various kinds of equipment.

Sweden will use her loan mainly to finance the purchase of petroleum products, industrial raw materials, transport equipment and industrial machinery.

Canada Expresses Readiness to Enter Arms Pact

Ottawa, Oct. 28 (AP).—Canada has informed other governments concerned she is ready to enter into negotiations for a regional treaty for collective security, External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson announced today.

This means the Dominion is prepared to enter into a military alliance with the United States and the five nations of Europe's western alliance—Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg—to form a North Atlantic Defensive Union.

Pearson will leave for Paris Friday to head the Canadian delegation in the United Nations. He told reporters the government has received and studied a report from experts who met in Washington to discuss the framework of a North Atlantic union.

Pearson said the Canadian government had noted with "great interest" the statement issued last weekend by the foreign ministers of the western European union nations in saying they were in complete agreement on a North Atlantic union.

"The Canadian government has informed the other governments that this government is now ready to enter into negotiations for a regional treaty of collective security with them," he said.

He added, "And with other North Atlantic states."

This was taken to indicate that other states would be invited to enter the broader defensive union, possibly countries such as the Scandinavian nations, Ireland and Iceland.

Informed sources said such things as standardization and stockpiling of strategic materials among the North American nations might well flow from the new treaty.

Never before in peacetime has Canada entered into a defensive agreement with other nations.

The next development likely will be the extension of an invitation to other North Atlantic states to enter the proposed union.

'Attack' Planned In North Atlantic

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—An amphibious attack force will sail from Norfolk Sunday to join the Second Task Fleet in the largest operations ever attempted in North Atlantic waters. The exercises will continue until November 23 and extend to Davis Strait between Greenland and Labrador.

The Second Task Fleet, commanded by Vice Admiral D. B. Duncan, will be composed of 100 ships and 36 air squadrons. Rear Admiral J. E. Welchel, commander of Amphibious Group 4, Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force, commands the amphibious attack force.

The mission is to seize an "enemy held" position represented by Argentia, Newfoundland. En route to Argentia, the force will simulate a convoy passing through submarine-infested waters.

It will be attacked by 17 submarines and harassed by land-based naval aircraft. Augmenting the usual defense of the attack force will be a hunter-killer group composed of the escort aircraft carriers Mindoro and Sicily and the distroyers Putnam, Henley, W. Kent and J. C. Owen.

The attack on Argentia will be made November 8. It will be supported by the fast carriers Philippine Sea, Leyte and Kearsarge. The battleship Missouri, the cruiser Fargo and a destroyer division will soften up the objective with gunfire.

Two mine divisions will clear mines from the approach area. An underwater demolition team will destroy landing obstacles. Marines will hit the beach under air cover supplied by planes from the escort carrier Palau.

Stalin Says West Seeks War

Anglo-Americans have a guaranteed majority.

Q. Is it true that in Paris during the recent discussions on the question in the Security Council, agreement on the situation in Berlin had again been reached in unofficial talks even before the question was voted upon in the Security Council?

A. Yes, that is true. Mr. Bramuglia, the representative of the Argentine and president of the Security Council who conducted unofficial talks with Comrade Vishinsky on behalf of the other interested powers, did indeed have in his hands an agreed draft decision on the question of the situation in Berlin. But the representatives of the U. S. A. and Great Britain once mare again declared that agreement to be null and void.

Q. What is the matter then? Could you explain?

A. The thing is that those who inspire an aggressive policy in the United States and Great Britain do not consider themselves to be interested in agreement and in cooperation with the U. S. S. R. What they want is not agreement and cooperation but talk about agreement and cooperation, so as to put the blame on the U. S. S. R by preventing agreement and thus to "prove" that cooperation with the USSR is impossible. What the war instigators striving to unleash a new war fear most of all is the reaching of agreements and cooperation with the U. S. S. R. because a policy of concord with the U. S. S. R. undermines the position of the instigators of war and deprives the aggressive policy of these gentlemen of any purpose.

It is for this reason that they disrupt agreements that have already been reached, disavow their representatives who have drawn up such agreements together with the U. S. S. R. and, in violation of the United Nations Charter, refer the question to the Security Council, where they have a guaranteed majority and where they can "prove" whatever they like. All this is done to "show" that cooperation with the U. S. S. R. is impossible, to "show the necessity for a new war and thus to prepare the ground for the unleashing of war. The policy of the present leaders of the United States and Great Britain is a policy of aggression, a policy of unleashing a new war.

Q. And how should one regard the conduct of the representatives of the six states—members of the Security Council—of China, Canada, Belgium, Argentina, Colombia and Syria?

A. Those gentlemen are obviously lending their support to a policy of aggression, to a policy of unleashing a new war.

Q. What can all this end in?

A. It can only end in an ignominious failure on the part of the instigators of a new war. (Winston) Churchill, the main instigator of a new war, has already managed to deprive himself of the trust of his own nation and of democratic forces throughout the world. The same fate lies in store for all other instigators of war. The horrors of the recent war are still too fresh in the memories of peoples and the public forces favoring peace are too strong for Churchill's pupils in aggression to overpower them and to set the course for a new war.

the wording of the resolution and thought that it satisfied the condition he had imposed for acceptance.

This explains why he asked for a delay from Friday until Monday to transmit its terms to Moscow. Discussion was carried on in English, Russian and Spanish, with Spanish the only language used by Dr. Juan A. Bramuglia, Argentine foreign minister and the Council's acting president and mediator.

Language difficulties may have led Vishinsky to think for a while that the idea was for the blockade to be removed when negotiation was completed rather than when it was initiated.

As for the violence of the words used in Stalin's answers, observers had this comment: It is unusual for him to employ such language, for in the past he has posed as the conciliator and elder statesman who is careful of the language he uses.

For this reason the suggestion was made that this was a defensive statement of a leader who has begun to feel that world opinion is swinging against him.

No Agreement Reached On Berlin, Says London

London, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—A Foreign Office spokesman said tonight that never at any time was there any text of a Berlin solution to which both the Western Allies and Russia had agreed in Paris.

Bank Official Held in Shortage

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

CLARENCE MARKLAND, JR., an official of the Bank of Virginia at Norfolk, is held in New York City in $2500 bail for a hearing today in connection with a $50,000 shortage at the bank. Markland, 25, was said by the FBI to have admitted taking the money by creating fictitious advances to Norfolk auto dealers and then issuing cashier's checks on the bank. He was arrested at a New York hotel where he was registered with his wife. They had gone there to celebrate their first wedding anniversary, according to the FBI

Churches Urge 'Showdown' With Soviet

Philadelphia, Oct. 28 (AP).—The American Council of Christian Churches today called upon "the representatives of the freedom-loving nations for a complete and frank showdown with Russia."

It was the first resolution adopted by the delegates to the council's seventh annual convention in Philadelphia.

"For us to have the atomic bomb and in the name of false morality, born of a perverted sense of self-respect and pacifist propaganda, to await the hour when Russia has her bombs to precipitate an atomic war is the height of insanity. . . ."

Asked to elaborate, Dr. W. O. H. Garman, president of the council and pastor of the Callender Memorial Church in Wilkinsburg, Pa., said:

"If it comes to a showdown, we should call Russia's bluff and, if necessary, threaten Russia with the use of the atomic bomb."

U. S. White Paper Called 'Truthful Account'

By the United Press

A State Department spokesman yesterday in effect gave the lie to Soviet Premier Stalin's charge that the United States and Britain were to blame for failure of the Moscow negotiations on Berlin.

Department Press Officer Michael J. McDermott told a news conference, the Department's White Paper on Berlin was a "complete, truthful record of what happened" during the four-power negotiations.

The State Department's White Paper, made public September 26, made it clear that, in this Government's opinion, Stalin had reneged on agreements reached during the long negotiations in Moscow.

Russia Calls Greek Report 'Garbage Pile'

Paris, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—Russia asked the United Nations today to order all "foreign troops' out of Greece and denounced the report of the U. N. Balkans Commission as "a pile of garbage."

Soviet deputy foreign minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky, in another arm-waving denunciation of the West, said American foreign policy in Greece and other countries is "designed to get world mastery."

Vishinsky spoke for two hours and appeared disappointed because the Political Committee then recessed for lunch. After lunch, however, he came back with equal vigor.

"All over the world are spread American military, army, naval, and air force bases . . ." he declared. "This is a new orand of international relations. The USSR which is sitting at home with her armies, not building any bases, not encircling anybody, is charged by (John Foster) Dulles with threatening peace. But who will believe that? Nobody at all."

Vishinsky said he will introduce a resolution calling for:

1. Reestablishment of normal diplomatic relations between Greece and her northern neighbors, Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia.
2. Withdrawal of all foreign troops and personnel from Greece.
3. Dissolution of the U.N. Balkans Commission "to protect the dignity of the General Assembly."

Vishinsky described as "sheer nonsense" the commission's charge that Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria are threatening Greek independence and world peace.

Peace Offer Tendered

Paris, Oct. 28 (AP).—A former UNRRA official in Greece said today he has a five-point Balkan peace offer from Greek Communist rebel leader Markos Vafiades.

Col. Alexander Sheppard said the Balkans conflict could be settled on the basis of the five points—one of which would bar missions such as the United States and Britain now maintain in Greece.

Col. Sheppard, an Australian, said Markos told him he would negotiate for peace on these five points:

1. A coalition government in Greece of all parties, including those which refused to take part in the 1946 elections.
2. All national foreign missions must leave Greece. This would not keep out a United Nations mission, but no one of the five big powers could be on any U. N. mission serving there.
3. After six months there should be a free election under U. N. supervision.
4. All liberty must be restored to trade unions.
5. All persons sentenced to exile or imprisonment for political reasons should be freed.

To Stop Reds

U. S. Military Aid Urged By Churchill

London, Oct. 28 (AP).—Winston Churchill called today for the "fullest support" from the United States for western Europe's military defenses. He obviously was indorsing the proposed North Atlantic Pact.

Speaking in the Commons, Britain's wartime Prime Minister said only the atom bomb prevents "the enslavement of Europe by Communist forces directed by the Kremlin."

Political unity and economic revival in Europe can only come about, Churchill asserted, "if Europe is shielded from external aggression from the East by the fact that the United States associate themselves morally and physically with efforts which are being made to create a defensive front of the countries outside the Iron Curtain."

Churchill said the Western powers "should put no obstacles in the way of a reconciliation with Germany." He continued:

"Our policy should henceforth be to draw the sponge across the crimes and horrors of the past and look for the sake of our salvation toward the future. There can be no revival in Europe without the active and loyal aid of the German tribes."

Yanks to Stay In Germany

ance the United States is determined to remain in Germany came amid strong indications that Russia may be preparing to withdraw its occupation forces.

Communist Professor Juergen Kuczinsky, in the official party organ Neues Deutschland, said today:

"The Soviet occupation army is giving the strongest support to progressive forces to pave the way for its own withdrawal."

Russia tonight suddenly tightened the Berlin blockade and stationed Soviet soldiers armed with machine pistols along the main highways to Berlin.

At Wiesbaden, Maj. Gen. William H. Tunner, chief of the combined United States-British airlift, disclosed the quota of supplies for blockaded Berlin has been raised by more than 1000 tons a day.

[The United States, Britain and France tonight banned shipment of western marks from Berlin to the western occupation zones, the Associated Press said. American finance officials said millions in the western-sponsored currency already had been sent out and had an inflationary effect in the west.

[The German Communist leadership acknowledged a split in party ranks today over the question of regaining German territory lost to Poland.]

U. S. Airlift Cost Reduced $8000 A Day, USAF Says

The Air Force last night claimed a cut of $8000 a day in the cost of the Berlin airlift.

It said the average daily cost now is about $385,000 compared with $393,000 previously. The more economical operation is primarily due to substituting four-engined for two-engined planes.

move back. They moved only when they were pushed."

Constabulary Called

Even with reinforcements, the MPs were unable to disperse the crowd. They were under orders not to shoot except in self-defense and did not use their guns. But they called upon the constabulary.

The constabulary responded with three platoons including 12 armed tanks and a cavalry outfit. Their weapons included machine guns and tear gas. They succeeded in scattering the demonstrators from the streets without using the weapons.

During the protest meeting, Hans Stetter, a local trade union leader, denounced as ineffectual efforts by United States occupation authorities and German government officials to fight the price situation.

Even after darkness fell, Stuttgart's atmosphere was martial, that of a recently occupied city. Tanks stood by the foot patrols consisting of four men each marched the streets.

Army sources declined to speculate whether they believed Communists had a hand in stirring up the trouble.

French Regain Mahe, India Dispatches Says

Madras, India, Oct. 28 (AP).—Dispatches from French India today said the French have reestablished their authority in the rebellious city of Mahe.

Some of the 14,000 people of the city seized control October 21. Police intervened in a local election and took some voters' cards. A mob burned municipal records and forced authorities to surrender.

Korean Says Red Warning Ignored

Seoul, Korea, Oct. 27 (AP).—Communist infiltration of the south Korean armed forces was attributed by Premier Lee Bum Suk today to incautious recruitment by the former American military government.

The Premier made his assertion as he said the eight-day-old rebellion in the extreme south had been quelled except for "a few small pockets."

"The work of the Communist organizers," Lee said, "was made easy by the fact that recruiting and training of our constabulary was under the atmosphere of joint cooperation between Left and Right, with no adequate provision to check the communistic propaganda.

"Korean leaders repeatedly warned these officials of the presence of a Communist Trojan horse in the constabulary, but their warnings were ignored."

Lee did not identify "these officials," but made it clear he meant Americans by adding:

"Many of the men the Americans recruited for our constabulary service were self-styled refugees, newly arrived from north of the thirty-eighth parallel, who were accepted without proper investigation."

Russia occupies Korea north of the thirty-eighth parallel and has fostered a Communist government there.

"This disturbance was not a 'civil war,' a 'mutiny' or 'rebellion,' but a terroristic activity of the Communists, synchronized with the application for United Nations recognition of the Russian puppet government in north Korea," Lee said.

"It also represented a part of an elaborate plot for a small minority of Communists to take over control of all south Korea."

Lee insisted "the country is not in danger."

Tom Lambert, AP correspondent and one of four American newsmen to enter Yosu reported that fall of Yosu to the government forces ended immediate large-scale Communist resistance of south Korea.

Lambert said Yosu fell to three units accompanied by American Army Capt. Howard W. Darrow of Ashland City, Tenn., Lieut. Raymond T. Moore, of San Antonio, Tex., Col. Hurley B. Fuller of San Antonio, Capt. James Treadwell, Starkville, Miss., Lieut. Minor Kelso of Winnemucca, Nev., and Lieut. John Caldwell of Staunton, Va.

2 German Marshals, 9 Generals Sentenced as War Criminals

Nuernberg, Germany, Oct. 28 (AP). Sentences ranging from 3 years to life imprisonment were imposed by an American court today on 11 of Germany's high military commanders. The defendants were convicted on war crimes charges after a nine-month trial.

Lieut. Gens. Walter Warlimont 54, and Hermann Reinecke, 60, were given life sentences.

Originally there were 14 defendants. One of them, Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz, 64, jumped to his death the day the trial opened. Two others, Field Marshal Hugo Sperrle, 62, and Admiral Otto Schniewind, 60, were acquitted. Sperrle commanded the air units which blitzed London in 1940. Schniewind headed the North Sea fleet.

Field Marshal Wilhelm von Leeb, 72, received the lightest sentence—three years' imprisonment.

Others sentenced: Gen. Hermann Hoph, 63; Field Marshal Georg Karl Friedrich von Kuechler, 67; Gen. Hans Reinhardt, 61; Gen. Hans von Salmuth, 59; Gen. Karl Hollidt, 58; Lieut. Gen. Karl von Roques, 68; Lieut. Gen. Otto Woehler, 54 and Lieut. Gen. Rudolf Lehmann, 57.

Soviet Irked About Japan

the basic postwar policy in Japan is being violated is wholly without foundation."

The Ambassador's charges stirred less interest here than the fact that he had been making repeated complaints against the McArthur occupation policies, and that the complaints are coming more frequently than before.

These complaints are believed to be part of a developing Soviet campaign for a peace treaty with Japan—in spite of the fact that when the United States proposed an 11-nation peace conference last year, the Soviet government insisted that the treaty-making be done exclusively by the Council of Foreign Ministers, made up of the United States, Britain, France, China and Russia.

In recent months the idea of a peace conference on Japan has been in the diplomatic deep-freeze, as far as the United States is concerned. The United States and Britain flatly refuse to let the treaty be negotiated in any body where the rule of unanimity prevails, and where other Pacific war allies like Australia are not represented.

Accordingly the United States has gone ahead virtually on its own in putting the Japanese economy back on its feet. Judging from the lack of any American effort to push the idea of a peace conference with Japan, the present situation suits American purposes admirably. The United States is in no hurry to give the Soviet Union a greater voice, if not a greater share, in shaping the future of Japan.

The Russians, however, do not enjoy seeing Japan revived under virtually 100 per cent American auspices. They also do not like seeing new patterns of trade established in the Far East which could cut off their Siberian provinces from a share of Japanese processed and manufactured goods.

When the war ended Soviet Siberia, from Lake Baikal to the sea, got the capital goods it needed out of the stripping of Manchurian mines and factories. Now Manchuria is believed to be yielding diminishing returns to the Russians, and they would like to see their raw materials going to Japan to be processed into manufactured goods.

Blum Makes Sharp Retort to Lewis

(From Press Dispatch)

Paris, Oct. 28.—The French coal strike continued today despite the attempted intercession of John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers of America.

Lewis' action drew a sharp retort from former Socialist Premier Leon Blum. The veteran Socialist expressed his astonishment at Lewis' suggestion of yesterday that President Truman "stop the shooting of French coal miners."

Blum cabled Lewis that he (Lewis) lacked information on the true state of affairs in France. Lewis cabled Blum in reply that "if you (Blum) will feed the mine workers like decent human beings," they could resist the Communist influences that Blum blamed for the 24-day-old strike.

Lewis yesterday wrote AFL President William Green, who is a Truman supporter in the presidential campaign, asking Green to use his influence to get President Truman to use his control over Marshall Plan funds to bring pressure against the French government in the strike.

Blum said police intervened only to assure maintenance of struck pits.

Lewis replied that "men who are hungry ... are not interested in dissertations upon political philosophy . . . it is a ghastly and inhuman travesty . . . to pay French miners $39 to $40 per month under present living costs in France."

The UMW leader's letter to Green was printed on page one of the French Communist newspaper L'Humanite.

Cancel Visa of 'Red Dean,' League Urges

The American Jewish League Against Communism yesterday asked the State Department to cancel the visa recently granted to the Rev. Hewlett Johnson, the "Red Dean" of Canterbury.

The English clergyman is scheduled to arrive in this country next month for a coast-to-coast speaking tour.

Alfred Kohlberg, national chairman of the Jewish League, said in a telegram to the department that Johnson should have been refused entry under the law barring "alien subversives."

"We should not import subversive propaganda," he commented. "There is enough at home. . . . Cancellation of the visa would encourage the fighters for Americanism and true religion."

Dr. Ralph Barton Perry of Harvard University, spokesman for the committee sponsoring the tour, said yesterday he was "gratified" the visa had been issued.

He said the committee was composed of "citizens of various political opinions who believe in the right of American adults to hear, think and judge for themselves."

Tory Hunters Rally to Fight

London, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—Harrassed Tories, already battered by the government's nationalization programs, today rallied to defend their traditional right to holler "yoicks" and "tally-ho."

A plan had appeared in the Commons to outlaw the hunting of the fox, the stag, the hare and the otter.

Conservatives bred for Britain's oldest and most aristocratic sports gathered in corridors and clubs to discuss the threat. They predicted that the "backwoodsmen"—lords rarely seen in Parliament—would swoop down from castle fastnesses to fight for the hunt.

But in the Commons, they sadly admitted, it appeared the majority already supported Anthony Greenwood, Socialist son of former Cabinet Minister Arthur Greenwood, who promised to introduce the bill.

New 5-Year Plan

Czechs Mark 30 Years As Republic

By the United Press

Prague, Oct. 28 (AP).—Czechoslovakia celebrated 30 years as a republic today by proclaiming a new five-year economic plan and praising the help of Soviet Russia in founding the nation. (Communists took over the Czechoslovak government last February.)

President Klement Gottwald and Premier Anton Zapotocky spoke from a balcony of the National Museum and reviewed troops and factory militia from the steps of Parliament.

Police entered a building where domestic and foreign journalists had ministry of information tickets to watch the procession, and confiscated several cameras and rolls of film during the military procession.

The Ministry of National Defense two days ago said the public was not to take photographs of armed troops.

West's Envoys, Molotov Toast Czech's Birthday

Moscow, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—The Ambassadors of the United States, Britain and France joined Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov tonight in a champagne toast honoring Czechoslovakia's thirtieth birthday anniversary.

Ambassadors W. Bedell Smith of the United States, Sir Maurice Drummond Peterson of Britain, and Yves Chataigneau of France all attended the gala reception given by the Czech Ambassador at the Hotel Moskva.

Emotions Seen Possible Cause of Toothache

Pittsburgh, Oct. 28 (AP). — A Temple University psychiatrist says that old bugbear—the toothache—may be caused by a lack of emotional balance.

Dr. John W. Lyons, jr., told a meeting of the Western Pennsylvania Dentists Society that while laboratory proof is lacking, "research has indicated that bleeding gums and tooth decay is directly traceable to emotional disturbances."

By the United Press

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States yesterday called for organization of private citizens groups to fight communism in every community in the Nation.

It asserted that vigorous anti-Communist action is needed on the community level because American Communists have adopted a new tactic.

"The American Communists, having found new resistance at the top levels—in Government, unions, the press and other means of communication—have received new instructions to work more directly on the masses of the people at the local level," the chamber said.

It issued a 58-page pamphlet outlining "a program for community anti-Communist action" to expose and block the alleged Red drive.

"Communism will be met only if Americans in every community make this their personal job," the pamphlet said. "You are the minute men of today."

The program outlined in the pamphlet calls for:

1. Each individual to study communism and "learn why it is a menace. The pamphlet listed a number of books and periodicals as recommended reading.

2. Small groups of anti-Communists get together and call a community-wide meeting—"the more representative, the better"—to launch a permanent organization.

3. The community organization to set up subcommittees which will gather information on Communist activities, give it out to the public, and conduct "counterattacks" against Communist efforts to infiltrate the community.

4. The community organization to discuss national and world problems, and bring its influence to bear in favor of national programs "so as to fight communism on a broader scale."

Md. Phone Union Ratifies Pact

The CIO Maryland Telephone Traffic Union yesterday ratified a new wage agreement providing $1 to $4 weekly wage boosts for some 4000 operators.

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. announced the boosts would be retroactive to last Sunday. At the same time, the firm increased by $1 to $6 weekly the pay of 2600 employes who belong to the Independent Maryland Federation of Telephone Workers, covering plant, installation and maintenance crews.

An official of the utility served notice that the latest wage hikes bring nearer the time when it must be granted an increase in rates.

"We are caught," he said, "between the upward spiral of prices for everything which goes into telephone service and the fixed price of that service."

In Washington, meanwhile, members of Division 50, Communications Workers of America (Ind.) held a series of meetings in Turner's Arena to consider their failure to win what they consider adequate wage increases this year.

Mrs. Mary Gannon, president of the union which covers some 3000 operators, said workers on the whole felt their decision to reject the company's offer of $2 to $4 weekly wage boosts was a wise one.

She said the union does not plan to seek reopening of negotiations with the company or to consider work stoppages at this time.

Negotiations between Division 50 and the company broke off at midnight October 14, the deadline under terms of the current agreement. Division 36, covering plans, acounting and commercial employes, also rejected company wage offers at that time.

Tobey Assails Charity Trusts Like Textron's

Boston, Oct. 28 (AP).—An investigation into the affairs of the 125-million-dollar Textron Corp. adjourned until next week today after Senator Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) assailed charitable trusts and said he would ask Congress to control such organizations.

Tobey branded such trusts "schemes to avoid taxes and put the burden on the little people of this country."

In announcing that the hearings would reopen in Boston next week Tobey said, "We're going into these trusts from top to bottom."

The Senator interrupted a Subcommittee hearing on the trust associations of the Texrton Corp. with an excited outburst in which he said:

"I've been listening to all this thimble-rigging about these trusts that makes a man's head dizzy. You keep saying, like Mr. Royal Little, Textron president, that these trusts are for charity and that they create risk capital.

"Down through the years men have got risk capital in this country not by avoiding their obligations but by taking them on.

"Every time you evade those taxes you put the tax burden on 130 million people of this country proportionately."

major and superintendent (Barrett) and the case was referred to the United States attorney for criminal charges. Both Edmondson and Holifield have been indicted by the grand jury on criminal charges and the cases are pending in court," Barrett said.

The pair was indicted on September 20 by a District grand jury for assault with a dangerous weapon. In addition, Holifield was charged with neglecting to arrest Edmonson after the shooting.

Barrett noted in his recommendation that "several requests have been received by the major and superintendent for action to obtain financial relief for Miss Kilmer, but as the actions of the officers in the case were not as police officers and resulted from carelessness while off duty, it was felt that the department or the District government was in no way responsible for their actions. All such requests were denied."

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, who did not take part in the Commissioners' consideration of the matter, told reporters later that the only recourse open to Miss Kilmer was to sue the individuals or make an independent request to Congress for a bill giving her compensation.

He pointed out, however, that he knew of no successful precedent for the latter action in a case which did not involve policemen inflicting damage in the course of performing public functions.

Miss Kilmer, who left Emergency Hospital August 26 to enter the sanitarium, is visited almost daily by her mother, Mrs. Alma Kilmer, and her fiance, Marine Corpl. Clinton Nickerson, 20, stationed at Henderson Hall, Va.

Nurses at the sanitarium said she is now using a wheelchair waiting for her arm and shoulder muscles to strengthen so she can begin using crutches.

"She still is very hopeful about walking again and never mentions the accident. She's coming along just fine, but her spirits change. Sometimes, she's kind of depressed, but she's still hoping," the nurse on her floor said.

Sympathetic District residents raised $818 after the accident to help the paralyzed girl back to good health, but family friends said this amount has almost been liquidated and bills are continuing.

Miss Kilmer's father, Lester Kilmer, is attempting to sell an Ellenville, N. Y. gas station and grocery to enable him to join the family here.

Shanhouse Girl Flies Here, Collapses in Mother's Arms

By The Associated Press

Lenore Shanhouse, who vanished from Smith College last Monday, collapsed in her mother's arms yesterday shortly after arriving here by airplane from Montreal.

The dark-haired, 19-year-old student uttered not a word as she was hurried to a waiting car that whisked her away.

She was pale and appeared on the verge of tears as she moved along, ignoring reporters' questions. In the car, she collapsed on her mother's lap and broke into sobs.

Earlier, at a stop at Syracuse, N. Y., she told reporters "I didn't do anything wrong."

"I left college and took a train," she added in a whisper. "I didn't know where I was going. I didn't care."

Miss Shanhouse disappeared Monday. Police in Montreal found her late Tuesday night.

Why she left the college was unexplained. She said a rumor that she had been kidnaped was started by a telephone operator after a call she made to her mother, Mrs. Ida Shanhouse of Bay Ridge, Md.

The distraught girl was reluctant to leave the plane at National Airport here. Finally her mother entered the plane.

A few minutes later Miss Shanhouse came out. Her mother was holding her on one side and the airline hostess, Elaine Fife, on the other. Together they walked quickly toward a car parked nearby.

For a moment the mother was confused about where the car was. She explained to a policeman who was escorting them, "I'm all upset." That was all she said before driving away.

Holdup Hoax Costs Treasury Worker $25

William Harrod, 26, the way police tell it, tried a bit of fakery yesterday to get money for his expectant wife and wound up $25 loser.

Harrod, who lives at 928 E st. nw., is an office appliance repair man at the Treasury Department. Yesterday at about 8:30 a. m. he was found lying on the floor of the sub-basement of the Treasury Building in what appeared to be a semiconscious condition.

He related he had been struck by an unknown assailant and robbed of $203.

Detective Sergts. Herman Xander and James Powell questioned Herrod at the Treasury Department.

After some questioning, police said, Harrod admitted it was all a hoax. Police said Harrod told them by reporting a robbery he had hoped to obtain money from a Treasury Department fund used to assist Treasury workers in financial distress.

He said he needed the cash because his wife is pregnant, according to police.

Harrod posted $25 on a charge of making a false report and elected to forfeit.

President Taunts Dewey in New York

thing with anybody. We cleared it with the American people. That's better than clearing it with the National Association of Manufacturers. The Republican candidate is doing that this year. He is clearing everything with the NAM and the lobbies."

The President was introduced by Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York to the party rally in City Hall Park, where he pointed to New York as proof that racial and religious prejudice can be overcome.

"New York," he said, "is proof that the brotherhood of man can be a reality and not just a phrase."

At Sara Delano Roosevelt Park, named after President Roosevelt's mother, the President said he had sought peace throughout his public life and would continue to do so. There can be, he said, "no peace in weakness. There can be peace in, strength, but strength carries with it the duty to maintain peace, not to break it."

After visiting a few minutes with party leaders at the National Democratic Club, Mr. Truman drove to the Biltmore Hotel, only a few feet from the Grand Central Terminal, where he had arrived two and a half hours earlier. He had motored nine miles through New York streets to get there.

However apathetic the crowds on the street may have been, the 19,000 who packed the Garden left no doubt where they stood. With a speech aimed directly at them they ate it up and yelled for more.

Before the President arrived, the Liberal Party leaders had put on a show worthy of the three-ring circuses which have come to be expected from the followers of Henry Wallace. There was music and singing by Broadway stars and speeches by such individuals as former Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes; David Dubinsky, president of the ILGWU; A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and former New York Gov. Herbert H. Lehman. Ickes and Whitney a few months ago would hardly have been seen in the same block with President Truman.

Adolph Berle, early New Dealer and former Assistant Secretary of State, now chairman of the Liberal Party, presided.

Throughout the day, at each of his 10 speeches along the way here, the President brought cheers of delight from large crowds with confident predictions of victory at the polls November 2.

At Bridgeport, Conn., he said the Democratic Party would carry New York and he was on his way to New York City because "I want those people to get on the bandwagon."

At Providence he said, "The Republican pipe dream of victory next Tuesday is going up in smoke as 60 million voters prepare to go to the polls. . . ."

Massachusetts, he predicted, would go Democratic by "at least 100,000." He was just winding up a whirlwind tour of that State climaxed by a speech last night at Boston.

"From North to South, from East to West," he said, "I am getting reports that States are with us. The people's crusade is rolling along to victory, and it is going to leave the Republican politakers flat on their faces."

At New York tonight, the President rolled up into one speech before a Liberal Party rally all his previous jabs at Governor Dewey and let fly with them all at once. The crowd loved it.

Then, in a direct appeal to his audience, he reviewed his record on Palestine, which he termed "an important subject" not to be "resolved as a matter of politics during a political campaign."

"I have refused," he said, "to play politics with it."

Under his Administration he said, the United States first sought opening of Palestine to immigration, led in obtaining United Nations approval of Israel independence and first recognized the new state of Israel.

"I have never changed my position on Palestine or Israel," he said.

In his attack on the Republican record, Mr. Truman recalled the poverty of the depression years, the "Hoovervilles," and the street corner apple peddlers. The Republicans then, he said, "having made a complete and ruinous mess of this country . . . were turned out."

"The vigorous action which saved the Nation and restored our faith," he went on, "came with the Democrats, with the New Deal and with Franklin Roosevelt.

"We saved the banks. We saved industry. We saved the insurance companies and the railways."

He charged the Republican Party with endangering the Nation before World War II when "they came within a single vote in Congress of disbanding our Army three months before Pearl Harbor."

Once more, Mr. Truman charged Governor Dewey with inability to control his own party leaders when his convictions differ with theirs.

"Every time the Republican candidate looks at the program of the Democratic Party and says 'me too,' his party's record says, "nothing doing,'" the President said. "And his party's record speaks louder than he does."

At New Haven, Conn., where he spoke from a platform near his train, Mr. Truman charged Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) with "backing down" on his own Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill after "the real estate lobby went to work on Congress."

The President's trip by rail from Providence to New York was broken by rear platform speeches at New London, New Haven, Bridgeport and Norwalk, Conn. At each place, he renewed his appeal for a heavy vote as best assurance of a Democratic victory.

The President spent a strenuous day before his major address in Madison Square Garden. Leaving Boston at 6:45 a. m., he motored to Providence, making speeches along the way at Quincy, Brockton, Taunton and Fall River, Mass., and Warren, R. I., at each of which he spoke to enthusiastic crowds. At the shoe-manufacturing center of Brockton, where he was presented with a pair of shoes for himself and each member of his family, Mr. Truman said he learned that the factories were curtailing production because high prices had curtailed sales of shoes.

Barkley Takes Firm Stand for Democrats' Civil Rights Program

Chicago, Oct. 28 (AP).—Senator Alben Barkley today praised the Democratic Civil Rights program and accused Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of being "ashamed" of GOP candidates in Illinois and in Philadelphia.

The Democratic vice presidential nominee also said Dewey is "guilty of hypocrasy and double-talk" in "his gesture of nobility" toward Senator Revercomb, West Virginia Republican seeking reelection.

He said Dewey, the GOP nominee for President, "one day blames President Truman for failing to bring peace and the next day John Foster Dulles, his choice for Secretary of State, says Russia alone is responsible."

Barkley spoke before Cook County (Chicago) Democratic workers. He will speak tonight at a party rally in Rockford, Ill., and Friday noon before the Executives Club of Chicago.

Mentions Those on Ticket

He said that "unlike" Dewey in his Chicago Stadium speech Tuesday, "I'm not ashamed to mention those running on the State ticket with me, I'm not ashamed to have them meet me when I come to town and have them come up to my hotel room."

At the stadium Tuesday, Dewey shook hands with Gov. Dwight H. Green and Senator C. Wayland Brooks, both seeking reelection, and mentioned them in his salutatory remarks, but did not refer to them in his prepared radio speech.

"If the Governor of New York stands for good government," Barkley said, "I wonder why he skipped Springfield, Ill., [the State Capital], and skipped Philadelphia, where they have a scandalous Republican local government."

Oppose Poll Taxes

In West Virginia, Barkley said, both President Truman and Dewey asked Revercomb to remove from his displaced persons bill what Barkley said are "anti-Catholic and anti-Semitic" restrictions, but Revercomb refused. Barkley added:

"As a gesture of nobility, the Republicans let it be known that Dewey wasn't going to do anything to help elect Revercomb, but despite these pious protestations, Herbert Brownell, Dewey's campaign manager, announced the entire Dewey committee in West Virginia is supporting Revercomb. That's what I call hypocrisy and double-talk."

In one of his most direct statements on civil rights, Barkley said:

"I don't believe in poll taxes . . . they cannot be defended from the standpoint of democracy. The same is true of these other inequalities which the Democratic Party opposes and the Republican Congress made no effort to stop."

Warren Urges Unity, Regrets Bitterness

Bakersfield, Calif., Oct. 28 (AP).—GOP Vice Presidential Nominee Earl Warren campaigned in the agricultural San Joaquin Valley today, speaking in parks and from courthouse steps as neighbor and old resident.

Warren graduated from Bakersfield High School in 1908, a fact he mentioned in plugging the candidacy of an old school days chum, Representative Bertrand W. Gearhart, at Fresno.

Warren said, "This is no time for bitterness in an election campaign.

"This is no time to blame all the ills of our country on the other fellow. It is time to face our problems together as Americans.

"People everywhere are looking for leadership. They will take it where they find it, regardless of party," he said.

"The greatest bitterness in our American life today comes from within the Democratic Administration itself—not from any outside source."

This he said was demonstrated by the "splintering" of the Wallace faction to the left, the revolt of the Southern States Rights party on the right and the parade of Cabine members through the Administration.

"That," he asserted in a tone of rebuke, "isn't the kind of unity we need in America to solve our many problems today at home and abroad."

Tom Dewey Is Democrat

North Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 28 (AP).—Thomas E. Dewey is a registered Democrat.

Furthermore, he hasn't decided who he's going to vote for Tuesday.

"It all depends on what my wife talks me into," he told reporters.

This Thomas E. Dewey is a resident of North Hollywood and no relation to the New York Governor.

Dewey Offers Social Plan

demonstration for President Truman last night, over a shorter route, Police Superintendent Edward W. Fallon said.

Shortly after his arrival, Dewey called on the Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, Catholic Archbishop of Boston. Truman also visited the Archbishop Wednesday and a Truman aide quoted the prelate as saying: "I think you are making one of the greatest and most courageous fights in history in behalf of the people."

The Archbishop told newsmen today he wanted to congratulate Dewey as well. He said both Truman and Dewey are "putting up a great fight."

Dewey aides said the Governor spent 20 minutes chatting with the archbishop.

The Arena tonight was filled to its 8000 limit. Dewey-Warren supporters, bearing local club placards, paraded up and down the corridors in a floor demonstration before the Governor arrived.

It was just the start of a show, designed to rival one put on for Mr. Truman at Mechanics Hall last night.

A band marched through the hall and Frank Fay, minus his imaginary rabbit, "Harvey," made one of the preliminary speeches. Fay said he is going to vote for Dewey because of his stand against communism.

Dewey's entrance touched off a 3½-minute storm of applause, and a hoarse chorus of "We want Dewey."

Separate letter placards, spelling out "D-E-W-E-Y," were held high around the hall, horns blew and cowbells rattled. Dewey looked surprised, and said he will never call Boston "staid" again.

His jibes at Truman's handling of foreign policy and his promise to deal with Communists by keeping them "out in the open, in the light of day" got big hands. His social security outline was applauded 10 times.

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., applauded briefly when he predicted the Republican Congress will support the program. Then Martin looked ruefully at his friends in the press section who were smiling and grinned with them.

He spoke in the Boston arena following a modernized Paul Revere's ride across central Massachusetts.

To the crowds that cheered and even some who booed him in industrial Pittsfield, Springfield, Worcester, Framingham and Boston, he quoted the words of the Revolutionary patriots: "Give us back our liberties."

"We shall prove again," he said, "that men can live in freedom, that they can freely differ one from another; that they can change the leadership of their Government and do so without rancor or bitterness; that they can unite . . ."

Governor Dewey's call tonight for increased social security differed only from the President, who stumped Massachusetts yesterday, in lack of full specifications.

"A social security program that leaves so many people out in the cold is not good enough for America," he said.

Dewey said the "pittance" now paid the average retired worker or his widow "is not security enough—we must take action to bring about an increase of these benefits to our older people and their dependents."

The Governor failed to say how big an increase. President Truman asked the Eightieth Congress for a 50 per cent increase in benefits. Republican legislators, whom Dewey himself must ask to put through his own program, would have none of it. Mr. Truman charged it out part of it back.

Governor Dewey told his Boston audience "the same needs exist for a higher minimum wage and for a stronger and expanded public health service."

He failed again to specify. Mr. Truman recommended a minimum wage increase of from 40 to 75 cents an hour and has been denouncing Congress ever since because it failed to act. He asked health insurance in addition to expanded public health features, but most GOP legislators called it 'socialized medicine."

Mr. Dewey predicted his own program "will have the enthusiastic support of the Republican Congress."

"There will always be some who say these proposals are costly," he went on. "To them I say they are not costly compared with the gain of human happiness.

"There are others who will say they are visionary and impractical. To them I say they are part of the defense of our American way of life in a troubled and dangerous world.

"It shouldn't be said that our greater enterprise system cannot fully and properly care for the needs of the unemployed and the aged and provide a sound social progress for all our people."

Platform Reminded

By implication, at least, he reminded critics within his own party that everything he proposed is set forth in the Republican platform. He failed to go beyond that even to recommend Federal aid to education, on which the GOP platform hedged.

But right-wing elements within his own party, who registered shock at similar social security advances in his New Dealish 1944 Los Angeles speech, again gripped their seats in Boston.

"We have moved out of the old era when any of our people might be left to the reactionary philosophy of every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost," he told these. "We are moving into a new and far more promising era . . .

"For too many of our people, there is simply not enough in the family earnings to lay up for a rainy day. There is very little with which to pay the cost of sickness or injury or to meet the hazards of unemployment and old age."

He said the Social Security Act is all right so far as it goes, but it simply "does not go far enough."

Booed in Pittsfield

Moving into this closely contested presidential battleground, only 24 hours on the heels of Mr. Truman, Mr. Dewey made his Massachusetts debut to a crowd of 6000 at Pittsfield. Here persistent booing mingled with the cheers, but they came mostly from skylarking school children, released en masse from their classes to meet Dewey.

Appearing with him were Gov. Robert Bradford, in a tight race for reelection with former State Attorney General Paul A. Dever (D.). Also in the entourage were Senator Leverett Saltonstall, who has only token Democratic opposition, and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, one of the Governor's campaign advisers.

Dewey put in a good plug for Bradford and Saltonstall at each stop and praised Lodge as "one of the most able men in Government." He said Lodge, as his adviser, helps "straighten me out."

Witches and Ghosts Rounded up for Halloween Parties

Halloween witches and ghosts are being rounded up this year to appear at parties and dances rather than on the streets, where youngsters might be tempted into trouble while out looking for the eerie characters.

Numerous organizations in Greater Washington have arranged programs for today, Saturday and Monday, when youngsters, in the traditional Halloween garb, can duck for apples, participate in contests and games, and enjoy a gleeful but undestructive Halloween.

In addition, the Police Department has been ordered to take special precaution to prevent deliberate vandalism. Members of the force have been instructed to permit innocent parties or pranks, but to prevent wilful damage to property or the sounding of false fire alarms. Commanding officers have been ordered to use as many of their men as necessary to keep things orderly.

The American Automobile Association has urged that more festivities be held indoors and has emphasized dangers that may result from tampering with automobiles.

Blue Plate Mayonnaise

ASPARAGUS MAIN DISH
Quick Cheese and Bacon Sauce
Easiest sauce ever . . . best-tasting too! The secret? Fresh, Fresh Blue Plate Mayonnaise
SAUCE: ½ cup Blue Plate Mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons milk, ½ cup grated or chopped cheese (less if cheese is very sharp)
Blend milk with Blue Plate Mayonnaise, add cheese, and heat in double boiler until cheese is melted, stirring occasionally. That's all you do for wonderfully smooth sauce, seasoned just right! Blue Plate Mayonnaise gives creamy smoothness, plus its special blend of fine spices and seasoning. While sauce cooks, prepare rest of main dish: Heat 1 No. 2 can asparagus. Fry 2 slices bacon, drain, and crumble. Broil 8 thick tomato slices. Arrange each serving of asparagus on 2 tomato slices. Top with sauce, sprinkle with crumbled bacon. Serves 4.

Blue Plate Peanut Butter
Smooth—to the bottom of the jar! Does not separate
PEANUT BUTTER MUFFINS, NEW-STYLE
Fluffy, light—and oh! Blue Plate's "fresh-roasted" peanut flavor . . . good!
1 cup sifted flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tsps. double-action baking powder, 2 tbsps. sugar, 3 tbsps. Blue Plate Peanut Butter, 1 egg, ½ cup milk, 1 tbsp. Blue Plate Margarine, melted
Sift dry ingredients together. Work in Blue Plate Peanut Butter with a fork, until it is in small bits. (Blue Plate Peanut Butter is rich in protein and vitamins too. Youngsters can spread it easily. And how they love Blue Plate's real "fresh-roasted" peanut flavor!) Beat egg, add milk, pour into flour mixture. Add melted margarine; stir just to dampen. Batter will be rather thin. Fill greased muffin tins two-thirds full. Bake in hot oven (400°F) 25 min. 6 medium-size muffins.

Blue Plate Preserves and Jellies
Old-Fashioned Flavor!
FLOATING ISLAND ROYALE
New glamour for an old favorite—with sparkling Blue Plate Strawberry preserves
2 tbsps. Blue Plate Margarine, 3 tbsps. sugar, ¼ tsp. salt, 3 eggs, separated, 1½ cups milk, scalded, ½ tsp. vanilla, 3 tbsps. Blue Plate Strawberry Preserves, 3 tbsps. sugar
Cream 3 tbsps. sugar, salt, and Margarine together. Add egg yolks, and beat well. Gradually stir in hot milk. Cook in double boiler, stirring constantly, until custard thickens very slightly and coats the spoon. Cool. Stir in vanilla; chill. Shortly before serving, beat egg whites stiff with rest of sugar. Fold in Blue Plate Strawberry Preserves, place in serving dishes. (The Blue Plate People select the finest strawberries grown—and give them the loving care you'd use at home.) Add custard to make "floating islands." Dessert for 4.

Poll Gives Dewey 19, Truman 10 States

survey, today's report also finds Truman gaining a State at the expense of Governor Thurmond, the States' Rights nominee. Two weeks ago the institute showed Thurmond was substantially ahead in Louisiana; today the President holds a nine-point advantage over the Dixiecrat.

In Louisiana and a number of other Southern States, at the time this poll was taken, there was still confusion in voters' minds as to designation and position of the candidates on the ballots. For example, Thurmond has been given the traditional rooster symbol of the Democratic ticket in Louisiana, while Truman will run under a less familiar designation. No votes for Truman are shown in today's report on Alabama, since he is officially not on the ballot, although some voters may write in his name.

Today's figures on such States as Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi and South Carolina reflect voter opinion as institute interviewers found it in mid-October. Because of confusion as to candidate designation on the ballots and ballot distribution, these figures are not in any sense to be considered a forecast of the outcome of Tuesday's voting in those States.

Political observers in the next few days will give attention to determining the probable voter turnout next Tuesday. Three indications have appeared in recent weeks to throw some light on that problem.

The first is the decline in registration of New York City voters, which in past elections has served as a good index to the national turnout. If New York's registration remains a reliable index this year, a smaller proportion of the Nation's eligible voters will cast ballots in the coming election than in any presidential election in recent years. The figures point to a turnout of less than 47 million, or only about half the potential voting population in the country.

On the other hand, Minneapolis registration figures, which have recently commanded attention as another good index to national turnout, point to a slightly higher figure. Sidney Goldish, editor of the Minnesota Poll, declares that if the 1948 registration remains as accurate a guide this year as in the past six elections the national turnout will be about 49,700,000 or 200,000 less than the record set in 1940.

A third estimate is that of 51 million, made by the Associated Press in its regular State-by-State survey of probable turnout.

Political sentiment throughout the Nation, as found by the institute in its semifinal State-by-State roundup, is pictured in the following tables, the number of electoral votes being in parentheses:

3 UMW Leaders Indorse Dewey

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—West Virginia's 120,000 coal miners, who will take the day off to vote next Tuesday, were asked by their leaders today to support Gov. Thomas E. Dewey as "the lesser of two evils."

William Blizzard, veteran president of United Mine Workers' District 17, issued a press conference statement which he said could be considered a flat indorsement of the Republican presidential nominee.

At the same time, the UMW leadership urged the miners to vote for Democrats for the United States Senate, Governor and other State officers.

This means the men are being asked to split their tickets, Blizzard said.

"The United Mine Workers feel more kindly toward Dewey because he hasn't come into West Virginia to support Revercomb," Blizzard told the press conference.

He referred to Senator Chapman Revercomb, Republican incumbent who is locked in a pivotal race with with Democrat Matthew M. Neely, a former Senator. The West Virginia seat is one of those involved in the Republican drive to retain Senate control.

Blizzard was joined in his statement by the presidents of two other UMW districts. The three jurisdictions cover all but a few of the State's coal diggers.

The union has been working on a get-out-the-vote drive for weeks. Miners will not work next Tuesday.

Reporters asked Blizzard if Union President John L. Lewis knew in advance of today's action.

"We don't usually do anything without the boss knowing about it," he replied.

Lewis urged the miners to vote for the late Wendell Willkie in 1940 and Dewey in 1944. The State went Democratic in both elections. The registered Democrats this year top the Republicans by about 200,000.

Art and Science

New Cabinet Posts Pledged By Wallace

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Henry Wallace tonight promised appointment of secretaries of art and science with Cabinet rank "when the Progressive Party puts its first President into the White House."

Wallace said in a speech prepared for the meeting of the National Council of Arts, Sciences and Professions that he was speaking "as a scientist" because "I am, by training and occupation, an agricultural scientist."

Saying that big business fears artists, scientists and intellectuals because "ours is the search for truth—theirs is the propagation of the lie," Wallace added:

"It is no accident that the two old parties of monopoly have no program for the integration of culture and science into American life.

"It is also no accident that the Progressive Party does have such a program.

"When the Progressive Party puts its first President into the White House, one of his first jobs is going to be the creation of a department of science and a department of art, with the heads of those departments right up in the Cabinet."

GOP Runaway Is Predicted By Brownell

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Herbert Brownell, jr., GOP campaign manager, yesterday predicted that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will win the presidential race with a popular majority of more than three million votes and an electoral college ratio of four to one.

The manager for the ticket headed by Dewey and Gov. Earl Warren of California confidently told a press conference President Truman would carry only four States outside the South. He declined to name the States, but said his predictions were based on surveys including some made two days ago.

Brownell also predicted that the Republicans would at least retain their 51-45 majority in the Senate, although not necessarily in the present State alignment, and that the GOP would pick up from 11 to 20 additional House seats.

Dewey will carry at least one Southern State, Brownell told reporters. Although he refused to name the State, it was generally believed the reference was to Virginia which was included in the list of 11 Southern States he named.

Saying he was "elated" to see the Republican Party break into the Solid South, Brownell predicted that the 1948 campaign may well mark the beginning of a real two-party system there.

The Dewey campaign manager said he was leaving Washington yesterday for New York where he will remain. After the election, Brownell said he expects to return to his Manhattan law office.

Governor Dewey, he said, will make one of the most important speeches of the campaign in Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

Meanwhile, Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) returning from a speaking tour in Virginia and North Carolina told a news conference that the GOP will certainly carry at least one of these States and possibly both.

Brewster charged that Communist influences in the United States Government have been trying to discredit the Chinese regime of Chiang Kia-shek, and said these influences have been "surprisingly successful."

"China is on the verge of dissolution and communization," Brewster declared. "That may well prove to be one of the tragic errors of the foreign policy of our times."

The China aid issue has been developing as a GOP campaign issue on the ground that the present Administration has treated the Communist threat in the Pacific area far too lightly.

The Republican National Committee reported yesterday that it has spent $2,007,287 in the current campaign. It said it had received cash contributions of $1,883,516, leaving it with a deficit of $123,771.

Write-in Votes In Md. Explained

Baltimore, Oct. 28 (AP).—Attorney General Hall Hammond said he had found there is much confusion among some Maryland election officials about the status of write-in votes for the States' Rights Democratic ticket.

So he wrote a formal letter to all elections boards last night reiterating his opinion that:

1. Writing in the names of Govs. J. Strom Thurmond and Fielding Wright on the ballot would constitute votes for the States' Rights candidates only as two of the eight presidential electors for Maryland.

2. That if they received more votes than the other candidates they would be two of the eight electors from Maryland, and the other six would be taken from the slate having the next highest total.

Clark Aides Take Slaughter Case Before Jury Again

By the United Press

Justice Department attorneys appeared before a Federal grand jury here yesterday in connection with an inquiry into activities of former Representative Roger C. Slaughter (D., Mo.).

Slaughter, a bitter foe of the Administration, was "purged" in the 1946 Missouri Democratic primary when President Truman personally entered the campaign on behalf of his opponent. The former Congressman later returned here as representative of several grain interests.

He charged recently that President Truman had ordered an investigation of his activities as a political move. Slaughter said his work here was solely in the capacity of a counsel for the grain interests, and added that as such he was not required to register as a lobbyist.

Nugent Dodds and Arthur F. Callahan, special assistants to Attorney General Tom C. Clark, appeared before the grand jury yesterday.

It was the second time Justice Department attorneys had gone before a grand jury in the matter. A previous jury completed its work without taking any action.

Local Issues To Be Voted on In Maryland

Baltimore, Oct. 28 (AP).—More than 50 purely local measures—remote from the current of national issues, but close to the everyday life of many Marylanders—will be submitted to the voters next week.

Calvert County voters will determine whether public school buses should furnish transportation for parochial students also.

St. Marys County will vote on a $350,000 bond issue to modernize its schools.

Anne Arundel and Howard Counties both will vote on a proposal to make raffles legal, for the benefit of fraternal, civic and veterans' and charitable organizations.

Howard County, further, would require licenses for such events and contraptions.

Dorchester Counties have an opportunity to decide between a liquor dry county or a qualified "wet" one. A referendum there provides for a county liquor dispensary system. Beer now is being legally sold.

Cecil County, with Elkton—Maryland's famed "Gretna Green"—as its center, is deciding on an act to prohibit the soliciting of marriages.

Centreville, on the Eastern Shore, is seeking its citizens' okay to dispose of its muhicipal light plant, either by lease, sale, or connection with other power sources.

And Montgomery County voters are to decide on a seven-million-dollar loan act. Of that sum, five million dollars would be earmarked for schools, $1,500,000 for roads and bridges, and the remainder for miscellaneous purposes.

In Anne Arundel County, a key local question is the proposed appointment of a county business manager. The same referendum, if adopted, would abolish the offices of budget supervisor and county roads engineer.

Allegany Countians will determine whether to use voting machines next time.

Cumberland citizens are to vote on a $150,000 playground loan. Funkstown and Fairmont Heights voters will ballot on municipal improvement referenda.

Prince Georges County plans to impose a fire tax of 10 cents a $100 of assessed property, the proceeds to be distributed among volunteer companies.

La Plata is asking its citizens to pass on a proposed city limit expansion.

Preschool Male More Emotional, Psychologist Says

Chicago, Oct. 28 (AP).—The male child is more emotional than the female, a child psychologist said today.

Dr. John E. Anderson of the University of Minnesota, said his conclusion was based on studies of preschool children.

"Two factors may be involved: (1) the amount of social pressure placed upon the male to inhibit overt emotional expression and thus conform to a role, and (2) modifications and changes in emotionality, which accompanies the maturing of sex with all the associated glandular changes involved."

Dr. Anderson said he thought it was "possible" that adult men are more emotional than women, but that "we need to know more about how social pressures affect the adult emotions."

Father Pleads Guilty in Birth Overcelebration

A young father, whose celebration of the birth of his new daughter led to trouble, yesterday pleaded guilty in Municipal Court to charges of driving while drunk and simple assault.

He is Randolph Eugene Jacobsen, 24, of the Kennedy-Warren Apartments, 3133 Connecticut ave. nw. Judge Thomas D. Quinn referred his case to the probation office and set November 12 as the date for sentencing.

Charges of leaving after colliding and driving on a one-way street were nolle prossed against Jacobsen.

Jacobsen was accused of snarling up rush-hour traffic in Rock Creek pkwy. and striking Park Policeman Frank E. Papuga on September 8, the day his daughter was born at George Washington University Hospital.

Conviction Upheld On Old Dominion Railroad Trestle

An Alexandria Corporation Court jury last night upheld the Police Court conviction of Arthur F. Campbell and the Washington and Old Dominion Railroad for violating city zoning ordinances.

Both Campbell, part owner of the Potomac Coal Co., 2400 block of Randolph ave., and the railroad were fined the minimum of $10 following the verdict. The lower court had levied fines of $50 against the defendants.

The charges were brought after Campbell made repairs to a trestle leased by him from the railroad over which coal cars pass for unloading. The trestle, located in a residential district, could not be, under a city ordinance, restored if more than 50 per cent destroyed. The city claimed the repairs made more than a 50 per cent restoration.

W. Va. Vote Fraud Proof Is Reported

Chairman Jenner (R., Ind.) of the Senate Elections subcommittee said yesterday investigators in West Virginia have found proof of "widespread" buying and selling of votes in some precincts in the 1946 election.

The committee is investigating allegations of fraud and irregularities in the contested election of Senator Kilgore (D., W. Va.) The contest was brought by Thomas Sweeney, Republican, who lost to Kilgore by 3534 votes in the official count.

The committee has asked its investigators to keep an eye on the voting in West Virginia next week.

Jenner said it "seems that the practice of paying some of the voters to vote in some of the precincts has been going on for such a long time that those people have completely lost sight of the fact that practice is illegal, not only under State law but under the Federal law."

He made the demand in a telegram to Jenner.

The investigators were sent into Texas after former Gov. Coke Stevenson complained there were irregularites in the runoff primary in which he lost the Democratic senatorial nomination to Representative Lyndon Johnson.

Myers told Jenner the investigators "have lent themselves and their committee status to an organized effort to use this investigation for the purpose of influencing the outcome of the forthcoming Texas election in favor of the Republican nominee for the Senate, or when that fails, to lay the groundwork for stealing the election and negating the will of the people of Texas."

Both Parties Blamed

Chief Counsel B. Nelson Deranian of the committee told reporters the vote buying in West Virginia was practiced by both major parties. "It so happens the dominant party, the Democrats, were in a position to do a little more," he added.

Jenner in a statement said the subcommittee should "transmit to the Justice Department all evidence in our files of violations of the Federal law for the department's appropriate action."

Deranian said the price of votes ranged up to $10.

"A little whisky is given now and then," he added, for a "warming up effect on election day."

Texas Step Protested

Meanwhile Senator Myers (D., Pa.) said the assignment of Senate Elections Committee investigators to Texas is part of an effort to influence election results and demanded that they be recalled.

Rights Plan Said to Help U. S. Abroad

President Truman's stand on civil rights may have an important influence on America's future supply of manganese, a metal vital to our national defense.

Authority for this statement is Melvin D. Hildreth, Democratic National Committeeman for the District of Columbia, who told a luncheon meeting of the Junior Board of Commerce yesterday that "the real purpose of the civil rights program was to bring to the dark-skinned peoples of the world an expression of sympathy for their aspirations from the United States."

Our two chief sources of manganese are Russia and India, Hildreth explained. If Russia "succeeds in India by Communist infiltration," he said, our Indian supply will be stopped, especially in event of war.

The President's civil rights program is a powerful influence and has already made an "amazing" difference in our favor in the attitude of the people of India, according to Hildreth.

Another speaker supporting the Democrats at the Hotel Burlington luncheon was James E. Fitzsimmons, 532 20th st. nw., a student veteran, who praised the Administration's stand on low-priced housing and a curb on high prices.

Administration Didn't Cooperate, Vandenberg Says

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 28 (U.P.).—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) lashed out at the Democratic Administration tonight for a "sullen lack of cooperation" with the Republican Eightieth Congress.

The Republican foreign policy spokesman voiced his first criticism of the Democratic Administration in a radio address. It was his first campaign speech in support of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's presidential candidacy.

"I deplore this sullen lack of executive cooperation," Vandenberg said, "when Republicans and Democrats alike have joined to stop politics at the water's edge."

Vandenberg called the cold war the "top problem of the hour" and declared that the United States must seek peace through "collective security against aggressors."

Whitehead Fears GOP Victory as Omen for 1949

Radford, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—Delegate Robert Whitehead tonight brought up the specter of a Republican gubernatorial victory in 1949 as a means of persuading Virginia's Democratic leaders to call off what he termed a sit-down strike on the national Democratic Party.

"Let us not be deceived," said the straight-ticket chairman in an address to a political rally here. "A victory in Virginia in the presidential election in 1948 will only whet the appetites of the Republicans for victory in the gubernatorial election in 1949.

"We should not forget that the Republican victory in 1928 was followed in 1929 by the most determined effort to capture the Governor's office that was ever made in Virginia since 1921."

Thurmond Hits Civil Rights

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 28 (AP).—Presidential Candidate J. Strom Thurmond said tonight every vote cast for the States Rights Democrats "will be a testimonial that America does not want the misnamed civil rights program of Truman, Dewey, and Wallace."

"Those who want to resist this program may do so only by voting the States Rights Democratic ticket," the South Carolina Governor said in a speech prepared for delivery here.

The States Rights Party candidate is making a three-day swing into Texas in his party's bid for the State's 23 electoral votes.

Thurmond said here Republican Presidential Candidiate Tom Dewey "hand-picked the man who wrote the FEPC bill now pending in the Senate."

"Senator Ives of New York wrote that bill, and whether he knew it or not, it is patterned after a law forced upon Soviet Russia by Stalin in 1920," he added.

Thurmond said "the same Governor Dewey who is sponsoring the FEPC is the man who bitterly fought the efforts of Southern Governors to set aside the practice of charging as much as 39 per cent more to move freight out of the South than out of the North."

Sen. Russell Pledges To Vote for Truman

Atlanta, Oct. 28 (AP).—Russell (D., Ga.), leader in the Southern fight against President Truman's civil rights program, pledged today to vote for Mr. Truman in the general election.

Arlington Democrats Fill Vacancy

Arlington's Democratic Executive Committee last night appointed Miss Winona Payne as representative from Rosslyn precinct to fill the vacancy created by resignation of Mrs. Robert Smallwood.

Committee Chairman Harrison Mann said there had been no resolution asking committeemen to support the straight Democratic ticket.

Last week, the Fairfax Democratic Committee had resolved to toss out any of its members who refused to support President Truman in the election. Resignations were promptly tendered by two members but were not accepted by the chairman pending a ruling by the District Democratic Committee. No further action the matter back to the county has been taken.

Fascist Flags Unfurled

Rome, Italy, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—Black Fascist flags were unfurled at scattered places in Italy today and Rome police found several small bombs as neo-Fascists celebrated the twenty-sixth anniversary of the late Benito Mussolini's march on Rome.

Sift together in a large bowl:
2¼ cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons double action baking powder (3¼ teaspoons single action)
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Add:
½ cup Snowdrift (Emulsorized—quick-blending!)
¾ cup milk

Mix until all flour is dampened. Beat 2 minutes. If you beat by hand and take "rests," count beating time only. (If you use electric mixer, set it at "low speed," and scrape bowl and beaters frequently.)

Add:
2 eggs
¼ cup milk

Beat 1 minute. Turn into 2 greased 8-inch layer pans, with bottoms lined with thin plain paper. Bake in moderate oven (375°) about 25 minutes. Cool on cake racks 5 minutes; turn out of pans, invert and cool. Put layers together with Raisin Cream Icing.

RAISIN CREAM ICING

2 tablespoons Snowdrift
2 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups confectioners' sugar, firmly packed
2 tablespoons warm cream
½ cup raisins
1 square unsweetened chocolate, shaved

One Union Bolts West Coast Strike

San Francisco, Oct. 28 (U.P.)—over a union demand for a 15 per cent wage increase. The company offered an 8 per cent increase.

Twenty-five union men, including two union officials, were cited for contempt of court yesterday for violating a court order against mass picketing. All were ordered to answer the citations Saturday by Judge H. E. Nichols.

San Francisco, Oct. 28 (U.P.)—CIO marine engineers bolted the maritime strike front today and reached a separate agreement with West Coast shipowners in an action that could end one phase of the 57-day Pacific shipping tieup.

The agreement was announced by Federal Conciliator Omar Hoskins at the end of a final session of week-long negotiations here. It is subject to ratification by the membership of the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association at a meeting tonight.

"If the members accept the terms of the proposed contract that's the end of the strike as far as the MEBA is concerned," Hoskins said.

The engineers make up a good portion of the 16,000 dry cargo seamen, cooks and stewards, firemen and radio operators included in the 28,000 workers who walked out September 2 at the expiration of an 80-day injunction that had stalled off the strike since mid-June.

Terms of the settlement were not announced.

But whether the remaining four striking unions, including the powerful CIO Longshoremen's and Cooks and Stewards Unions, would allow engineers to pass the picket lines and man idle vessels was not immediately known.

At the time of the walkout nearly two months ago the MEBA and the shipowners had already reached an agreement on wages, hours and other issues. But employers later said they would not negotiate further with unions whose officers have failed to sign non-Communist affidavits.

Officers of the marine engineers and the marine firemen have been the only units of the strike front who have agreed to sign or have already signed, the anti-Red oaths.

21 More Pickets Cited for Contempt

Rome, Ga., Oct. 28 (AP).—Twenty-one additional citations for contempt of court were issued today against employes of the Celanese Corp., for violation of a court ban against mass picketing.

Several hundred pickets appeared again today at the plant where a strike has been in progress many weeks. A Southern Railway engine hauling empty cars into the company yards was halted by pickets.

Strikers had been permitting freight cars to enter and leave the plant under an agreement stipulating the time they operated.

The strike started 75 days ago

Chicago Papers, ITU Resume Negotiations

Chicago, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—Contract negotiations were resumed today between Chicago newspapers and the striking AFL Typographical Union.

The negotiations were the first in the 11-month strike since Federal Judge Luther M. Swygert on October 14 found the international union guilty of civil contempt of court.

Swygert found that the union had failed to abide by a previous injunction, restricting it from engaging in unfair labor practices in its dealings with newspaper publishers.

Capital Records Firm Studies Plan to End Petrillo Ban

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—An agreement for lifting the Petrillo recording ban was all set tonight to go into effect on word of approval from the only major firm that hasn't yet given its answer.

The firm is Capitol Records, Inc., one of the big four makers of phonograph records. A meeting of Capitol directors to consider the proposed new five-year recording contract was called late today at the company's Hollywood headquarters and an answer is expected tomorrow.

Other major companies and the AFL-American Federation of Musicians already have approved the agreement.

However, the agreement will be submitted to the Justice Department in Washington for review as to the legality of its royalty provisions under the Taft-Hartley Act.

The new contract, not yet signed, is said to call for payment of royalties for a union welfare fund to be administered by an impartial trustee.

The Taft-Hartley Law prohibits a royalty arrangement like the one in the old contract, under which the money was paid directly to the union which had sole direction of its spending.

Coal-Digging Machine May Triple Output

New Lexington, Ohio, Oct. 28 (AP).—A new coal-digging machine that can gouge out 5 tons and load it on a truck in 2½ minutes held promise today of tripling the best output of the Nation's mines.

Named the "Colmol," this giant gadget chewed into a coal seam at the Sunnyhill Coal Co. strip mine, 2 miles north of New Lexington, yesterday in its first public demonstration.

With hydroelectric power turning eight huge drills and conveyor belts removing and loading the coal at the rear, the Colmol mined 20 tons of coal in less than 50 minutes.

Its output apparently is limited only by the necessity of moving the 26-ton machine and the time used in getting trucks to the conveyor belt.

First the machine loaded a 5-ton truck with coal in 2½ minutes. That's the daily output of the average miner working without machinery.

In less than an hour, the machine had mined almost as much coal as the average miner working with ordinary machinery gets out in a working day.

The "Colmol" is 4 feet high and travels on caterpillar treads. It is powerful enough to chew its own corridors into a hillside. The drills or "screwheads" turning different directions on the front of the machine look like giant wood screws with fingers that chew up the coal.

The conveyor belt operates below the turning screws, which toss the broken coal downward for its journey to a following truck.

The Colmol needs but one operator, but Sunnyhill employs a guide to inform the driver where to turn.

The Sunnyhill Coal Co. has been working for two years on the Colmol.

The machine has been tested in deep shaft mines in Pennsylvania and West Virginia as well as the Sunnyhill strip mine used for yesterday's demonstration.

Snyder said he expected to go into production of the Colmol soon.

Morgenthau Calls Israel Bulwark Against Reds

Tel Aviv, Israel, Oct. 28 (U.P.)—Henry Morganthau, jr., American chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, said today the Jews of Israel want peace, "but would rather die fighting than give up the Negev or Jerusalem."

Despite a sharp protest from a Communist newspaper's correspondent, Morgenthau described Israel as a "bulwark of democracy against the spread of Communism," and added that "a dollar invested here by my Government is better than hundreds of millions going down the drain in a not far distant country."

here, will again appear for a height test.

Pete may find some comfort in the experience of 5-foot, 5½-inch Inspector Milton D. Smith, assistant superintendent of police.

The inspector was turned down 30 years ago when he first applied for the force. But because he had established a reputation as an expert in traffic and traffic safety problems, the District Commissioners were persuaded to order a waiver of the height requirement. Thus with the passage of years, the diminutive Smith became a big man in the department.

Directed Verdict Asked for Doctor in $100,000 Jillson Damage Suit

The District Court jury trial of the $100,000 damage suit brought by an attractive divoreee against a Washington doctor yesterday was recessed until Monday after the defense moved for a directed verdict of acquittal.

In the suit, Mrs. Kathryn Sinclair Jillson, 39, of 1841 R st. nw., charges that Dr. Frank S. Caprio without just reason caused her to be admitted to Gallinger Hospital for psychopathic treatment for 12 days in 1945.

In a surprise move, Mrs. Jillson's attorney, Jean Boardman, called Dr. Caprio to the stand yesterday, then rested his case after the doctor's testimony. There was no cross-examination by Defense Attorney H. Mason Welch, who asked for the directed verdict.

Dr. Caprio testified that he was called to the Jillson apartment the night of January 25, 1945, by Maj. George Jacob Jillson, who said Mrs. Jillson had threatened to kill him and their child.

When he arrived there, Mrs. Jillson was distracted, at times very excited then sullenly silent, and her speech was disjointed, Caprio said. He added that her hair was disheveled and her appearance untidy.

"From what her husband had told me about the threats and from her actions and appearance, I believed she was mentally ill and in need of hospitalization. I told police that when they were called," Dr. Caprio said.

Last March, Mrs. Jillson was awarded a divorce from Major Jillson on ground of cruelty and was given custody of their two children.

DDT Work Wins Swiss Nobel Prize

Stockholm, Oct. 28 (U.P.) — Dr. Paul Mueller, a shy, reticent Swiss research chemist, was awarded the Nobel Prize in physiology and medicine tonight for his discovery that DDT was a powerful insect killer.

Dr. Mueller

The prize carries a $44,400 cash award.

Mueller, 49, has worked in chemistry since his teens. In 1942, while testing chemicals for their insecticidal properties, Mueller discovered that DDT was "amazingly effective" against the typhus-carrying louse.

His discovery is credited with saving the lives of thousands of soldiers and civilians.

The chemical itself had been synthesized and reported on by German scientists, but they did not realize its value. Mueller was unaware of the German development, and did his work independently.

His employers, the J. R. Geigy Co., Basle, Switzerland, notified the United States of Mueller's discovery, and subsequently an American Army plane flew Mueller and two other Geigy scientists to the United States.

The Geigy company sent 100 kilograms of the chemical to its New York office. Tests made by the United States Department of Agriculture found DDT effective against many types of insects.

Technically DDT is dichlorodiphenyl-tri-chloroethane.

Spain to Name New Charge d'Affaires Here

Madrid, Spain, Oct. 28 (U.P.)—A usually well-informed source said tonight that Jose Felix Lequerica, former foreign minister, would soon be named charge d'affaires in Washington.

The informant said that German Baraibar, the present charge, would be named consul general in New York.

It was assumed that when normal diplomatic relations were resumed, Lequerica would become ambassador.

Guild to Vote On Rejoining CIO Council

The Washington Newspaper Guild will hold a referendum among its members to decide whether or not to reaffiliate with the District of Columbia Industrial Union Council (CIO).

In theory, the Industrial Union Council represents the views of the CIO unions in the area, but only a portion of area unions are actually members. Eight years ago, the Washington Newspaper Guild, which has about 1000 members, withdrew from the council, charging it was dominated by "left-wing unions."

At a meeting Wednesday night in the District Building board room, guild members were notified that several other "right-wing" unions were planning to come into the council and join a right-wing minority there, to attempt to end council domination by the "left wing."

After discussion, the guild voted to submit the question of reaffiliation to its full membership. At the same time, an overwhelming majority of guild members at the Wednesday meeting stated in a motion that they believed the guild should reaffiliate.

Oyster Plan Termed Plot Against Bay

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 28 (AP).—The Tidewater Fisheries Department today approved a $125,000 oyster-planting program for next year after Commissioner George T. Harrison charged it was a plan "to deplete Chesapeake Bay."

Chairman John E. Clark and Commissioner Allen A. Sollers voted for the oyster fund allotments prepared by Shellfish Culturist Ralph C. Hammer.

Harrison opposed, declaring $8150 earmarked for the bay is not enough.

"I'm not blaming you, Ralph," Harrison said. "This whole thing was done to eliminate the bay."

Hammer explained the money was divided according to the average number of oystermen working in each county over a five-year period.

The allocation left $25,000 as a "sinking fund" to be applied where needed as seed and shell planting operations progress.

Clark called it an "equitable plan."

Hammer said he followed a policy established last year, but Harrison said "it hasn't been my policy and still isn't."

Telling The Truth

Senator McMahon has come forward with a novel plan for counteracting the effect of the iron curtain. Let the United Nations, he suggests, press for the right to erect broadcasting stations and publish and distribute newspapers in each of the Big Five nations, including Russia. The purpose of these media would be to reach the public with factual accounts of the speeches and recommendations and decisions in the United Nations. A good example of the condition Senator McMahon hopes to combat may be seen in the Stalin blast against the United States, Britain and France over the Berlin issue. Stalin's words will be reported in full in Western nations. But there is little hope that the facts of the Berlin dispute in the United Nations will go beyond the Kremlin in Russia.

Senator McMahon entertains no illusions as to the probable Russian response to his proposal. Even if the General Assembly decided to adopt it, the Russians could thwart it by simply refusing to admit U. N. personnel. But U. N. broadcasts would be useful outside of Russia, especially in areas subjected to Soviet propaganda. The broadcasting stations and newspapers would be the official organs of the United Nations rather than the instruments of any one nation. They would have a powerful effect in demonstrating the degree of Russian intransigence in the U. N., and hence in rallying world opinion. And there is at least a possibility that a glimmering of the facts would filter through the iron curtain. There are many obstacles to such a plan in practice, not the least of which is the cost of operating such facilities to an international organization already restricted by a meager budget. But the idea is certainly worth the attention of the General Assembly, which, in the present session, is discussing freedom of information.

Political ERP

Amid the ancient ceremony and refurbished splendor of monarchical tradition, Britain's King on Tuesday plumped for the latest thing in socialism. Speaking with the voice of George VI but expressing the words of his Labor Ministers, he told Parliament that a bill to nationalize the British iron and steel industry would be introduced in the new session. And what he said has come to pass. The bill was put on the calendar the very next day and will, in due course, proceed to passage by the House of Commons and defeat by the House of Lords. Eventually—barring more Labor defections like that of Ivor Thomas—it will became law over the Lords' opposition. But even the curtailed parliamentary procedure also being pressed by the Labor government will delay final passage probably until 1950. Another year, more or less, will be needed to get up administrative machinery before the government can actually take the industry over.

In short, as Administrator Paul Hoffman said in London, there will be ample time for the ECA to "take a look" at the possible effect of this measure on British economic recovery. Last May Mr. Hoffman addressed himself specifically to this question in testimony before the Senate Appropriations Committee:

> "If, for example," he said, "a plan came to our mission for investing dollars in modernizing the steel industry, and if at the same time the British government announced a plan to nationalize the steel industry, we would have to decide whether, under those conditions that investment would promote recovery. My guess is that it would not, simply because . . . in a period of transition you do not get results. We feel that we have to get quick results from this investment."

In the next breath Mr. Hoffman declared, "I do not think influencing government politically is our job . . . we are simply regarding these problems from the standpoint of . . . recovery." Wednesday in London he said much the same thing: "What Britain does about the steel industry is her business. What we do with our recovery dollars is our business," he said.

Actually any decision to withhold aid because steel production would probably drop off during the transition to nationalized status would inevitably be a form of political remote control. There is no way around it. The political implications of ERP are fully recognized in the assurance that aid to Italy or France would promptly stop if either of them went Communist. Socialism is not communism, of course, and the Labor government's program of nationalization seems to have the mandate of majority Britain. However, we think Mr. Hoffman was right in emphasizing the criterion of recovery; that is the important question for the United States. While this country has no desire to interfere in British political decisions, we should be less than candid if we denied all concern about them.

Gideon's Progress

"We have stopped the cold war in its tracks."—Mr. Henry Wallace to an audience in Madison Square Garden, New York, October 26, 1948.

And they said to one another, "Who hath done this thing?" And when they inquired and asked, they said, "Gideon, the son of Joash hath done this thing."—Judges 6:29.

"Everywhere in the Nation the People's Party will force the two degenerate parties to unite outwardly as they have long been united inwardly."—Mr. Wallace, supra.

Then all the Midianites and the Amalekites and the children of the East gathered together, and went over and pitched in the Valley of Jezreel. But the spirit of the Lord came upon Gideon and he blew a trumpet."—Judges 6:33-4.

"We have smoked out the foul bipartisan plans of Wall Street and its oil to betray the patriots of Israel."—Mr. Wallace, supra.

And the three companies blew the trumpets and brake the pitchers, and held the lamps in their left hands, and the trumpets in their right hands to blow withal; and they cried, "The sword of the Lord and of Gideon." And they stood every man in his place around the camp; and all the host ran and cried and fled.—Judges, 7:20-21.

"Because of us, the Bill of Rights was not murdered by those infamous agents of reaction, Mundt and Nixon."—Mr. Wallace, supra.

And he took the elders of the city, and thorns of the wilderness, and briers, and with them he taught the men of Succoth.—Judges, 8:16.

Because of the Progressive Party and our magnificent allies in the churches of America, the big brass has been halted in its attempt to saddle American youth with universal military training.—Mr. Wallace, supra.

The youth drew not his sword.—Judges, 8:20.

"Mr. Marcantonio did not appear . . . While party underlings dashed about in frantic attempts to locate the missing luminary . . . Mr. Wallace went on, determinedly cheerful. He said he had a message from Mr. Marcantonio. 'Greetings to my friends in the great Madison Square Rally,' he read. 'The fight in my district against the combined Democratic, Republican and Liberal machines makes it necessary for me to stay in the fighting line tonight' . . . Mr. Marcantonio could not be reached by reporters who wanted to know the real reason for his absence . . . The ether was thick with flying rumors . . . The most persistent was that Mr. Marcantonio had made some sort of deal to support either the Republican or Democratic candidate for surrogate opposing O. John Rogge.—From a news report.

And the children of Israel remembered not the Lord their God, who had delivered them out of the hands of all their enemies on every side. Neither showed they kindness to the house of Jerubbaal, namely Gideon, according to all the goodness which he had showed unto Israel.—Judges, 8:34-35.

"Nineteen thousand persons paid $23,000 in admissions and contributed an even larger amount in response to an appeal from the platform . . . A quick tally indicated that individual gifts ranging between $1000 and $25 totaled $24,000. Also there were many $5 and $10 contributions and a flood of $1 bills."—From another report.

And Gideon said unto them I would desire a request of you, that ye would give me every man the earrings of his prey. And they answered, "We will give them," and they spread a garment and did cast therein every man the earrings of his prey. And the weight of the golden earrings that he requested was a thousand and seven hundred shekels of gold, besides ornaments and collars and purple raiment.—Judges, 8:24-26.

Knutson's Recantation

Representative Knutson, who has served uninterruptedly as a member of Congress since April, 1917, expects to be back next January serving again as chairman of the Ways and Means Committee. But he is a changed man. For in a campaign speech at St. John's University the other day he confessed that he made a mistake in voting against the Marshall Plan because he thought it would be another UNRRA, which he dubbed a "complete flop and very corrupt." He now says that in view of the Marshall Plan record to date, he is willing to vote to extend it and vote the money needed to implement it.

This is good news from the viewpoint of Governor Dewey as well as of all supporters of the bipartisan foreign policy on the Marshall Plan who have feared that the execution of our foreign aid program would be seriously handicapped by the continued sniping tactics of men like Messrs. Knutson and Taber. However, the mystery surrounding Mr. Knutson's sudden change of heart toward European aid is not satisfactorily explained by the reasons he has given. For the Marshall Plan, despite its fairly auspicious start, has not yet had time to prove its worth, and faces many obstacles that were not obvious when Mr. Knutson refused his approval. Certainly the gains to date are not sufficiently impressive to account for the speedy conversion of a dyed-in-the-wool isolationist of Mr. Knutson's kind—a man who cast his first vote on a major issue in 1917 against war with Germany, voted against the British loan, against the Bretton Woods agreements, the original Trade Agreements Act, the first Lend-Lease Act, and extension of the two last-named measures.

This newspaper suspects that the clew to Mr. Knutson's about-face lies in the fact that his constituents, whose opinions and prejudices have been faithfully reflected in his isolationist voting record, have changed their minds about the Marshall Plan. So long as isolationism was considered by them to be synonymous with freedom from entangling alliances with nations for which voters of Scandinavian and German origin had no sympathy or toward which they felt downright hostility, opposition to the Marshall Plan was to be expected from their representative in Congress. Now that the Marshall Plan has rightly come to be regarded as a strong economic defense against the spread of communism and as an advantage to Germany, Mr. Knutson's hold on the strong anti-Communist Catholic elements and other voters of German origin in his district is greatly strengthened by his handsome acknowledgment of error. In other words, it pays politically for him to become internationally minded insofar as the Marshall Plan is concerned.

It appears, therefore, that Mr. Knutson's seeming inconsistency is in reality highly consistent with a voting record indicating that the guiding principle of his long legislative career has been to obey the wishes, expressed or implied, of his constituents. His further promise to refrain from pressing for income-tax reductions at the next session of Congress, if Governor Dewey is elected, is a logical result of his decision to support a continuance of the Marshall Plan, since that support and the support of the proposed military counterpart of it, will cost a lot of money, making it all the more difficult for even a Knutson to devise ways and means of cutting income taxes without plunging the Treasury heavily into the red.

Precedent For Shooting

Three months ago Dorothy Kilmer was paralyzed, possibly for life, because two rookie policemen off duty in a night club had no more sense than to play with a loaded revolver. The policemen have been dismissed from the force, but Miss Kilmer has received no redress for her injuries. Considering the seriousness of her financial plight, the veto by the Commissioners of a proposal originated by the Thomas Circle Citizens Association to seek indemnity from Congress appears downright heartless.

It may be argued that the city has no legal responsibility for the acts of its policemen off duty. That may be true, but certainly the inexcusable negligence of these two so-called officers of the law is a reflection on the kind of training they were given. If they had not been members of the Police Department they would have had no business carrying guns. The right to carry firearms presupposes some degree of instruction in the responsibility that that right entails. Whatever the legal technicalities, the city cannot avoid a moral involvement in the case. One would suppose that the Commissioners would be anxious to do everything within their power to assuage an injustice that can never be fully corrected.

The veto followed a recommendation from Police Superintendent Barrett that to press a claim in this case would be to set a bad precedent. What does Major Barrett mean by a precedent? Can it be that he expects other members of the force to shoot up innocent citizens? In this light the implications of his new plan for a grandiose civilian reserve are positively frightening.

Judah L. Magnes

The State Department, anxious to undermine the General Assembly's November 29 recommendation in favor of the partition of Palestine, made a great fuss of Judah L. Magnes, the 71-year-old President of the great Hebrew University on Mount Scopus, and encouraged and facilitated the mission which he undertook to America six months ago to forward his opposition to partition. It was implied that Dr. Magnes represented a sizable ratio of Jewish opinion in Palestine. The fact was that the Magnes organization in Palestine, Ihud, was a small esoteric group of Jews and Arabs held together mainly by Dr. Magnes' own personality.

That personality was singularly attractive. Dr. Magnes, besides being one of the world's great educators, was a man of gentle soul, and to be in his presence for even a little while was to be sensibly affected by the experience. The trouble with him was that he simply would not acknowledge the facts. In his case this was due to his aversion to conflict. A conscientious objector, he left this country, the land of his birth, on an issue in connection with his scruples arising in the University of Cincinnati. In Palestine he did a magnificent service, and he counted among his friends men of all types and of all nationalities, including Britain's Glubb Pasha in adjoining Trans-Jordania, whom, however, he dubbed a sort of Cato seeking to extrude from the Middle East first the French and then the Jews, so as to leave the region untroubled by anybody but the Arabs and the British.

But for his uncompromising stand, Magnes would certainly have been in the first government of Israel. He came back to America a few weeks ago, and here he died, and it is to be hoped that, when the memory of his struggle for a forlorn cause has been forgotten, his teachings of neighborliness and brotherhood will be points of reference for the men who are now in charge of the fortunes of the new Israel. Israel, when the occasion for assertiveness is over, is capable of making a signal contribution to Middle Eastern harmony, along with the Turks as well as the Arabs.

CONFESSION

Shall I confess there is a counterpart
To the warm tenderness that I bestow,
Making the kiss upon your lips a blow
And in embraces tearing me apart?
This pendulum emotion that my heart
Swings back and forth my being, to and fro;
This restless ambivalence that I know
Even though friction time will not depart.

Quicker the shark-like eye its appetite
Will lose and to oblivion slowly float
Than I be able to recall the sight
Of thorns and roses which your lips denote
Without sensations, swaying left and right,
Once we are parted, loveless and remote.

Government Scientists

I want to commend The Washington Post on Jerry Kluttz's October 24 column reviewing the fine accomplishments of Dr. A. Holt Taylor, who is retiring soon from the Naval Research Laboratory here. In an atmosphere of carping criticism of Federal employes, it is refreshing to read such an article.

There are countless faithful employes in Government service all over the country, with a concentration right here, in and around Washington, who are making contributions of inestimable value to scientific knowledge. I know from my 40 years in the Army of the great advances made by the Army's research workers, both military and civilian, in the fields of medicine, nutrition and physics. And during my last seven years here in the Federal Works Agency I have found that its rosters include the world's leading researchers and technicians in road building and in the field of building design, construction and management. The latter work spans an area from testing of materials to rodent and pest control.

The Government scientist labors unsung for small pay. He must get his compensation largely out of his accomplishments. The column on Dr. Taylor by Mr. Kluttz is one example of the sort of recognition that should be given these men and women much more frequently.

PHILIP B. FLEMING,
Major General, U. S. A.
Administrator, Federal Works Agency.

"Evading The Issue"

Although I think your October 24 editorial, "Evading the Issue" was good politics I would not charge that in writing it you were "playing politics with recreation." What is important is for more of our so-called leaders to follow your example in taking a stand against segregation.

The Board of Recreation not only fails to encourage the free association of our citizens, it actually prohibits it on public property. Time and again the children have shown that they were not influenced by the prejudice of the realty boards, but the Reaction Board steps in and breaks up any such American activity.

Only when those with influence stop blaming this situation on "the common people" and adopt for themselves the splendid advice of your editorial will we get democracy in the Nation's Capital.

CLARK FOREMAN,
Chairman, Progressive Party of the District of Columbia.

Washington.

Controlled Listening

Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen was interviewed on the radio last week: I was amazed and distressed by the reply he made to the question as to whether we should attempt to jam the Moscow radio broadcasts beamed to America. Whereas one might have expected him to answer that we are firm believers in the principle of freedom of speech, he replied that there were so few listeners here in the United States that it would not be worth while and that attempts to block listening would make it "forbidden fruit" so that more would listen.

Don't we all think that people have the right to listen to the good and the bad, the true and false and then make up their own minds? I hold no brief for the Moscow radio—never heard it myself—but I'm scared as to where we are heading with the freedoms we have all cherished so much here in America.

Russian Ogre

William J. Reynolds' letter of October 19 issue, shows the same muddled thinking which has characterized so many letters and articles lately. In his concluding paragraph, Mr. Reynolds states "I, for one, don't believe Russia has grown to be an ogre in four years except in our propagandized minds." Well, no other thinking person has, either. Russia has always been an ogre.

Russia was our ally not from choice, but necessity. We spent millions of dollars and thousands of lives to keep her going, simply because we were both attacked by the same madman. If Hitler had not been ass enough to attack Russia, Russia would have remained on his side. Before Russia was attacked half of our industry was tied up by Communist-inspired strikes to hamper our aid to Britain. Only after Germany attacked was our aid considered fit for the Communists. Bipartisan Credit

Governor Dewey, in a speech at Louisville some days ago, claimed "sole ownership" of our bipartisan foreign policy.

In The Washington Post of May 10, 1944, there is an article by George Gallup, director, American Institute of Public Opinion, on this subject, but he does not mention Governor Dewey as the author. He does, however, give Hon. Cordell Hull credit for originating the idea.

James B. Reston in the New York Times of August 17, 1944, also states that Secretary Hull first suggested the idea.

"Babies By Permit"

Mary Ellen Devers (letter published October 22) did not do much reasoning as to why it might be necessary for a democratic nation to take such a drastic step as to require its citizens to file a permit to have a baby.

England is undergoing an economic struggle for its very survival—and, in this present world, the survival of such a stronghold of democracy is vitally important. There are critical shortages of food, clothing and fuel—and money—in England today. Without nearly enough food for its present population, and with no funds with which to purchase quantities of food abroad, it is easy to understand why England might have to ask the cooperation of its citizens in limiting the number of children.

If the primary purpose of the family is "the begetting and education of children" then surely it should be each family's duty to be reasonably certain that each of its own offspring stands a chance to reach manhood or womanhood by being able to provide adequately for its own progeny. OBSERVER

Lippmann's Senate Plan

There is something extremely naive in Mr. Lippmann's October 25 suggestion for meeting the situation in case the Democrats should elect enough members to make a Democratic Senate. It sounds a little like a recipe: Take "A handful of Senators—not necessarily more than three or four . . . only let it be known before election . . . that if the Republicans lose the Senate by a narrow margin, they will permit the Republicans to organize the Senate."

For anyone experienced in the ways of legislative assemblies it is difficult to see "three or four" members of the victorious party handing over the organization, the chairmanships of more than 30 regular committees and a dozen special committees, to the opposition.

What seems to trouble Mr. Lippmann is the thought that the world has been educated to expect Mr. John Foster Dulles to be appointed Secretary of State. Unless Senator Vandenberg is chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, Mr. Dulles will find himself in a stormy sea, without compass, rudder or anyone in the crow's nest.

If Mr. Lippmann implored the Senate to continue Senator Vandenberg as chairman of this important committee as an evidence of nonpartisan good faith that might meet with some favor. Senator Connally is not one of those men who think wisdom was born with them and will cease if they do not keep control. He has worked well with the present chairman, and if he nominated him to succeed himself it would be a fine and gracious act and would be so recognized by the entire country.

Suppose his fellow Democrats did not look on this plan with approval. In that case, assuming that Mr. Dewey is elected President, the obvious thing would be to make Senator Vandenberg Secretary of State. He would have far more influence with that body than Mr. Dulles or any other stranger. In addition to knowing him themselves, they know the respect and esteem in which he is held by this and a good many other countries.

As a practical matter this seems infinitely better than Mr. Lippmann's proposition, based on something between what newspapermen call a "pipe dream" and hard-boiled politicians, regardless of party, would dismiss as plain "hooey."

ELLIS MEREDITH.

Washington.

Mr. Lippmann suggests that the probable Democratic Senate should let it be known that it will turn over its right of organization and permit the Republicans to organize the Senate. "An action of this kind could bring only honor and respect to those who perform it," he says.

We wonder why Mr. Lippmann did not suggest the Republican-dominated Eightieth Congress into bringing "honor and respect" to itself by assisting unity and welfare at home and prestige to ourselves abroad in the harassed years just past.

Dewey's Taxes

SOME TIME ago in this column mention was made of an organization called Pro America as being one of many groups actively supporting Gov. Thomas E. Dewey. Pro America was referred to as a successor of America First, which was the stronghold of prewar isolationism.

From the national president of Pro America, Mrs. Louise Hawkes Padelford, has come a letter saying this is not true. Mrs. Padelford, the daughter of Senator Hawkes of New Jersey, incloses literature to show that her organization favors the European Recovery Program.

If I unwittingly did an injustice to Pro America I am sorry for it. I am glad to be corrected by Mrs. Padelford.

But the stand taken by Pro America seems to me to raise an interesting question for the future and in particular for the future of Dewey as President. Pro America is for helping Europe to recover, but it is also for giving tax relief "to all income groups."

Many who will vote for Dewey expect further tax reductions along the line of the four and a half billion dollar slash made by the Eightieth Congress. Dewey has not actually promised a tax reduction, as his advisers are quick to point out. He has even now and then used the word sacrifice in connection with America's responsibilities to the rest of the world.

BUT HE has talked about "tax revision" in such a way that many Republicans are looking forward to a Dewey Administration in the same way a small boy anticipates Santa Claus. They will be expecting a generous handout shortly after January 20.

The grim realities confronting the new President will, however, compel him to move in exactly the opposite direction if he takes account of those realities. He will more than likely have to ask the Congress not for a tax reduction but for a tax increase.

Will Pro America and others of similar outlook recognize that necessity? Or will they decide that saving the world from communism is an extravagant and futile undertaking? On the answer to those questions a great deal depends.

Shortly after he takes office the new President will have to ask for a new appropriation to finance the European Cooperation Administration. Funds are already running out.

But if current headlines are any indication, that is merely the beginning. A western European alliance has been led to expect that the United States will furnish arms to equip a western European army.

Dewey's adviser on foreign affairs, John Foster Dulles, has presumably been in on these negotiations.

BOTH DEWEY and Dulles, along with a great many other Republicans, have promised increased aid for China. They have attacked the Truman Administration for not doing more for the Chiang Kai-shek government.

While they have been vague about the nature and the scale of this aid, any increase will take more money. And a decision will have to be taken quickly since the Nationalist forces in China are on the ragged edge of dissolution.

In the face of these overpowing necessities, the tax cut put into effect by the Eightieth Congress is seen in its true light. It was a monstrous folly.

It was folly because of its effect on opinion. Heaven knows none of us likes to pay high taxes. The cut encouraged us to believe we could have our cake and eat it, too—help reconstruct the world and yet get by with low taxes.

It was folly because it cut out all surplus and put the Government close to deficit financing. Yet we find Pro America speaking in its literature of "excessive taxation contributing to inflation."

The pinch will come early in the new year. It will come when the urgent necessities of the moment catch up with shrinking tax revenue. Dewey, as President, may be able to carry his followers with him over that obstacle. But they will not be happy.

Haworth's Advice

Since my arrival in Washington three months ago and my subsequent subscription to The Washington Post, I have been a steady reader of Mary Haworth's column—not because I find it informative, but because I am astounded daily by the audacity of her replies. How one can glean as much as she does from a letter is beyond comprehension.

A person trained in dealing with personality problems would hesitate to come to a conclusion from such meager information as Miss Haworth must necessarily work with, yet she authoritatively and unhesitatingly accuses her writers as suffering from all sorts of neuroses.

I question the helpfulness of her column. The people who write to her for advice are confused and need sympathetic, sensible advice. Reviewing their problems in high-sounding psychiatric terms and concluding that they are in need of psychiatric assistance certainly does not serve the purpose. If these individuals were well-adjusted or unblinded by emotion, they could deal with their problems without seeking advice from Miss Haworth or others of her kind. J. K.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

Will Dewey Bite The Bullet?

IT IS NOW plain that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, long before he is officially installed in the White House, will be faced with a great and crucial decision. He can decide to approve a fundamental—and expensive—departure in American foreign policy by negotiating a formal defensive pact with a number of European nations.

Or he can decide to attempt to shove the whole painful business under the rug. Either way, it will not be an easy decision.

The foreign ministers of the five Western Union nations—Britain, France, and the three Benelux countries—have now decided to propose to the United States the opening of formal negotiations for a defensive pact.

This is, of course, no sudden and unanticipated decision. Ever since the passage of the Vandenberg resolution, which called for the "association" of the United States with the western European nations, informal, "exploratory" talks have been going forward.

On the one hand, the ambassadors in Washington of the five European powers have been discussing with the American policy makers, and especially with Undersecretary of State Robert Lovett, the form the proposed "association" is to take.

On the other hand, various military representatives of the United States have been closeted with the Western Union military staff committee, considering the amount of military aid which will be required from the United States to place western Europe in a "posture of defense."

BOTH LOVETT and the American military men have consistently taken much the same stand. They have repeatedly emphasized to the Europeans that any final commitments could only be made by the next Administration and the next Congress.

Thus Dewey is not legally committed to do anything at all about the proposed North Atlantic pact. However, the Vandenberg resolution is itself a moral commitment. So, in another sense, are the political and military discussions which have been under way for months, and in which the Americans have consistently urged the Europeans to form the close union they are now forming. And Senator Arthur Vandenberg, John Foster Dulles and through them Dewey himself, have been kept fully informed of the progress of these "exploratory" discussions.

The "exploratory" phase, however, has now come to an end. The European nations, with no time to waste, want to start the "preparatory" phase—the writing of the actual text of the defense pact—as soon as possible after the American elections. This means that, unless Dewey vetoes them, formal negotiations will start in a matter of two to four weeks, probably in Washington.

Moreover, although Harry S. Truman will still be President and George C. Marshall Secretary of State, the final responsibility will rest squarely with Dewey and the Republicans. If the meetings are not postponed, it is, therefore, expected that Dulles will return from Paris before the United Nations sessions end, and well before Congress meets, to play the leading role in the negotiations.

THE OBJECT will be to draft a text which will have some real meaning, and which will at the same time have a good chance of being ratified by the Senate. It will not be an easy job. There will certainly be all sorts of subsidiary difficulties, such as the desire of the French for at least tacit assurance that in case of war the American strategy will be based on the defense of western Europe rather than of Spain. But the central problem is perfectly obvious. It is to put it bluntly, money.

"If a pact were negotiated which failed to include some commitment by the United States to aid the rearmament of western Europe, it would be evident to all concerned that the pact was a mere paper agreement, without meaning. It would thus be not only useless but worse than useless. Yet the military experts who have been considering the requirements of Western Union have reached the conclusion that an initial investment of between one and a half and two billion dollars will be required for the first year's appropriation if a serious rearmament of western Europe is to begin.

It is this, of course, which makes the decision which will soon face Dewey so painful. The European dollar deficits have fallen, and next year's ECA appropriation can therefore be somewhat reduced. Even so, if the North Atlantic pact is to be worth more than the paper it is written on, an appropriation of at least a billion dollars will be required. It is hard to see how this appropriation can be made, on top of everything else, without increasing taxes, and impossible to see how it can be made with a reduction of taxes.

Yet if Dewey backs away from the proposed security pact now, the results abroad could well be disasterous. If he does not, there are certain to be a great many furiously disillusioned Republicans. In a way, it seems unfair that so difficult a decision should be forced on Dewey even before he becomes President. But if the bullet has to be bitten, perhaps it is better that it should be bitten right away.

'Blue Baby' Arrives At Baltimore From Australia

Four-year-old Jeffrey Lore arrived in Baltimore yesterday after a 10,000-mile air trip from his home at Perth, West Australia—for treatment at the Johns Hopkins "blue baby" clinic.

Before embarking on the last lap of the lengthy journey, the child and his mother, Mrs. Annie Lore, stopped briefly at Washington National Ai9rport. The little boy appeared to have stood the trip well, although he had to take oxygen more than once on the journey.

Mrs. Lore, the mother of four, was surprised at the airport in Baltimore by her brother-in-law, T. S. Greenfield of Houston, Tex., who showed up unexpectedly to greet the party.

Jeffrey was immediately taken to Johns Hopkins Hospital, where he will start a 10-day series of tests to see if he can be helped by the delicate heart surgery designated to correct his trouble.

Miss Holman And Dupre Stir Praise

By Paul Hume

This column is in two distinct and nonrelated parts. Part I: Libby Holman. Part II: Marcel Dupre. There is absolutely no common denominator.

Part I: I had no intention of reviewing Miss Holman formally after the appropriate comments of colleague Coe yesterday. But upon hearing the terrific job she is doing for, with and to American music in one of its most exciting and soil-sprung forms, silence seems ungracious. Silence about Libby Holman right now would be more than that, it would suffocate my bursting enthusiasm.

Listen to the singing, purely as music, and discover how Libby Holman will bring to life, across our country, folk tunes and tales which are legends.

Her songs are made not for her alone—far from it. She is essential to them, but they would not be what they are without Gerald Cook. His piano playing, and the imagination he puts into original settings for each song are true genius.

Part II: Marcel Dupre is widely known for his compositions, his organ playing, and his gifts as an improviser. All of these were displayed in his concert last night in the First Congregational Church, where an overflow audience applauded for him over two hours.

The art of improvisation is little taught in this country. Few musicians ever need it, but a real course in it would increase their usefulness in any field.

Dupre was given three themes last night. Of two he made the opening movement of a symphony. The third became a scherzo in keeping with the nature of the theme. In his knowledge of musical form and contrapuntal devices Dupre made his spur-of-the-moment playing brilliant, if less original than his printed works.

Streptomycin, Penicillin Aided by Sulfa Drugs

Miami, Fla., Oct. 28 (AP).—Streptomycin and penicillin, sensational new rookies in medicine's big league, sometimes need an assist from a relative old timer—the sulfa drugs.

So said Maj. Edwin Pulaski, of the Brooke Army Medical Center, Fort Sam Houston, Tex., today in a talk to the Southern Medical Association.

He said that in some cases of undulant fever, meningitis, peritonitis and blood-stream infections, neither streptomycin nor penicillin alone score a put-out.

Gold-Looking 'Coins' to Be Just Tokens

Don't be optimistically misled by those shiny, gold-looking coins you may get from your streetcar or bus motorman starting Sunday—they're worth just three for 35 cents.

Four and a half tons of them—or four million tokens—have been given the "gold" higher-cost-of-living look for the new streetcar and bus fares, in effect starting 5 a. m. Sunday.

Seven tons of pennies—two million of them—have also been readied to make change for the new fares, which will be 13 cents cash (instead of 10 cents straight fare), or three tokens for 35 cents, and $1.75 (instead of $1.50) for the weekly pass.

The new tokens are brightly finished copper-plated makeovers of the old three-for-a-quarter tokens which went out of existence here in May, 1947, when fares were boosted to 10 cents straight.

In addition, 3000 motormen's changeholders were remodeled to add two token slots and a penny slot, and to dispense three tokens at a time. The tops of 1800 fare boxes had to be removed to accept the new coins.

Today, sale of tokens will begin to business houses which use them in large amounts. Government agencies, which previously supplied messengers with tickets for transit fares, now will use tokens.

Tenants, Owners Agree on 9 Per Cent Increase in Rents

Tenants and owners of 93 apartments at 2700 Massachusetts ave. nw. came to a tentative agreement on a 9 per cent increase during a hearing yesterday before District Rent Examiner James G. Tyson. The owners had asked for a 15 per cent rent hike. Tyson took the matter under advisement.

Meanwhile, District Rent Control Administrator Robert G. Cogswell yesterday received permission from the District Commissioners to employ two additional clerks at $2168 a year each to cope with a rising load of rent-rise requests.

Examiner Tyson recommended a 7.32 per cent increase on 79 apartments at 1451 Park rd. nw. The landlord had asked for a 19.96 per cent hike.

Beloff, who resides at 1611 Decatur st. nw., has filed a counter suit for an absolute divorce, charging that his wife committed adultery with another real estate broker. She now lives at 1351 Spring rd. nw.

The Beloffs were married in May, 1943. They have a daughter, Sylvia, aged 4.

Red Feather 'Oscar' Honors Mrs. Cross

Mrs. Whitman Cross, a pioneer volunteer and organizer in District social welfare work, and one of the founders of Washington's Community Chest, received a Red Feather "Oscar" from the Chest yesterday in recognition of her many services to the community.

Mrs. Cross, first president of the former Council of Social Agencies, and an organizer of the Juvenile Protective Association (now the Children's Protective Association), was presented with the award at her home, 3901 Connecticut ave. nw., by Mrs. Lillian Champion, a visiting nurse.

A president of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society for 15 years, and an early member of the Board of Public Welfare, Mrs. Cross was prevented by illness from receiving the "Oscar" Wednesday at a luncheon of the Community Chest's Residential Unit. A delegation of women Chest volunteers headed by Mrs. Theodore O. Wedel, residential chairman of the Red Feather drive, visited her at her home.

The Chest campaign, which has collected less than half of its $4,566,790 goal so far, got some help yesterday from eight Cub Scouts, who turned in a $10 pledge based on plenty of hard work.

The Cubs, all members of Den 2, handed over $3 of their pledge in cash—nickels, pennies, and dimes—in a ceremony at the Washington Hotel. They earned the money by weaving cloth pot-holders on a hand loom, and selling them door-to-door at a quarter apiece in their Northeast Washington neighborhood.

The Chest will hold its fourth general report luncheon today at 12:30 p. m. in the Washington Hotel, with progress reports from all nine campaign units in the Greater Washington drive. Leaders of the campaign expect today's record will determine whether the 1949 drive must be extended past its scheduled conclusion time—November 4.

Seventy-five employes of the Loving Motors auto repair department, at 1700 Kalorama rd. nw., are going to work on their regular day off Saturday, and will contribute the entire proceeds of their extra day's labor to the Chest drive.

Graham Loving, president of the company, said the firm had notified about 1500 car owners in the area of the Red Feather project, and hopes they'll bring in plenty of one-day mechanical repair jobs.

"This is a good time for a winterizing job, and we hope very much we'll be able to keep everyone busy all day—from 8 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. Certainly the work is in a fine cause," Loving said.

Steak Eater Gives D. C. Food Choice Rating, But Not Diners

Washington diners-out who demand thick steaks so tender they can be cut with a butter knife were assured yesterday they are pretty well off here—but they should take more time to enjoy their succulent beef.

Dreicer

The reassurance and advice came from Maurice C. Dreicer of New York, whose hobby is ordering steaks in restaurants all over the country and—if it passes his rigorous tests—eating it.

Among his tests are a careful inspection under a magnifying glass and a tempearture check—steak should be served at 120 degrees, he says—with a thermometer that he pulls out of his pocket.

Since he began his gourmet tours, which are usually combined with business or lecture trips Dreicer has tasted steak in more than 1000 American and foreign restaurants in six years, and has awarded only 32 of them his supreme accolade—silver butter knives, symbols of tenderness.

Three of the butter knives grace the premises of local restaurateurs, a fact that shows the city has more than its share of perfect steaks in relation to the population, Dreicer points out. Furthermore, the price of a Dreicer-approved steak here is about 25 to 30 per cent lower than must be paid by a gourmet-citizen of New York, Chicago or Los Angeles, he says.

When he's not eating steaks, Dreicer conducts a radio program, a column in a weekly paper, and gives talks around the country. He's here on radio business this week. A bachelor, he admits he knows little about cooking. He figures he spends about $100 a month on steaks.

Falls Church Show To Detail Tax Rise

The city of Falls Church will put price tags on its municipal services November 29 to show their increasing cost—and to back up its $265,485 budget request for 1948-49.

Displayed in the Oddfellows' Hall on W. Broad st. that night will be everything from policemen's revolvers to water meters, all marked with their cost to Falls Church.

This "visual budget" will coincide with a formal public hearing on the record budget to be held that night in the OOdd Fellows' Hall.

As a part of the budget display, the city road department will produce a square yard of road material to show its composition and cost and display a map indicating road improvements made and to be made.

Police will have a booth showing firearms, traffic safety devices and crime detection methods—all with price tags. The fire, water and sewer departments will have similar booths for their equipment.

The proposed new city budget will be adopted by the City Council following the public hearing. The proposed version calls for an increased tax levy of 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation—from the current $1.50 to $1.80.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste

If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Kidneys may need help the same as bowels, so ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

D. C. Merchant Named

Edmund I. Kaufman, Washington merchant, has been named to the board of directors of the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation of New York City. The foundation seeks to raise two million dollars through the Nation, between November 15 and December 11, to finance a research and clinical program.

Gallinger Rate Raised

The District Commissioners yesterday raised the rate at Gallinger Hospital for paying patients from $9 to $9.60 a day.

The action was taken on the recommendation of District Auditor A. R. Pilkerton, who said Gallinger accounts showed costs of inpatient service in the 1948 fiscal year were $3,401,374, and the number of patient days totaled 353,251. This meant the per diem cost was $9.628, he reported.

Loyalty Survey Finished

A survey of the loyalty "sensitivity" of District government positions under the control of Commissioner John Russell Young has been completed, Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel G. Maher reported last night.

Similar checks of posts under Commissioner Guy Mason and Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young were submitted earlier to the eight-man loyalty committee headed by Maher.

Maher said the committee will meet "probably next week" to discuss what criteria to adopt in determining the loyalty of individual employes in the "sensitive" posts and who should do the checking.

Czech Leaders Honored

Founders of the Czechoslovak Republic are being honored in an exhibit that opened yesterday, the Czechoslovak Independence Day, at the Library of Congress. The exhibit will conclude December 15.

Highlighting the display are the original Czechoslovak Declaration of Independence and the original signed copy of the "Declaration of Common Aims of the Independent Mid-European Nations," dated October 26, 1918.

The historic documents were sent to President Wilson by Thomas G. Masaryk, the Czechoslovak leader, and have not previously been displayed.

ABC Considers Transfer

Final arguments on a request by Fried Ezersky for transfer of a Class A retail liquor sales license from 3301 Connecticut ave. nw. to 5504 Benning rd. se. were held yesterday by the District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. The transfer was protested at an earlier hearing. The case was taken under advisement.

Hoover Group Studies 2 Commerce Department Reorganization Plans

As it's now constituted, the Commerce Department may not be long for this world.

Two different proposals are being studied by the Hoover Commission —both of which would drastically reorganize the department. In a sentence, they are:

1. That the department go into the field of business regulation—something it has shied from for years; that to it be transferred the Federal Trade Commission, Securities and Exchange Commission, Tariff Commission and perhaps the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, or,

2. That it be made into a predominantly transportation agency by the transfer to it of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Civil Aeronautics Board, Office of Defense Transportation, and the Maritime Commission.

Cases have been made for both proposals, along with a third plan, which recommends that a new department of transportation be created and that agencies now in Commerce such as the Civil Aeronautics Administration, Inland Waterways and the Weather Bureau be transferred to it. If it's accepted it's a sure bet that the Hoover group will suggest that Commerce take over the independent agencies that deal directly with business.

The 12-man commission that is studying Government reorganization will look to its chairman, former President Herbert C. Hoover, for leadership on the Commerce problem. Hoover is also a former Commerce Secretary, and he has his own ideas on the role of that department.

His general ideas on government support both plans, as he believes there should be more departments and fewer independent agencies. However, there is agreement that Commerce should not be made both a center of business regulation and transportation; that it must be either one or the other.

FINANCE: The Hoover commission also has before it several plans to revamp the Government's financial agencies. One of these proposals, it's reported, would build up the Federal Reserve System and give it greater power over credit and the flow of money. And, in addition, that the Government own and control the reserve banks.

The plan also calls for the transfer to the Federal Reserve Board of the bank-examining functions of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and the Comptroller of the Currency. These three agencies now examine banks, but they insist that there is very little overlapping of work.

The FDIC, with its wings clipped, would be transferred to the Treasury Department, and the Comptroller of the Currency would remain in business only to license banks.

PLANS: The Hoover Commission has bundles of them from its many so-called "task forces," which have been studying Government agencies and their operations for the last year. No firm decisions have been made.

It will meet here in almost continuous session beginning the week after next—when the election is over. The first and major report of the group will go to both the President and the Congress in early January.

RESHUFFLE: The Hoover recommendations could be used by either Truman or Dewey, whoever is elected, to get rid of a lot of people in policy-making and high-ranking jobs through the simple device of "abolishing" their jobs.

Members of the Civil Service Commission serve at the pleasure of the President. All other commission members serve for fixed terms. But in the transfer of any commission to an established department, the law would be sure to provide that the commission itself be abolished.

ELECTION DAY will be next Tuesday. Apparently everyone knows it except a few Federal officials who have refused to tell their employes that they may be given official leave on that day to vote.

The White House didn't put out a new order to release employes, believing its July 24 order would be adequate—which it is. That order clearly states that Federal workers may be given a "reasonable" time off to go to the polls. The maximum leave allowed is one day for those who must travel quite a distance to the polls. For nearby Maryland and Virginia voters, the usual time off is two hours.

STATE: Ed Wilbur, formerly of the Budget Bureau, is acting head of the budget and planning section. He succeeds Stan Orear, who is on a year's leave to study Latin-American governments for a management firm . . . Civil Service is ready to accept nominations for its ninth administrative intern program. Young employes who are selected for this program invariably get ahead in Government . . . The Alexandria postoffice has an examination open for substitute clerk-carrier . . . Civil Service has an examination open for draftsman, to pay from $2152 to $3727 to start, for appointments in Federal agencies only in surrounding Montgomery, Prince Georges and Arlington Counties, and Alexandria.

LABOR: One of his employs has written Labor Secretary Tobin to protest that "whenever someone is fired, terminated, transferred or has an ingrowing toenail cut out—a party is held or a collection is taken up to buy him flowers." On a recent day, he wrote, three or four different collections were taken up among employes in an office of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Court Orders 3c Boost in Virginia Bus, CTC Tickets

Riders Must Pay 6c on Boarding Capital Transit Vehicles Here

When car fares in the District are boosted Sunday, they also will be raised 3 cents for users of joint tickets on the A. B. & W. or W. V. & M. bus lines and the Capital Transit Co.

These passengers will have to pay 6 cents instead of 3 when they board a Capital Transit Co. bus or streetcar and submit the second half of the joint ticket after coming into Washington from nearby Virginia. The increase has been authorized by a District Court order.

Joint ticket holders will still receive receipts for the cash they pay on Capital Transit Co. vehicles. The receipts are given by the transit company, pending District Court action on two suits in which the company is contesting the validity of several Interstate Commerce Commission orders regarding the joint fares.

Yesterday, the Capital Transit Co. asked District Court to annul and stop enforcement of an ICC order of September 17, 1948, in which the ICC rejected for filing a revocation notice from the transit company refusing concurrence with an ICC order of July 7, 1948.

The July order had authorized that joint tickets for a one-way ride in either direction on the Virginia bus lines and on the transit company vehicles be sold for 16 cents, with 7 cents to be turned over to the transit company and 9 cents to the Virginia lines.

Yesterday's complaint declared that the ICC had issued the September order without a hearing and that it had no authority to issue such an order.

Silver Spring Fare Raises Go Into Effect Monday

Five-cent raises in Capital Transit fares on two routes between Silver Spring, Md., and downtown Washington will become effective Monday.

The fare on Route S-9, Silver Spring express line, between the District line in Silver Spring and the downtown terminal at 13th st. and Pennsylvania ave. will be 20 cents per trip. From Fenton st. and Colesville rd., Silver Spring, to the downtown terminal, the fare will become 25 cents.

Transfer privileges between the first zone in Silver Spring and within the District will remain in effect.

Gaming Odds Are 'Stacked,' Group Is Told

"No matter what gambling game you play—you can't win," Dr. Ernest E. Blanche, Army statistician, told members of the Central Business Association at the group's nineteenth annual banquet last night at the Burlington Hotel.

Blanche, citing the normal 600-to-1 payoff in the numbers game, in which the player may select any number combination from zero to 999, pointed out that the odds are 1000 to 1 against the player.

Thus, of every $1000 wagered, the players get only $600 back while $400 is pocketed by the operators.

"If you must shoot crap, never throw the dice," Blanche warned. "The odds are always against the thrower."

The speaker cited the percentage "take" garnered by State taxation to show that in horse racing also statistically the odds are against "beating" the race.

Almost 200 persons attended the banquet. Francis C. Heigle acted as chairman and introduced Arch McDonald, radio announcer, as master of ceremonies.

The Rev. Hubert T. Spence, Bishop of the Pentacostal Holiness Church, yesterday was elected treasurer of the Pentacostal Fellowship of North America at the group's organizational meeting in Cleveland, Tenn. Rev. Spence lives at 3823 17th pl. ne.

STATUE AND LADY TAKE A TAXI—"Well, call me a taxi, if this doesn't look like something out of Thorne Smith's 'Night Life of the Gods,' except that this is daytime," says Cabbie John Gooch to himself as he surveys his most interesting passengers yesterday, The Boy Removing a Thorn and Isabel Zappone of Hyannis, Mass. Gooch was hailed by Miss Zappone outside the Corcoran Art Gallery, where she picked up The Boy and drove him to a residence in the 3700 block O st. nw., where she is staying temporarily. Later the two will drive to Massachusetts in Miss Zappone's car, The Boy riding wrapped in blankets in the back seat. The Boy is separated from his dusty Hellenistic colleagues, reposing in Corcoran's basement for anyone who wants them

Charter Leader Denies Many Will Lose Jobs

Proposal Has Already Aided Merit System, Ames Tells Opponents

Claims adoption of the proposed Montgomery County charter "would bring about wholesale firings" within the county government were branded as "false" yesterday by Col. Norman B. Ames, president of the Montgomery Charter Committee.

"The present county merit system," he declared, "was installed as a direct result of the charter movement."

Ames' statement was only one of the day's developments in the charter fight which will be decided in a referendum Tuesday. The charter would replace the present county commission with a county manager government.

County Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter renewed his fight against the charter, declaring Bethesda and Silver Spring would "suffer" through the charter's adoption. Under the charter, he said, present local control exercised by the present commissioners in each suburban district would be eliminated, and the new county manager would be unable to supervise adequately such thickly populated areas.

Jo V. Morgan, former county civil service commissioner, announced his opposition to the charter, questioning its legality.

Mrs. J. Rene Hemingway, president of the County League of Women Voters which is supporting the charter, charged the County Democratic State Central Committee with reneging on its strict neutrality pledge in the charter fight, claiming a league member saw a Democratic instruction ballot with an "X" marked in opposition to the charter.

Committee Chairman J. Bond Smith promptly denied Mrs. Hemingway's charge and existence of such instruction ballots and reaffirmed the committee's neutrality pledge.

2 Sons File Plea For Administering John Riddle Estate

The two sons of John Riddle, 74, retired contracting painter, who died at his home, 1871 Newton st. nw., last January, yesterday filed a petition for administration of his estate in District Court.

The petition, which declared that no will had been found, stated that Mr. Riddle's estate included real estate, the assessed value of which is more than $162,000. The real estate includes around 70 houses in Southwest Washington, it was learned.

The two sons, who are the only immediate survivors, are John Elmer Riddle and Charles Albert Riddle, both of 1871 Newton st. nw.

Greek Gods Leave Basement Of Corcoran Gallery of Art

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

The dust of two years was knocked off the Corcoran Gallery of Art's collection of ancient gods, goddesses and heroes yesterday.

It was moving day for the plaster casts of famous Greek, Roman and Renaissance sculpture that Corcoran has had stored in its basement.

Forty-one of the works have been claimed since October 15 when a story appeared in The Washington Post that Corcoran was willing to give away the statuary to schools and other educational institutions. Yesterday the schools picked up the works.

Ten husky soccer players removed three heroic-sized statues to a trailer and carted them away to the Surrattsville High School at Clinton, Md.

They took the 8-foot tall "Diana Hunting," the "Three Graces of Chantier," measuring 10 feet, and an 8-foot Greek orator.

One of the Hellenistic works started a long trip to a new home.

Miss Isabel Zappone of the Barnstable High School at Hyannis, Mass., took away in a taxi "Boy Removing a Thorn." She plans to take him to Massachusetts wrapped in a blanket in the back seat of her car.

After the schools were through, only a dozen of the plaster figures remained in the basement.

So far nobody wants the 10-foot high "Winged Victory" or a Hellenistic "Adonis" complete with hunting dog and boar.

Left, too, are three headless goddesses from the east pediment of the Parthenon, a slightly damaged Augustus Caesar (his head has fallen off) and a large head of "David," by Michelangelo.

Representatives of the University of Virginia and the Georgia State College for Women have expressed interest in the large works and the gallery still hopes to find them a home.

Available, too, are a 4½-foot "Dancing Faun" and two medium-sized Greek athletes.

The Boy Removing Thorn is a plaster cast of a Hellenistic statue whose sculptor is unknown is a 4-foot high prancing "Bacchus." He had been assigned to the Seventh Day Adventist's Washington Missionary College, but Librarian Theofield G. Weis found him "unsuitable" and took instead a 6-foot athlete and an 8-foot orator.

The casts, which formerly were exhibited by Corcoran, are being given away to make room for storage of original works.

U. S. Asks Condemnations At Site for Senate Offices

The Justice Department yesterday petitioned the District Court to condemn 73 improved lots and four unimproved lots in the half-block selected as the site for the proposed new Senate Office Building.

The new building, for which $20,600,000 has been appropriated, will be constructed on 1st st. ne., between B and C sts.

The suit names 145 District individuals, trust companies and 32 individuals whose last known residence was outside the District as defendants. Included among the defendants is the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, listed as owners of a building in the rear of 128-130 B st. ne.

The suit was filed by Charles M. Irelan, attorney in the Lands Division of the Justice Department.

Grade AA Butter Drops to Within 2c Of Old OPA Price

A drop in grade AA wholesale butter prices to 59¾ cents a pound (within 2 cents of the old OPA ceiling) yesterday will be reflected today in a 2-cent decline in retail prices here. Grade A dropped at wholesale to 59¼ cents.

One chain reported that grade A and grade AA butter, now selling for 71 and 73 cents per pound, will be lowered to 69 and 71 cents, respectively.

Another chain, which had cut butter prices a total of 5 cents in the last 10 days to a low of 69 and 70 cents for the respective grades, reported no decision had yet been reached on possible additional cuts.

Young will leave for Turkey aboard a Pan American plane Saturday, the Turkish Information Office said, in announcing the appointment. His contract is for a year, and he will spend alternating two-month periods in Turkey and the United States, it was said.

3 Speakers Hit Bond Plan In Arlington

Douglas Says Issue Would Destroy County's 'Good' Credit Standing

A proposed $4,750,000 bond issue to build four Arlington schools was criticized by three speakers last night during a meeting of the newly formed Fact Finding Council of Arlington.

One of the speakers, Lawrence Douglas, former Arlington Commonwealth's attorney, said the bond issue would destroy Arlington's current "good" credit standing and that the building program would be "ridiculous" in view of present high construction costs.

The bond issue will be approved or rejected by voters in a special referendum next Tuesday.

Douglas said the community "can only stand so much tax burden," and added that the proposed bond would pinch other essential community services.

Another speaker, Col. C. I. Kephart, a member of Arlington's first Public Utilities Commission, said he opposed the "New Deal type of spending" called for by the bond issue. He urged that the school board first spend the $1,776,000 already authorized by the voters for school construction.

The third speaker before the council, the first group openly to oppose the school bond issue, was Arlington Treasurer John Locke Green.

He warned that citizens must consider "what the bond issue is going to cost them" and estimated school improvements and the cost of maintaining new buildings would cost 75 cents more in taxes for each $100 assessed valuation.

His figure was 51 cents higher than a school board estimate that it will cost 24 cents more to retire the $4,750,000 bond issue.

The council's president, Mrs. J. E. Shawhan, told the group the council would mail 30,000 letters today to Arlington voters declaring that "your vote against the bond issue is to your best interest."

Knowing the Child Held Essential for Proper Guidance

Proper guidance is dependent upon knowing the child, Dr. Ruth Strang, professor of education at Columbia University's teacher college, last night told more than 500 teachers and schoool officials at the Departmental Auditorium.

Dr. Strang, a member of the survey committee now studying District schools under a $100,000 congressional appropriation, delivered the first of seven lectures by the members of the staff under sponsorship of the Education Association of the District, the Columbian Educational Association and School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning.

"Get into the child's world and try to understand. Always be friendly and accessible," Dr. Strang said.

Health Officer's Plan to Revamp Dept. Is Tabled

City Heads Agree With Fowler That Ruhland Proposal Needs More Study

The District Commissioners yesterday concurred with their budget officer and tabled a recommendation by Health Officer George C. Ruhland to reorganize his 17-bureau Health Department.

Dr. Ruhland seeks to realign the department into six major division, with the present two hospital heads holding equal authority with division chiefs in the proposed executive setup.

The Commissioners' action, it was disclosed, was taken on the recommendation of District Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler that although reorganization "would be advantageous in many respects" it should not be attempted "on a partial basis."

Tentative Basis Opposed

Fowler told the Commissioners that the proposed reorganization requires much study and should not be attempted on anything but "a permanent basis."

The plan, designated as a tentative reorganization plan, recommended revamping bureau operations in progressive stages. It specifically recommended start of an inspection division on January 1 and creation of two other divisions, maternal and child health and general medical care, next July 1. The remaining three divisions, administration, health centers and social services, would be set up "at some date to be established in the future."

Budget Officer Cites Variances

Dr. Ruhland submitted the plan on September 23 along with his budget requests for fiscal 1950.

Fowler reported to the Commissioners that some of the bureau functions and positions were at variance with present charts used by the Budget Office. He noted, for example, that:

"The cancer control program as submitted to Congress and for which an appropriation of $48,000 was secured in 1948 has not been established as planned, and now a revised program is included in the 1950 budget estimates with many distinct changes."

The budget officer said further that Federal matching grant provisions are not clearly established in the proposed reorganization plan despite the fact that many key positions in the department are paid from these funds.

Policy Control

Board Calls Meeting on Playgrounds

A special meeting of the Recreation Board to decide steps to be taken in retaining its control over 62 playgrounds in the District is scheduled for 2:30 p. m. today.

Board Chairman Harry S. Wender said yesterday he had called the meeting also to ask board approval for requesting a conference with Attorney General Tom C. Clark on whether the Recreation Department or the National Park Service sets policy for the 62 properties.

Before Clark now is a request of the Interior Department and the Park Service for an opinion.

Interior Department Solicitor Mastin G. White last August ruled that the Park Service has jurisdiction and can determine racial policy.

The 62 playgrounds at present are operated by the Recreation Department on a segregated basis.

Wender said the properties in question were purchased with District funds and as property of the District do not come under the National Park Service.

Wender is supported in his opinion by Maj. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, which purchased the lands under the Capper-Cramton Act and designated them for recreation use.

Plan Officials Praise Work in Prince Georges

National Capital Park and Planning Commission officials yesterday visited nearby Prince Georges County areas and praised the progress of Maryland planners there.

The commissioners were accompanied on their tour by Fred W. Tuemmler, Prince Georges County director of planning for the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

They first inspected part of the Sligo Creek pkwy., Green Meadows subdivision and the Naval Ordnance Laboratory at White Oak on the Montgomery County line. Then, via the University of Maryland grounds, they visited the Paint Branch pkwy., added to the park system in a recent act of Congress.

Greenbelt Visited

From there they visited Greenbelt, where they were especially interested in an 1100-acre Government-owned tract that they hope to add to the park system through legislation to be introduced at the next session of Congress.

The future Washington-Baltimore pkwy., a portion of which has already been staked and graded, passes through this tract.

The commissioners also visited Anacosita River Park and the spot where ships once came up to Bladensburg, and discussed plans of the chief of engineers for improving the river channel to permit pleasure boats, which can now go only to the District line, to ascend to Bladensburg.

After the tour, which ended at the Prince Georges County regional office of the commission at Hyattsville, E. S. Settle, secretary of the NCPPC, said everyone "was very pleased with the progress Prince Georges County is making in acquisition of land and planning."

Areas Transferred

In other action yesterday, the NCPPC arranged for transfer from the District Commissioners to the Office of National Capital Parks of six small triangles created at intersections when the District Highway Department widened various streets.

Largest of the triangles, about an acre in size, is at 4th and Franklin sts. ne., opposite Edgewood Playground. It will be used for more tennis courts.

Other triangles transferred were at Tilden st. and Reno rd. nw., opposite Melvin Hazen Park; at Alabama ave. se. and 25th st.; Alabama and Pennsylvania aves. and 38th st. se.; Minnesota and M st. se., and 25th and M sts. sw.

The Commissioners took under advisement a proposal by representatives of the American Society of Engineers for an aerial survey of traffic condition in the Washington area.

Police Find Two Men In Sears, Roebuck Store

Police reported they discovered two men in Sears, Roebuck and Co. Store at Wisconsin ave. and Albemarle st. nw. last night. They were charged with housebreaking at the Eighth Precinct station.

Responding to a burglar alarm, Police Pvts. W. E. De Cuir and D. P. Dungan found the men hiding in a rack in the clothing department. No loot was found in their possession, police said.

The men were identified by police as John E. Coffin, 25, of 9512 MacArthur blvd. nw., and Robert Caldwell, 18, Route 2, Bethesda.

Man Caught Between Auto Lanes Is Hit

A 21-year-old man suffered concussion last night when struck by an automobile while crossing 14th st. nw. at Harvard st.

The injured man, Carl Morris, 1455 Harvard st. nw., apparently jumped forward to avoid traffic moving in the inside lane, police said, and was hit by the vehicle travelling along the streetcar tracks. He was admitted to Garfield Hospital, where his condition was termed fair.

Driver of the automobile was identified by police as Jimmy Lowery, 50, of 1701 Park rd. nw.

In an earlier accident, Olin W. Tallon, 48, of 47 W st. nw., a salesman for the Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy, suffered possible concussion when the truck he was driving ran off the road in the 8900 block of 2d ave., Silver Spring, about 5:45 p. m. yesterday. He was admitted to Suburban Hospital, Bethesda.

Rep. West of Texas Dies Here at 60

Milton H. West, 60 (D., Tex.), Representative for the past 15 years, died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital of lymphoma, a gland ailment.

Rep. West

A former Texas Ranger, Representative West had represented the Fifteenth Congressional District since he succeeded John Nance Garner in a special election when the latter became Vice President.

His wife, Mrs. Temple Worley West, was at the bedside when he died at 8:25 a. m. Representative West had been ill for several months and announced some time ago he would retire from Congress at the end of his current term.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. on Saturday at the Brownsville (Tex.) Methodist Church.

The body will be taken to Texas in an Army transport plane, leaving Washington at 8 a. m. today. The funeral party will include Mrs. West and Representatives J. Frank Wilson and Tom Pickett of Texas.

Representative West, who made his home in Brownsville, lived at the Hamilton Hotel when in Washington.

A member of the House Ways and Means Committee since 1939, Representative West was primarily interested in tax legislation and tariff measures. He helped to write a number of bills in these fields.

Born near Gonzales, Tex., on June 30, 1888, he was graduated from the West Texas Military Academy in San Antonio, then served with the Texas Rangers in 1911 and 1912. Resigning, he began the study of law and was admitted to the Texas bar in 1915, opening an office in Floresville, Tex.

Perfected Surgery

Dr. Smithy, Heart Expert, Dies at 35

Dr. Horace G. Smithy, jr., 35, Charleston, S. C., surgeon who recently developed a new heart operation which gave hope to thousands of rheumatic fever victims, died yesterday at Charleston's Roper Hospital.

Dr. Smithy

Dr. Smithy was the son of Horace G. Smithy, Washington real estate dealer, and Mrs. Smithy. His parents live at 2721 31st pl. nw.

Death, according to the Associated Press, resulted from pneumonia, complicated by a heart ailment brought on by a boyhood attack of rheumatic fever. He had planned, doctors said, to undergo a heart operation himself this fall.

He was assistant professor of surgery at the Medical College of South Carolina in Charleston.

Last January he attracted nation attention with an operation on a heart valve, cutting away scar tissue interfering with blood flow. The operation was performed with a delicate instrument he and two associates designed and with a special anesthetic technique to control violent and dangerous heart spasms.

His patient, a 21-year-old Canton (Ohio) rheumatic fever victim, whose death had been predicted within a year, recovered and is now leading a more normal life than before. Since January he has performed seven other heart valve operations, five of which he termed successful. He never described his operation, however, as a cure but only as a means of bringing relief to rheumatic fever sufferers.

A native of Norfolk, Va., Dr. Smith came to Washington as a boy and attended Friends School and Episcopal High School here. He attended the University of Florida and the University of Virginia, receiving his medical degree from the latter in 1938. For the past three years, friends said, his own heart condition had hampered his research. He became ill about two months ago, they said.

He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Sara Rankin of Columbia, S. C.; two daughters and his parents. Funeral services will be held today in Charleston, with burial Saturday in Berryville, Va.

NOVEL EXTRA: Stockholders of General Mills, Inc., in the Washington area will receive a very special dividend on November 12. The "extra" will be a luncheon for them in the Statler on that day. It's the company's way of carrying the story of its twentieth year directly to its owners. The series of 10 regional meetings began October 22 in San Francisco, but Washington stockholders are the only ones who will be treated to a luncheon. Board Chairman Harry A. Bullis and other top officers of General Mills will be here to answer questions and discuss future plans.

Hoyas Favored Over Denver Tonight

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

POVICH

AT BALTIMORE tomorrow afternoon, Navy's brave team sallies forth again in an attempt to win a football game. If Navy's achievements to date leave something to be desired, particularly some kind of a victory, the courage of the Midshipmen is unchallenged. They haven't ducked the tough ones. Tomorrow, for example, it's Notre Dame. A Navy team that has won only two games in three seasons is taking on a school that hasn't lost a game in three years.

There's something particularly gallant about Navy despite the futility of its football teams. In the same year that West Point, weary of taking those beatings from Notre Dame, canceled out its series with the Irish, the Navy people with a defiant snort renewed their own contract with Notre Dame. Capt. Tom Hamilton, the boss of football at Annapolis, stated Navy's position when he said: "We'd rather play the tough ones and take our chances of getting licked than beat the pushovers."

Navy's chances of getting licked tomorrow are very good. On their records, the Middies don't belong in the same field with the unbeaten Irish and those crass realists, the betting commissioners, broadcast that you can have Navy and 20 points if you like their chances against Notre Dame. That's the equivalent of a 10-to-1 bet.

THERE'S NOTHING RELIABLE, though, about Navy's football teams. A couple of years ago they were supposed to take a horrible licking from Army in the annual service game, and ended up on the Cadets' three-yard line at the final whistle, licked only 21 to 18. Last week-end the Midshipmen were supposed to meet an horrendous fate against an unbeaten Penn team in Franklin Field and rose up to hold the Quakers to a 14-14 tie for three quarters before losing out, 20-14.

Defeats haven't allayed Navy's tremendous zest for the battle. Hamilton in scheduling the murderous schedule for Navy teams counts on Navy fight and Navy spirit to balance the lack of manpower. It has been said of Hamilton that he would have conceded the Japs the advantage of the atom bomb in the Pacific and still been willing to rely on good old Navy fight to win the war.

Civilian Coach George Sauer hasn't worked any wonders with the Navy material as yet and that isn't amazing. He came up to this season without too many second-stringers of last year's bumbling team now playing varsity roles. When he lost Bill Hawkins by injury, he was left with Pistol Pete Williams as the only so-called pro in his backfield. Without depth, Navy goes only as far as its first team takes them.

WHEN NOTRE DAME beat Iowa last Saturday, the Irish carried Coach Frank Leahy to a record shared only by the late Knute Rockne at South Bend—22 triumphs without a defeat. Rockne himself called the turn on Leahy as a coach genius, according to the story now being told.

That was back in the winter of 1930-31 when Rockne asked a Notre Dame alumnus to accompany him to a hospital to visit a boy recuperating from a football injury. After the visit, Rockne explained, "I wanted you to see that boy. He has the keenest football mind I've ever come in contact with. Remember his name, because he is going to be the greatest of all football coaches some day."

The injured boy was Leahy, you might have guessed, and tomorrow at Baltimore he's poised to excel the consecutive-victory mark of the old master which began with the fifth game of the 1918 season, a 26-6 win over Purdue, and didn't end until Iowa downed the Irish, 10-7, in 1921. Like Leahy, whose only blemish during his 22-game skein was a 0-0 tie with Army, Rockne played a 0-0 tie with Nebraska during the 22-game span.

GOOD FOOTBALL PLAYERS help to make good coaches, and there is little comparison between the material Leahy gets at Notre Dame and the talent that flows in Annapolis, Navy is dependent on the talents of its procurers, unlike Notre Dame which has a particular magnetism for the Catholic kids of the Nation who want to play football.

A dozen colleges last June attempted to lure Jack George, the local schoolboy sensation of St. John's prep, to their campuses. He cast his lot with Notre Dame. So did Bobby De Orsey, the baseball and basketball ace at Georgetown Prep. They are not isolated cases. The Irish wind up with the Jack Georges of every section and own the best backlog of talent in the Nation.

All these things Navy knows when it schedules Notre Dame, but the Middies have beaten the Irish in certain years, too, and the satisfaction and glory is the greater. Navy wants to keep playing the big teams. That's smart. After you've almost blown your wad, you can't get even by playing a 10-cent limit.

Of 1948 Season

Bearden, Dark Voted Best Rookies

By Joe Reichler

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Gene Bearden, the tall southpaw of the Cleveland Indians, was voted today the American League's rookie of the year.

The cool 28-year-old knuckleball artist who hurled the Tribe to the American League pennant in the epic playoff game with Boston at Fenway Park, thus joined up with Shortstop Alvin Dark of the Boston Braves as the frosh standouts of their respective circuits.

Both received the accolade in an Associated Press poll of 220 baseball writers throughout the country. While Dark had an easy time of it, beating out Richie Ashburn, 160 votes to 57 for the Philadelphia Phillies outfielder, Bearden had strenuous competition from the Red Sox's Billy Goodman.

He Noses Out Goodman

It was close right down to the last vote. Bearden was named on 90 ballots to 88 for the Sox young first baseman. In all, 11 players were given support for the American League's top rookie, in sharp contrast to the National League balloting which contained only five names.

Third place in the junior circuit's balloting went to Lou Brissie, southpaw pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics. The war hero drew 15 votes to 12 for Satchell Paige, the ageless Negro right-hander of the Indians.

No other player received more than four votes. They were scattered as follows: Bob Porterfield, New York Yankees' pitcher, 4; Mel Parnell, Red Sox southpaw, 3; George Vico, Detroit first baseman, Larry Doby, Cleveland outfielder and Johnny Lipon, Tiger shortstop, 2 each; and First Baseman Hank Arft and Pitcher Ned Garver, both of the St. Louis Browns, 1 apiece.

Doby Not Eligible

Doby was not listed among the eligible for rookie honors since he played in a sufficient amount of games in 1947. That undoubtedly, was the reason for his low total. The poll was completed before the start of the World Series in which Bearden played such a prominent role, winning a shutout game and saving another with expert relief hurling.

Only others besides Dark and Ashburn to receive support in the National League vote were Pitcher Robin Robert and Outfielder Johnny Blatnik of the Phils, and outfielder Hank Sauer of the Cincinnati Reds. Each received just one vote.

A sensational finish won Bearden the honors. The 6-2 native of Lexa, Ark., who now makes his winter home in California, won his last seven starts to finish the regular season with a record of 20 victories and only 7 defeats. He climaxed the regular campaign by defeating the Red Sox 8-3 in the playoff game for the American League flag.

Miami Game Tonight Will Screen Terps For Bowl

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Miami Beach, Fla., Oct. 28.—After a smooth plane trip from Washington, Maryland's football team arrived here late today prepared for a rough time against Miami University tomorrow night.

Although they're the favorites by two touchdowns, the Terrapins were warned not to regard the Hurricanes too lightly.

"They're a sophomore ball club with tremendous potentialities," Coach Jim Tatum admonished his Terps. "They're capable of exploding and unless you're on guard, it could be against you."

The Terps had only three days to prepare for the Miami game, but the general feeling among coaches and players tonight was that they're ready to put on their finest offensive show of the season.

Bowl Scouts in Stands

Maryland is definitely bowl-conscious. If they can hang up an impressive victory over not-too-impressive Miami, the Orange Bowl scouts, who'll be among the 40,000 on hand, will remember Maryland when the time comes to select the teams for the annual Orange Bowl game.

Miami has broken even in four games. They've whipped Rollins and Detroit, while bowing to Villanova and Georgia. Maryland has won four and lost one, 13-12, to Duke.

Under former Army Backfield Coach Andy Gustafson, the Miamians employ a formation attack with Sophomore Jack Delbello as the ringleader.

Although the Terps have no "name" performer in the backfield, they are armed with a hatful of offensive operators who have averaged 389 yards on the ground alone in five games. Hubie Werner, Harry Bonk and Vern Seibert in tip-top shape once again, are the running stars, while Quarterback Vic Turyn represents the passing arm. His favorite receivers are Elmer Wingate and Stan Karnash, ends.

New Kicking Combination

The Terps have made only one change for the Miami game. Guard Bob Dean and Sub-Quarterback Stan Lavine will be the extra point combination tomorrow night. Tom McHugh, the regular placekicker, missed two vital conversions in the 13-12 loss to Duke and has been sidetracked as has Turyn, who held for McHugh.

Terp Talk—End Francis Evans, who sustained a crushed cheekbone in the Washington game, made the trip, but won't play. He's lost until November at least . . . Maryland brought along 20 gallons of water from College Park . . . Tatum, along with Dr. H. C. Byrd, Maryland prexy, will fly from here to Knoxville, Tenn., to scout North Carolina against Tennessee Saturday . . .

Georgetown Seeks Third Win in Row, At Stadium

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Georgetown, seeking to increase a modest two-game winning streak, will be favored by at least two touchdowns to do just that against Denver University, 8:30 o'clock tonight at Griffith Stadium.

Since losing to Holy Cross and Boston College, the Hoyas brushed past Tulsa, 13-7, and walloped Fordham, 35-0. Jack Hagerty's hopefuls are anxious to get over that .500 hump and roll on to a winning season.

The charges of Johnny Baker, Southern California immortal whose field goal beat Notre Dame in 1931, 16-14, have lost five straight since taking their opener from Colorado Mines, 33-0.

The Pioneers' tailspin started with a 40-0 rout by Kansas. It continued rapidly with Oklahoma A. & M. winning, 27-7; Colorado A. & M., 14-10; Utah, 17-0, and St. Mary's of California, 33-22.

Kansas Is Yardstick

However, Denver supporters insist that the team isn't as weak as the foregoing figures indicate. Best line locally is Denver's Kansas defeat. The Jayhawkers had a difficult time subduing GW here, 12-0.

But rugged Roger Rambeaux, former Denver footballer turned publicist, explained that Kansas had only 12 first downs to 11 and Denver made 9 fumbles to help the Kansas offensive considerably.

Against Utah, Denver played its best game of the season. Utah, practically in as Mountain States Conference champion, was held scoreless until six minutes of the last quarter when it rallied to pull away. The Utes were held to 117 yards on the ground, lowest total in 10 years.

Haesler May Start

If Denver has overcome its severe "fumbleitis," Georgetown will have to look out. Certainly, the Hoyas must play a better game than they did against Fordham. Despite that 35-0 score, Georgetown wasn't too impressive last Friday night at the ball park.

The Hilltoppers (Washington variety—the boys from the mile-high city also use the title) are in excellent condition. Billy Conn, phenomenal soph, has recovered from the slight hip injury he received last week.

Georgetown may pull a surprise and start Dick Haesler at fullback. Haesler is another of the valuable second-year men Hagerty has. He's the Hoyas' extra-point specialist, too. Against Fordham, he convert-

Receipts 3% Off '47 Pace

Bert Bell Insists League Is 'Healthy,' But Income Drops

By Charles Welsh

Philadelphia, Oct. 28 (AP).—Commissioner Bert Bell took a peek at the figures on the National Football League cash register today and came up with the confident announcement, "We're healthy."

The figures, Bell said, show total gate receipts of $1,800,000 for the first 26 games. The commissioner admitted the total is "a little less than 3 per cent below the same 26 games in 1947—but close enough that this Sunday or any other Sunday we could pick up and go ahead of the 1947 total."

Bell said he was talking money" just to knock down some of these wild reports that the National Football League is a losing proposition." He didn't say so specifically but it was obvious he had in mind some recent blasts from the rival All-America Conference.

Only last Monday Admiral Jonas Ingram, Bell's counterpart in the AAC, endorsed statements that "some clubs" can't survive unless the AAC and NFL get together on such matters as a common-player draft and coordination of schedules.

Holds Position

But talking to reporters today at the weekly luncheon of the NFL's Philadelphia Eagles, Bell sniffed at any inference of weakness on the part of the NFL or retreat from its long-standing position of refusing to recognize the AAC.

Bell, who has an intimate recollection of what is important to a football franchise owner—"was an owner myself once," he recalls—said he wasn't paying any attention to attendance figures on the basis of the number of people in the park.

"All I want to know, and that really counts, is the number of dollars in the drawer," the commissioner contended.

"On that basis we're in good shape, especially when you take into acount that money is tighter all along the line than it was in 1947.

"And last year was the biggest year the NFL ever has had.

"We're a little behind, it's true, but any good Sunday could make up the difference. The Eagles, for instance, after beating the Bears last Sunday, are a better drawing card wherever they play."

Expenses Involved

Bert shied away from a question on how total receipts will stack up against expenditures.

"That takes in a lot of things besides payrolls—park rental, traveling expenses, overhead, a lot of things," he said.

"But I believe at least seven clubs have a chance to make money." He declined to specify which teams he thought might write a red ink summary at the end of the season.

But he did say that, again on the basis of gate receipts and not attendance, that the Chicago Bears and Cardinals, the Green Bay Packers and the Philadelphia Eagles all have set home attendance marks for a single game.

Green Bay, he noted, has hit new highs for more games both at Green Bay and Milwaukee, and "contrary to some reports it's a mighty healthy franchise."

Irish Due Today; 6 Players Talk To N. T. S. Boys

Six members of the Notre Dame football team, among them Center Bill Fisher, Halfback Terry Brennan and End Leon Hart, will be guests at a special assembly at National Training School this morning.

The visit by the Irish stars was arranged by correspondence between a group of N. T. S. boys and Father Joe Haley and Coach Frank Leahy of Notre Dame. Honor of introducing the stars will go to Maurice LaTulippe, a N. T. S. boy who conceived the idea.

Notre Dame arrives at the Brookland railroad station at 8:30 this morning, and will attend mass at Catholic University. The team will go to Baltimore for an afternoon drill at Babe Ruth Stadium.

However, the six players will be excused for the N.T.S. assembly, which takes place at 10 a. m.

Caps Beat Bullets In Exhibition

Baltimore, Oct. 28 (AP).—The Washington Capitols led the Baltimore Bullets all the way tonight in a Basketball Association of America exhibition game and won, 85-72, going away. Walt Budko, the Bullets' rookie from Columbia, led the scoring with 21 points. Washington led at halftime, 41-26.

Flyer Rally Ties

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 28 (AP).—Two last period goals that came within a minute and a quarter of each other gave the St. Louis Flyers a 4-4 deadlock with the New Haven Ramblers in an American Hockey League contest before 1,700 fans here tonight.

Greene Insists Seconds Pretty Up For Television

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 28 (AP).—Latest fashion note: The traditional form-fitting, turtle-neck sweaters are no longer the thing for the boxing second in New Jersey rings. After November 15, the perspiring gentlemen must be attired in light grey sweaters that button down the front.

Abe J. Greene, State athletic commissioner, explained the new rule was handed down because he wants boxing spruced up for television broadcasts.

Jack Lowers Boon in 3d

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Flash Beau Jack, former Augusta, Ga., bootblack, put on a "killer" demonstration last night to stop Eric Boon of London by TKO in 1:21 of the third round of a scheduled 10-rounder at Uline Arena.

A crowd of 1994, paying a gross gate of $4941.44, net $3413.27, saw the card. Jack weighed 143½, Boon 144.

Jack, former lightweight champion, won with the greatest ease. At the end he connected with a stinging right that sent his English rival staggering across the ring and into the ropes. Referee Eddie La Fond stopped it at that point.

Boon's nose began bleeding in the second round and Jack swarmed in for the kill. He landed almost at will but it wasn't until the start of the third that Boon weakened.

The husky Englishman, making his first United States appearance, toppled after Jack's first bolo of the session. He shook his head in surprise, but came up with both fists flying.

Again Jack connected, sending Boon sailing across the ring. That was enough—even the crowd was satisfied.

All local four-rounders went to Jackie Ford, 142, over Granderson Jones, 138; and to Richard Barber, 160, over Matt Daniels, 165½. Both were decisions.

In six-rounders, Bob Baldwin, 153, of New York, flattened Washington's King David, 153½, at 2:21 of the third, and Elkin Brothers, 190, of D. C., knocked out Willie Champion, 200, of New York, at 1:27 of the second.

Powers May Be Power in Navy Attack

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 28.—A dark-haired rangy kid in a gray sweat suit was on the Naval Academy football field this afternoon, jogging around the sidelines alone and doing calisthentics by himself and wrestling with George Rasmussen, curator of shoulder pads.

This was Bill Hawkins, the Navy's regular fullback, who can't play against Notre Dame in Baltimore Saturday because he has just been through a three-week bout with a blood disorder which the medical double-talkers call acute infectious monanucleosis.

Hawkins said he'd been sprung from the hospital yesterday. He said he felt fine and was sure that any weight he'd lost in his legs had been compensated for around the waistline. He saw Rip Miller, the line coach, and Tom Hamilton, the director of athletics, within earshot, and he raised his voice just a trifle.

The Hawk Wants His Lump

"I'd sure like to get a crack at Notre Dame," the Hawk said, like that. Three weeks in the hospital, one day out, and every promise of a lavish set of lumps coming up for Navy and what does the guy want? He wants his lumps.

Hawkins won't play, but there's another dark-haired party in this task force who will. His name isn't familiar as yet to readers of the sports page. But it will be. His name is Bill Powers. Navy's players call him "Mystic" Powers, and around the academy he is referred to as George Sauer's "Secret Weapon."

Powers, a member of the "youth unit" that Sauer has been seasoning slowly, is a youngster, a sophomore halfback. He isn't big, about 5-foot-10 and 170 pounds, but he played just enough against Penn last Saturday to give onlookers a hint of what he can do. He runs like a terrified thief.

He comes from Bryan, Tex., and wherever Bryan, Tex., is, it can't Remember—Score Phone Operates Only on Saturday

This is to make a personal request of you fans who call Sterling 5770, The Washington Post's football number, for results of games.

This phone functions only on Saturday from 4:30 p. m., when the results begin to come in, until about midnight.

The phones will be in operation again this Saturday.

But please do not use this number for football calls Friday night and Saturday morning. Sterling 5770 is not manned at that time for giving out football results.

Nussbaumer May Not Play

For the first time in 1½ years as a Redskin, Halfback Bob Nussbaumer may miss a game when the Washington pros play host to the Boston Yankees at Griffith Stadium Sunday.

The 170-pound former Michigan ace, hit hard on the side last week against the Green Bay Packers, has not practiced so far this week and is under a doctor's care for a pulled side muscle.

Though the Redskins will be favored Sunday, the loss of Nussbaumer could mean disaster. He is as fast and shifty as any back on the club, and his durability has made him exceptionally valuable to a team with mounting injuries.

Pep, Saddler Fight Tonight

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Willie Pep was favored at 13-5 today to defend successfully his world featherweight title against Sandy Saddler, slender but explosive young Harlem Negro, at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Their scheduled 15-round fight was expected to attract 15,000 fans and a gate of $65,000.

Citation's in a Class by Himself Today in Pimlico Special

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

CITATION DREW No. 1 post position.

In fact, Citation can break from any part of the starting gate his handlers so desire for the horse of the year, if not the century, runs alone today.

No chance to pick a loser in this event, listed as the sixth race at Pimlico and better known as the $10,000 winner-take-all Pimlico Special.

Thus for the second time in 18 Specials, the colors of the mighty Calumet Farm will have no opposition in the test of a mile and three sixteenths. In 1942, with the late Georgie Woolf up, Whirlaway scared off all opposition. Citation's regular rider, Eddie Arcaro, will handle him today.

While the Maryland Jockey Club thus loses one of its more exciting contests of the fall season, nonetheless a banner throng is anticipated.

Seldom in our time has any thoroughbred aroused as much interest as Citation and his very appearance, even without competition, is an event to which thousands look forward.

Mr. and Mrs. Wright will be on hand to see the champion give his exhibition and to receive the coveted Special trophy from Henry A. Parr 3d, president of Pimlico.

Because the Special is "no contest" there will be eight other races on the program as Pimlico begins its traditional 13-day fall meeting and Citation's appearance is scheduled between the fifth and sixth races, thus placing "post time" for his walkover at about 3:25 to 3:30 p. m. The card begins at 1:15 p. m.

Calumet Farm will be adding a fifth Pimlico Special triumph to its long list of important stakes won. In addition to Whirlaway's 1942 walkover, Calumet colors were carried home first by Twilight Tear in 1944, Armed in 1945 and Fervent in 1947.

Despite the lack of a contest the Special will be surrounded with the usual trimmings, which include the appearance of the Maryland Jockey Club band; a special blanket for Citation in the stable colors and with his name on the side and the traditional case of champagne for the winning stable.

Citation will go to the paddock to be saddled, just as in a regular race and will be led onto the track in the usual post parade.

The Calumet colt has won 24 of 26 starts for total earnings of $830,250, which places him second only to Stymie on the list of the world's top-money winners. Of that sum, $664,570 has been won this season, an all-time high for a horse in a single season. His walk-over in the Special will add $10,000 to his total.

Last season as a 2-year-old, Citation started nine times, winning on eight occasions, and his only defeat was at the hands of his stablemate Bewitch in the Washington Park Futurity. His stakes triumphs included the Pimlico Futurity, Belmont Futurity, Futurity Trial and Elementary Stakes. He earned $155,680.

Winning an allowance event at Hialeah on January 2, Citation has gone on this season to account for the Seminole Handicap, Everglades Handicap, Flamingo Stakes, Chesapeake Stakes, Derby Trial Kentucky Derby, Preakness, Jersey Stakes, Belmont Stakes, Stars and Stripes Handicap, American Derby, Sysonby, Jockey Club Gold Cup and International Gold Cup.

Citation was beaten in the mud at Havre de Grace in the Chesapeake Trial when he finished second to Saggy and he also won an allowance event at Washington Park.

Tennessee Can't Stop Tar Heels

By Austin Bealmear

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Getting in our Halloween pranks a few days early, we present this week's pigskin predictions in the hope of adding a few points to an average that now stands at .759 on 302 correct guesses and 96 which came out wrong.

North Carolina vs. Tennessee—If the Tar Heels get past this one, and there aren't many who think they won't, they can breeze right on through an all-victorious season into somebody's big bowl. Tennessee has won three in a row after a slow start but still isn't ready to handle the likes of Charley Justice and Hosea Rogers. North Carolina.

Illinois vs. Michigan—It was just two years ago that the Wolverines last tasted the bitter dregs of defeat. And their conqueror was Illinois, by a score of 13-9. The Illini have improved, but if Northwestern and Minnesota couldn't stop that powerful Michigan aerial attack, neither can they. Michigan.

Californ a vs. Southern California—Th. Trojans have scored only three touchdowns in their last four games. California.

Southern Methodist vs. Texas—Although the Longhorns' losses to North Carolina and Oklahoma, plus S.M.U.'s upset by Missouri, have taken the glamour off this one nationally, it's a hot article in the Southwest. Southern Methodist.

Notre Dame vs. Navy—The Middies scared the pants off Pennsylvania last week and may beat somebody yet. But don't count on it this week.

Georgia Tech vs. Duke—Twice-tied Duke has yet to lose, while Tech hasn't even been tied, and isn't likely to be in this one. Georgia Tech.

Ohio State vs. Northwestern—With Indiana meeting Minnesota, this is the game that may settle second place in the Big Nine and reward the winner with a trip to the Rose Bowl. In a close one, Northwestern.

Virginia Tech vs. Army—If the Gobblers score a point against the all-victorious Cadets, it will be more than they've managed against five other foes.

Michigan State vs. Oregon State—The team that nearly stopped Michigan before it got started and ruined Penn State's hopes of an all-victorious season is the choice here.

Georgia vs. Alabama—Georgia has been going great guns since its loss to North Carolina. Although it may be close, the nod goes to Georgia.

Indiana vs. Minnesota — That big Gopher line which yielded only 22 yards to Michigan on the ground looks too powerful for an Indiana team that has dropped three in a row.

Baylor vs. Texas Christian—By winning this one, once-tied Baylor can wrestle the winner of the SMU-Texas clash for the Southwest Confernce title. Baylor.

Washington and Lee vs. Pennsylvania — Having had to pull their last two games out of the fire in the closing moments, this should be a welcome relief to the all-victorious Quakers.

Missouri vs. Kansas State—The Tigers have tallied 164 points in winning four games since their opening defeat. Missouri.

Cornell vs. Columbia—On the theory that Cornell will be down after its loss to Army while Columbia learned its lesson in a last-minute defeat by Princeton, the pick here is Columbia.

Washington vs. Stanford—These two are going nowhere fast in the Pacific Coast Conference, which adds up to a close contest here. Stanford.

Riders Test Central's Grip on Lead

With one eye on two other important Interhigh League games, Anacostia invades Western today at 3:15 p. m., hoping to strengthen its hold on second place.

The runner-up Indians have a chance of going into a tie with Central for first place today. But in order for it to materialize, winless Roosevelt must whip unbeaten Central in their clash at 3:15 at Central.

INTERHIGH LEAGUE STANDINGS

	W.	L.	Pct.		W.	L.	Pct.
Central	4	0	1.000	McKinley	2	2	.500
Anacostia	3	1	.750	Wilson	2	2	.500
Eastern	2	2	.500	Coolidge	1	3	.250
Western	2	2	.500	Roosevelt	0	4	.000

In the other loop game, McKinley Tech and Eastern meet at Eastern, aiming to unlock the four-way tie for third place.

They all promise to be bruising games, with championship playoff berths at stake. Anacostia must win to keep within striking distance of Central. Anacostia's opponent, Western, is one of the four teams tied for third, and still has a good chance of making the playoffs.

Wilson, the other principal in the four-way deadlock, plays a nonleague game tonight at George Washington of Alexandria.

In nonleague competition, undefeated and untied Georgetown Prep tests perhaps its greatest team against Loyola, one of Baltimore's power teams. Loyola brings its unbeaten eleven to Garrett Park for the 3 p. m. clash.

Bethesda-Chevy Chase, unbeaten, and tied once, entertains Frederick, Md., at 3:30 in another feature of today's 15-game card.

Against Lafayette

Frank Cavallo Has to Live Up to Brother's Reputation

More than any other George Washington football player, Frank Cavallo will be on the spot against Lafayette Saturday in Easton, Pa.

Most of the 10,000 spectators will be expecting Frank to emulate the feats of one of his eight brothers, Tony.

Tony was a backfield sensation at Lafayette in 1937-39. In fact, he was so good that he was All-East fullback in 1938 and '39, and in '38 was honorable mention on most All-America teams.

The 5-foot-7-inch, 185-pound Frank has never quite attained the heights of his brother, but he'll get a good chance Saturday with G. W.'s backfield bruised from the Kansas and Maryland games.

One fellow who will vouch for Frank's potentiality is Jack Cloud, William and Mary's All-Southern Conference back. Frank played the best defensive game of his career against W&M in 1946.

Midway in the game, Cloud came flying in Frank's direction and Frank didn't give ground. The result was a crushing tackle. Cloud confessed after the game that he didn't remember playing in the second half. Cavallo's tackle was the reason.

The 25-year-old Frank is a junior and hopes to become a coach someday, just like Tony, who is a lieutenant in the Army special service. Tony coached baseball and football at Fort Meade last year.

Frank has been GW's placekicking specialist for the past two years, but hasn't had much of a chance because of the scarcity of Colonial touchdowns.

Six of Frank's brothers will be down from their home town of East Weymouth, Mass., for the Lafayette game to root him on.

C. U., Mounts Play Tonight At Frederick

Two changes have been announced in Catholic University's starting line-up for tonight's game with Mount St. Mary's at Frederick, Md. The kickoff is scheduled for 8:15 in Purdy Stadium.

Russ Johnson will replace injured Spencer Hart at right end, and Bill Holl will start at fullback in place of Bill DeYoung. Coach Tom Chisari said DeYoung would see action but that the faster-starting Holl was expected to give the Cards more offensive punch.

Catholic will have Joe Mauiri, crack punter, ready. The bespectacled triple-theater was injured early in the Johns Hopkins game last week and spent most of the afternoon on the bench. With Joe Dunn, who showed suprisingly good footwork against the Blue Jays, and Bucky Ennis ready to romp, the Cardinals expect to give the Mount a run for their money.

Chisari will use Bill Daly at center; "Scrappy" Scoppuelo and Al York at guards; Bil Mulvey and Harry Amadio, tackles; Jack Samperton and Johnson, ends; Whitey Hubert, quarter; Mauiri and Ennis, halves, and Hall at fullback.

Lions Oppose Springfield

Gordon Duggan, 21-year-old rookie sensation from Novia Scotia, makes his debut with the reshuffled Washington Lions tonight when they play host to Eddie Shore's Springfield Indians on Uline ice at 8:30 o'clock.

This marks the first start of the local pros since all except three uniformed players were fined $50 each by Coach Frank Beisler following a 2-7 loss to the St. Louis Flyers at Uline's last Tuesday night.

The Lions are undertaking a back-breaking American Hockey League schedule over the week-end, meeting the Indians again in Springfield, Mass., tomorrow night and the Bisons in Buffalo, N. Y., Sunday.

Duggan tonight will team up with Win Mousseau on a line centered by Dan Porteous. The other combinations will find Kenny Schultz centered between Dave Maguire and Frank Porteous and George Hayes between Joe Ciuman and Walter Babey.

The Lions' rookie will serve as a replacement for Larry Archambeault, who will be sidelined with a leg injury tonight.

Virginia Alumni Hold Grid Rally Tonight

The Washington Chapter of the University of Virginia Alumni Association will hold a football rally at the Carlton Hotel tonight at 8 o'clock in connection with the Virginia-Princeton game at Princeton Saturday.

Virginians plan to make the trip to Princeton in a special car out of Washington Saturday morning.

Area Notre Dame Club Will Honor Game Stars

The Washington, Maryland and Virginia Club of Notre Dame will award trophies to the most valuable Navy and Notre Dame players in Saturday's football game

Newspaper reporters covering the game will vote for the outstanding individual on each team. The trophies will be presented at a dance here Saturday night in the Uline Arena.

Chevy Chase Mark Beaten By 7 Seconds

Laurel, Md., Oct. 28 1948.—Setting a new record for the event and the course, the Rokeby Stable's American Way, a member of a three-horse entry and owned by Paul Mellon of Pittsburgh, won the $15,000 added Chevy Chase Steeplechase here today.

By a margin of a length, the 6-year-old son of Gino drove into the wire ahead of Robert W. Grant's Sun Bath. Third money went to Mrs. S. C. Clark, jr.'s, Trough Hill, clustered in the betting with the winner. Thus two of the three money horses are trained by John T. Skinner of Middleburg, Va.

A crowd of 12,000, watching the final program of the 25-day meeting here—it's Pimlico tomorrow—saw American Way turn in time of 4:47 4/5 for the about two and a half miles over 16 jumps. The performance knocked into a cocked hat the mark held by Sun Bath, the second horse today of 4:54 2/5.

Rally Falls Short

Backers of the winning triple-threat entry collected a $5 win mutuel and witnessed a thrilling finish in which Sun Bath almost pulled victory out of the fire after apparently being through a quarter of a mile from home.

American Way took down $12,-850 by his victory in the 'chase first contested here in 1911 and won last year by Sun Bath. The triumphant son of Gino was ridden by Jockey D. Marzani and brought his 1948 earnings to $53,425. It was his fourth win on ten tries this season.

Both Genancoke, his stablemate, and Sun Bath deserve assists in American Way's fast time. Genancoke and Sun Bath alternated in setting and forcing the pace virtually throughout the long grueling test.

Sun Bath Short

American Way was steadied within striking distance of the leaders most of the distance. It was approaching the final jump that Marzani put the gelding to a drive. Genancoke weakened and American Way took command over Sun Bath. However, in the final jumps, Sun Bath was coming again and wearing down the winner.

A minor mishap was the lone bobble of the race. Jockey E. A. Russell was tossed by Cloonshee at the final fence. The boy and the horse were uninjured.

Jockey Bobby Strange, who starts a five-day suspension tomorrow for rough riding, was the flat-racing hero of the day. He rode three winners, including both ends of a $335 daily double. Strange won the first race with H. R. Paus' Lamplighter, a $59.20 shot. He came back in the second with A. Rosaco's Hamlet at $17.60. His third success was aboard Mrs. M. E. Murphy's Good Service, an $8 proposition in the seventh event.

W&L Coach Says Team Will Give Penn 'Good Game'

Bisons Picked To Lose Again

Gallaudet's lightweight football team held its final scrimmage yesterday before Saturday's game against Randolph-Macon College at Ashland, Va.

The Bisons of Washington have had two weeks to recuperate from their 42-0 licking by Guilford in their opener. But they will be underdogs again against the Yellow Jackets, who are reportedly in their best condition since their first game with Richmond.

Linemen Bob Spicer, Jim Alfred and Marvin Garbett, along with Halfback Ken Holloway, have returned to duty this week after being out with injuries.

Lee Hargrave, 175-pound center from Petersburg, Va., also reinforced the team yesterday when Coach Taylor Sanford promoted him from the B squad.

Both men were injured in the Iowa game last Saturday, Brennan getting a bruised knee and Swistowicz a torn hip muscle.

Princeton No Cinch to Win Over Virginia

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 28.—Virginia meets Princeton here Saturday in the eleventh renewal of one of the Nation's oldest intersectional rivalries and the only thing certain about the game is that it won't be a repetition of the 1890 inaugural.

In that one, at Baltimore, Virginia was swamped, 115-0 Although the Cavaliers will be two-touchdown underdogs Saturday, the game easily can go either way.

Virginia hasn't had much success against Princeton—in fact, went scoreless in its first nine games and got only a tie in 1828. But two years ago here, Virginia surprised Princeton, 20-6, right after the Tigers sprang their famed 17-14 upset over Pennsylvania.

A similar situation now prevails. Last week, a Princeton club that had lost three straight, rose to great heights and prevailed over Columbia, 16-14, on Soph Frank Reichel's field goal in the last 75 seconds.

Virginia's squad is due to arrive for a workout at Palmer Stadium tomorrow afternoon and will be quartered at the Hildebrecht Hotel in Trenton. It will be followed by Cavalier rooters who are taking special trains from Washington, Baltimore and Richmond.

Latest word from Charlottesville was that the squad is in good physical condition except for three linemen—Tackles Dyke Jones and Dick Johnson and Guard Laurence Baumann—who have minor injuries.

Art Guepe's Virginia offensive will be powered by Johnny Papit, Philadelphia sophomore who is second leading rusher in the country.

Another Satch?

Reggie Lee Excels in Three Sports

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

There's another Satchel Paige in the making at National Trainig School.

He's only 16, but the tales of his athletic feats are already as fantastic as those of the ageless Cleveland pitcher.

The new Satch is James (Reggie) Lee, 5-foot 10-inch lad with a gleaming smile, and bulging biceps which belie his 150 pounds.

They say that he throws a baseball so fast that no N. T. S. catcher has been able to handle him for more than five innings.

Joe Bunsa, athletic director at N. T. S., and a coach in Washington high schools for 12 years says Reggie is the best young basketball player he's ever seen.

And Bunsa adds that he's the best football prospect he's seen. According to Bunsa, he's completed passes that traveled 60 yards.

He's run 70 yards for touchdowns. And he's punted 80 yards in the air.

We were a little doubtful about the latter, so yesterday, we went out to visit Reggie. He had his football uniform on, and he obligingly walked out to the 50-yard line. Standing to the rear of the end zone was his dad, Scrip Lee, a fabulous figure himself.

Reggie got off four straight boots of 60 yards, and his father, 49 years old, but limber, kicked the ball right back. After failing to kick over 65 yards the next time, Reggie shrugged his shoulders and yelled to the elder Lee, "I just can't hit 'em right today."

"Just one more time," Scrip Lee coaxed. And the muscular youngster responded with a massive punt that cleared the end zone, and landed on a 15-foot cliff just beyond. The kick was a good 80 yards, and we rubbed our eyes.

Stories about Reggie's baseball exploits lured Dodger Bird-dog Shorty Hughes to an N. T. S. game last summer. The Bannecker Skaters one of the strongest teams in the Walter Johnson League provided the opposition. Flashing his smile at every batter, Reggie struck out 17 in the 7-inning game and gave up only two scratch hits.

The only reason Hughes didn't sign him on the spot was that Reggie will be at N.T.S. until December. Then he'll finish high school with two more years at Armstrong. Hughes will be watching Reggie next year though.

Reggie's dad is quite a story, too. He pitched professionally in Negro leagues for 17 years before retiring in 1938. His best season was 1924 when he pitched Hillsdale of Darby, Pa., to the Eastern League title with 28 wins.

In 1930, he moved to the Baltimore Black Sox and there encountered the original Satchel Paige. Ole Satch was still a comparative newcomer then, who had already developed a fondness for boat-like autos.

Satch was strictly a fastballer, and having trouble winning. One day, Scrip, a submarine curve specialist, took Satch aside and taught him to throw a hook and a knuckle ball. Paige began to win.

Through the years, Satch never forgot. When the Indians come to Washington, Satch pays Scrip a visit at 1664 32d st. nw.

A hacker now, Scrip says, "all these stories about Satch being over 50 are not true. He's still in his very early 40s, and has plenty of big league ball left."

Scrip is optimistic about his boy's big league chances. "He's fast, and is willing to learn. He'll make the grade, just like I would have if. I'd have had the chance. But he's going to finish school, and maybe go to college first. That's another opportunity I missed."

Anacostia 'B' Loses To Bullis Prep 'B,' 30-0

VPI Center Back for Army Game

Lexington, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—Washington and Lee Coach Art Lewis, unawed by Pennsylvania's football powerhouse, predicted today that his Generals would give the ponderous Quakers "a good game" on Saturday.

Lewis, apparently with every reason to be pessimistic, came up with this cheerful note after watching the W-L squad scamper through a light workout with exceptional spirit. Nobody was inclined to be downhearted about the Generals' chances against the undefeated Quakers.

Two players — Quarterback Ray Leister and Guard Herb Miller—got back into action today after being sidelined with injuries.

However, W-L will have to face the Quakers without the services of End Jim Fahey, a regular starter who hurt this leg in last week's West Virginia game.

The squad of 35 leaves for Philadelphia tomorrow morning and works out on Franklin Field tomorrow afternoon.

Burns Returns

Blacksburg, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—Tom Burns, Cumberland, Md., senior who just returned to active duty after being out with injuries since the second game of the season was named today to captain Virginia Tech's Gobblers against Army.

Burns, a center, broke his hand against Virginia but has flashed his old-time form in scrimmage this week.

The Gobblers, after a light workout today, entrained for West Point tonight from nearby Radford.

VMI Works Under Lights

Lexington, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—VMI's defenses got a going-over today as the Keydets worked long and hard for Saturday's Southern Conference outing against Davidson.

Coach Slick Morton set Freddie Anson and Paul Shrader to booting the ball and drilled the offense-minded team on checkmates for the Davidson aerial game. The workout lasted so late that lights had to be cut on.

Esleeck Plays It Safe

Powers May Surprise Irish

be very big, for it Powers won any special reputation as a high school football star no word of it reached these parts. He was just another halfback in the plebe squad last season, but he began to attrac attention during spring practice until he suffered a leg injury.

Afterward he went on cruise with the others in his class, got back at the end of July and went off for a month's leave. With a week of August remaining, he showed up back here alone. He had decided to play some varsity football this year, he explained, and he wanted to get into shape.

First the effects of the leg injury held him back and then he damaged a finger in scrimmage. But he's ready now, and if Notre Dame happens to kick a punt his way on Saturday, the 63,000 witnesses may see something. If they do, they won't see it for long, only about as long, say, as a blur.

There is one thing, in addition to the Notre Dame line, which may slow Powers down a mite. Seems they played a polo game last Sunday on the wet turf of Babe Ruth Stadium in Baltimore and when it was over the field looked like a freshly filled grave. Because of the quality of the soil, it was deemed unwise to use heavy rollers on the field.

Consequently, all week long the city of Baltimore has had a troupe of workmen tromping around the field, stamping the divots down with their boots. The field has, according to last reports, been stomped into submission.

Phil Funk will start at tackle with Tom Dolan. Funk, a local product from Wilson High, has been moved up because of his improved play. Jim Ricca and John Berger, 240-pound guards, will be in against a Denver line that will be outweighed about 12 pounds per man.

In an effort to snap his losing string, Coach Baker is letting Backfield Coach Bob Seymour, of Oklahoma and Redskin fame, and Line Coach Bud Kerr, Notre Dame All-American, select their own starters.

Seymour has indicated that his backfield will be composed of Vern Cochran, John Parise, Hal Pfeiffer and Andy Pavich. The latter was an All-Conference fullback last year. Certain to see plenty of action are Jim Jordan and Bill Fitchie, strong running backs who both have averaged 5 yards a try this season.

Probable line-ups:

Denver		Georgetown
Reed	L. E.	Sarabelvita
Westbay	L. T.	Dolan

PUMPKIN cookies are fine Halloween fare, whether they're served as part of the dessert course or as informal refreshments for "tricks-or-treat" youngsters. The witches in this picture were made with pipe cleaners, gum drops, black poster and crepe paper. Fashion a body with pipe cleaners and add gum drops for the head, feet and hands. With the poster paper, make a stove pipe hat, and use the crepe paper for the witch's dress and hair

Tricks and Treats Menus

Food Magic for Halloween

By Lucia Brown

THERE'S a witch behind the moon and she'll be coming out soon.

Black cats are practicing a caterwaul chorus in the old rock quarry under the hill.

Ghosts are running the basement washing machine at all hours of the night, getting their sheets done up.

In other words, it's almost Halloween and time for even the most practical mother—who'd say "scat" to a spook any other month in the year—to help the youngsters get ready for the magical occasion.

Since prowling around is the order of the night Halloween, maybe you'd like to take advantage of this tendency by having a progressive dinner or supper party. Parents of youngsters in the same neighborhood can cooperate on this one, and it's the sort of thing that doesn't take a lot of advance planning.

Preparing only one course each makes the work lighter for the mothers. And having the main celebration at the dinner hour gets things off to an early start and a more reasonable bedtime, for even spooks must sleep.

What to serve as the fearsome band wends its way from house to house? Well, here are two menu suggestions. The main idea is to keep it simple, serve it colorfully and not have too much to eat at any one place.

Spiced Apple Juice
Creamed Chicken on Hot Biscuits
Buttered Carrots Potato Chips
Orange Goblin Salad
Ice Cream Pumpkin Cookies

The orange-goblin salad is easy to make. Just open a can of peaches and put a half on a small piece of lettuce in the center of each plate. Around this arrange a ring of orange segments or slices. Stick whole cloves in the smooth side of the peach half to make a goblin face.

A few animal crackers on each plate will make this child's treat still more interesting. To make this a "surprise" salad you might hide a small wrapped candy favor in the hollow of each peach.

AT DESSERT time you might like to scatter a few orange candies over vanilla ice cream, or have chocolate ice cream to contrast with orange-iced cookies. The pumpkin cookies are delicious ones and not too rich for late-night eating:

PUMPKIN COOKIES

1 1/3 cups sugar
1 egg
1 cup canned pumpkin
3 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
Raisins
Uncooked icing (if desired)

Cream the shortening and sugar thoroughly. Add beaten egg and pumpkin. Stir in the dry ingredients which have been sifted together, and mix well. Form into small balls and place on a cooky sheet. Press into round, flat shape with the bottom of a glass which has been lightly greased and floured. Press in raisins to make eyes, nose and mouth, or bake plain (for later icing) in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) about 15 minutes. This recipe makes about 5½ dozen cookies.

If you plan to ice the cookies, you can tweak cat ears at the top of some of them before they go into the oven. Then when they come out, you can ice the round ones with orange-colored icing and the cats with chocolate icing. Eyes can be outlined with icing or with raisins or other goodies.

IF YOUR crowd of kids are 'teenagers and not so given to tummy-aches from evening eating, the following menu including franks, baked beans and pumpkin tarts may make a hit with them:

Tomato Juice
Frankfurters and Baked Beans
Tossed Green Salad Carrot Sticks
Hot Buns
Pumpkin Tarts, or Orange-Grape Punch, Gingerbread

It might be fun to have the main part of the party at the last house—most of the Halloween stunts and games—and wait until these are over to serve the dessert in "refreshment" style.

PUMPKIN TARTS

½ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
1¾ cups canned pumpkin
1 cup evaporated milk
½ cup water
Pastry

Beat the eggs in a mixing bowl. Add sugar, spices, salt and pumpkin. Mix well. Add milk and water and stir until mixture is smooth. Fill six pastry lined tart pans with pumpkin mixture. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) and continue to bake about 45 minutes, or until mixture is firm and crust is well-browned. This recipe makes six tarts. Serve

Mary Haworth's Mail

Cultured Professional Woman Whose Work Transplanted Her to Washington Is Dashed By Poor Return on Her Hospitable Dinners

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been reading your articles and enjoying them very much, and was particularly interested in your column of October 7, in which you advise the mature-age professional woman, alone in life, not to be childish or timid in the field of friendships, and to invite a respected man co-worker to dinner, if she so inclines.

The implications of that discussion apply to me in various ways, but leave certain questions unanswered, at least in the light of my experience.

I am a mature, cultured woman with an excellent position and a lovely apartment-home. I am attractive, chic and look 10 years younger than my calendar age, according to the testimony of relatives and friends.

At present I am living away from family-roots, so to speak, my work having caused me to settle here, and at first I bid for new friendships in this locality by the hospitable procedure which you encourage. In every way, I exemplified the spirit of the aphorism, "He who would have friends must be friendly."

Men Don't Bother to Say Thank You

I GAVE lovely dinners at which nothing was lacking, and faithful to the proprieties, I never dined a man alone but always had another couple, sometimes a married couple. But to my utter puzzlement I never received any courtesy from these men guests in return; not even a thank-you message by mail or telephone. I repeat, I never heard from them again.

I mentioned this to an elderly worldly-wise woman friend of mine back home, who said that men in Washington are terribly spoiled and run-after, dreadfully afraid of being entoiled, and take almost any social favor for granted. Be that as it may, I

Mrs. Lee Visits in Capital

Her Honor, Portland's Mayor, Learned About Politics Here

By Genevieve Reynolds

GRAY-EYED, white-haired Dorothy McCullough Lee, mayor-elect of Portland, Oreg., has bit off a big hunk of responsibility. She intends to see that the fast-growing city gets adequate, efficient law enforcement. In fact, that was one of the issues that elected the slender woman over 13 candidates in the recent election.

In town for a few days at the Statler Hotel with her husband, W. Scott Lee, she says that she expects to propound a city manager plan of government, elective judgeships instead of appointive ones, and in general a good, sound administration which will capitalize on the present vast industrial and economic opportunities now open in Portland.

Softspoken Mrs. Lee will be the second woman in the United States to be mayor when she takes office January 1. She'll be the only one to serve in a city the size of Portland, with full burden of the office. At present the only other woman holding a mayoralty is the one in Sacramento, Calif., where there is city manager type of government.

THE mayor-elect scoffs at the oft-repeated theory—women won't support others of her sex. It was a group of civic minded members of the sex and clubwomen who started her on a political career. Two years after the California barrister moved to Portland, a group of women approached her and insisted that she run for a seat in the county delegation to support specific school and social legislation. In 1926 she was defeated but ran again in 1928 and was easily elected to the State House of Representatives. Reelection followed and then a niche in the State Senate. Only time she has been defeated was in 1936 when the Democrats landslided into office.

During her sojourn in the State Legislature Mrs. Lee sponsored a bill to create a Court of Domestic Relations plus school legislation.

IF the main course of the progressive Halloween dinner party is served at your house, you may want to decorate the table with grinning black cats like these. They can be easily made of paper, a few feet of wire, and some gay orange or yellow ribbons. Two or three large cats can be used as centerpieces, while smaller ones cut from heavy stiff paper, serve as candleholders, decorations on little candy cups, and place cards on napkins

The large-sized cat is made from three 15-inch strips of black crepe paper (one 5 inches wide, the others 7 inches wide) each folded into eight thicknesses, slashed to make a coarse fringed edging, and then tied with wire into pompons to form the head and body. After pompons are tied and fringed crepe paper and wire tail is made, features of the face are cut from white paper and pasted on—the mouth covered with red crepe paper and the eyes with green. A big bow of yellow or orange satin ribbon finishes the job in a jiffy

The small cats can be snipped, free-hand or from a sketch, from stiff black paper. Red crepe paper mouth and nose and green eyes are pasted on, then teeth, whiskers and eyebrows are marked in white chalk. "Profile" cats for the napkins are even simpler to make. They should be just large enough to have a young guest's name written on in white chalk Inexpensive paper cups, paper plates, napkins and even a crepe paper tablecloth can be used to add informality to the party. Make gay borders for the cloth by running a strip of orange crepe paper along each side of the table, several inches from the edge, and pin in place

Ask Anne — Planning the Halloween Party

A friend and I would like to have a Halloween party in the basement this week. We need suggestions on decorations, games, and refreshments. Neither one of us knows much about planning this kind of a party.
T. L. M.

Your letter didn't reach us in time to get an earlier answer in the paper. However, we hope it's still in time to be of some help. A basement certainly offers lots of opportunities for attractive decorating for a party of this type. There could be nothing nicer than out-doorsy things—corn stalks, pumpkins, autumn leaves and berries—for use in this case.

You want to leave plenty of space for playing games and possibly dancing, so if the basement is furnished, I'd suggest pushing the furniture back against the wall. Chairs and sofas can serve as seats for the crowd around the edge of the room. Shocks of corn with a few pumpkins at their feet can be placed at the corner. If you can't get the cornstalks, branches of autumn leaves can be arranged in somewhat the same manner. Lighted jack o'lanterns in the windows can provide all the lighting for the room, if you have enough of them. Big bowls of apples surrounded by autumn leaves can be used on tables.

Good way to start off the fun is by having an obstacle course. As each guest arrives, lead him to a corner where chairs and other obstacles have been set up in zig-zag fashion. Let the victim thoroughly examine this maze, then tell him he must walk through it blindfolded and that for each obstacle he knocks down he must pay a forfeit. As soon as his eyes are covered, quickly remove all the obstacles, then watch him trying to edge around all the stumbling blocks that aren't there!

Bobbing for apples in a tub of water or suspended from a string is of course a favorite Halloween stunt. Peeling apples and throwing the peel over your shoulder is another. It's supposed to form the initial of the person you will marry. Having one of the crowd with a lively imagination dressed as a witch and seated in a curtained-off place to tell fortunes will add to the fun. The only light in her "tent" should be a candle or a grinning pumpkin face.

Gingerbread, cider, nuts and apples would suffice as appropriate refreshments. Another suggestion would be pumpkin pie with whipped cream and coffee. Or you might have a tray of assorted cakes to serve along with a special Halloween ice cream from your local store (if such cream is available) or with orange ice.

Apples-on-sticks are attractive for a Halloween party. You can make them by boiling 2 cups granulated sugar, ⅓ teaspoon cream of tartar, and ¾ cup water together in a small saucepan. Stir until sugar is dissolved. Cook without stirring them until a little of the mixture dropped in cold water forms a very hard ball. Remove immediately from the heat and place over boiling water. Thrust a wooden skewer into a small red apple (washed and dried) and dip the apples one at a time into the syrup and out immediately. Place

Czechs Mark Anniversary; Farewell Party Honors Glazers

THE thirtieth anniversary of the Republic of Czechoslovakia was celebrated yesterday at a reception held at the embassy from 6 to 8 o'clock. Mme. Outrata, wife of the Ambassador, met official and diplomatic Washington for the first time since her arrival in Washington last June.

The Ambassadress has taken in very little of the social life of Washington, as her time has been occupied with a small son named Jan, who was born in Washington last August. And recently she received the sad news that her mother had passed away in Prague.

At the reception yesterday Mme. Outrata received with the Ambassador in the library. Fall flowers and leaves decorated the various rooms of the embassy and the buffet table in the dining room was centered with red, white and blue flowers, arranged by the hostess who has a special flair for such things. The buffet included hors d'oeuvres, Czech specialties, turkey, ham, salads and ices.

Among the guests invited to the function were the Ambassador of Great Britain and Lady Franks, the Ambassador of France and Mme. Bonnet, the Ambassador of the Soviet Union, Alexander S. Panyuskin the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Charles E. Saltzman, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Charles Sawyer, the Postmaster General and Mrs. Jesse Monroe Donaldson, and the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Julius Krug.

Mr. Cunningham, also with the State Department, has also received a transfer to Saigon.

Harvest Fete Honors GOP Committees

FOR WORK well done, the fund raising workers of the Washington Dewey-Warren Club were treated yesterday to a harvest festival held at the home of Mrs. Anne Archbold on Reservoir rd. Autumn leaves filled the house with color, and a concert on the Steinway was given by Kurt Hetzel, noted musician.

Mme. Avant gave her clever monologue called "Political Style Show", which has been a feature attraction at campaign meetings all over the country.

Hostesses at the festival were members of the Special Gifts Committee, headed by Mrs. Thad Brown, sr. Among the guests were Mrs. Charles W. Weis, jr., associate campaign manager for the Republican ticket; Mrs. Herbert Brownell, wife of the Republican campaign manager, and Mrs. Robert W. Fast, Furious, Funny

Hollywood Star Casts Stage Jumbo Broadcasts, Rallies for Candidates

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Oct. 28.—Out here political campaigning is fast, furious and sometimes funny. For the first time since the New Deal took over, Republican-minded moviedom aristocrats have flexed their political muscles. Two years ago the Hollywood Republican Committee was organized with stars George Murphy and Robert Montgomery as president and vice president, respectively. This past month these gents have been campaigning like mad, broadcasting, speechmaking, touring doubtful districts. Last week, for instance, a hurry call from Indiana had Murphy, Montgomery and Lee Bowman out in a trice backing their soundtruck into doorways of the Carnegie and Inland Steel plants where four years back a Dewey button wearer risked instant trouble.

They have arranged radio jumbo broadcasts in San Francisco today, Los Angeles Saturday, a cross-continental job Monday which will evoke the oratory of such notables as Jinx and Tex McCrary, Nelson Eddy, Gladys Swarthout, dozens of others. With such moguls as Louis B. Mayer, Sam Goldwyn, Nicholas Schenck, Jack Warner, Darryl Zanuck unlatching their purses and shoving in their finest writing talents, the stars have made some potent talks.

At the Hollywood Bowl Dewey rally a dozen or more made one-minute speeches which were individually and collectively knockouts. Political gags have been coined, too, Author Morris Riskin coming up with a magnificent effort which Victor Moore, once the unforgettable Throttlebottom, recorded, under the interesting title "A Day in the White House."

The Distaff Side

ON THE FEMININE side the Republican effort was spearheaded by Ida Koverman, right hand relations smoother for Louis B. Mayer. Mrs. Koverman, white-haired, motherly, extraordinarily shrewd, started her scintillating career working in Herbert Hoover's mining companies then taking over in his various political campaigns, accomplishing a selling job.

Right now she puts the heat delicately on movie bigshots to make campaign contributions, oversees actors' activities and is helping stage a juicy demonstration against Democratic Candidate for Congressional reelection Helen Gahagan Douglas.

Armed with a brass band and an assortment of attractions, including such dream girls as knowing Columnist Hedda Hopper, Ginger Rogers and remarkable Negro speaker, Mrs. Grace Evans of Terre Haute, she is invading La Douglas' own domain, the Fourteenth District.

GOP Ties up the Bowl

STRAIGHT-LACED as Republicans claim to be, it's fun to hear the story of the Hollywood Bowl Dewey rally told absolutely deadpan. The Republicans signed it up, paid down deposits for the only two evenings President Truman was to be in the neighborhood. The preliminary evening was reserved for a rehearsal and though the frustrated Democrats offered huge sums the Republican contingent stood pat, actually rehearsed until 2 a. m.

Four years ago a much more elaborate rally was staged for Dewey who, unfortunately was not in good oratorical form, and after the fine goings on let them down with a boring speech. However, this time Governor Dewey pulled all the stops and satisfied completely.

On the other side of the fence the Democrats have been concentrating on the districts which they are likeliest to win. From nearby Long Beach, Clyde Doyle, who served in the Seventy-ninth Congress but was defeated in the 1946 Republican landslide, is rated a good comeback chance. In San Diego California's Twenty-Third District, a newcomer, Clinton McKinnon, is reported a sure-fire winner. Owner of the San Diego Journal, he'll make a nice addition to Washington legislative circles. In the Ninth District Candidate Bud Gearhardt is on the up-and-up, too. Stepping into the struggle to put them over is Jimmy Roosevelt and Secretary of Agriculture Brannan while Maurice Tobin and Senator Pepper have added their bit.

Assists by the Roosevelt Clan

THE ROOSEVELT clan is three strong out here. Jimmy, a national committeeman for California, is no longer chairman of the State party. When his term was up, State Senator Oliver Carter succeeded him. Since the Democratic convention, Jimmy, who heads an insurance firm, has been working like a beaver trying to make money lost through politicking. He is the papa of three small children by his second wife, the former Romelle Schneider, and needs a steady income. Jimmy's third child, a girl, is named after her famous grandma.

Ann Roosevelt Boettinger is living quietly in Beverly Hills, working hard preparing the broadcasts which she will launch jointly with her mother early next month. With Anna is her youngest child, a Boettinger son. She sold the newspaper she and her husband owned in Phoenix for a very tidy sum, feeling that she had reached saturation point in Arizona newspaper circles. Boettinger, who recently made a trip to Europe, seems to have disappeared more or less for keeps.

John Roosevelt, the youngest, keeps his nose clean of politics and at Democratic headquarters, they say, he even broke the final tie by registering Republican. A businessman and successful, he has moved from a Grayson Stores job, set up his own concern.

Major campaigning jobs are being done by National Committeewoman Esther Murray, who put on a superb luncheon rally at the Coconut Grove for Senator Barkley and, of course, by Helen Douglas. A hot but possibly incorrect rumor is that two years hence Mrs. Douglas, Jimmy Roosevelt and perhaps Anna Boettinger will all try to snag the governorship from Earl Warren's successor, the present lieutenant governor.

The wizard who has coordinated the divergent Democratic factions, raised money in arid territory, and kept everyone reasonably happy is State Senator George Luckey, one of the Imperial Valley's wealthy cattleman. Two of his greatest assets, incidentally, are Rita Hayworth, who tears herself away from the Aly Khan, from time to time to appear with Helen Douglas, and Harpo Marx who, when spurred by politics, is surprisingly vocal.

Merrow, children's corner; Mrs. Tolbert Lanston, household gifts; Harvey A. Stroud, magazine subscriptions; Mrs. Charles Keene, toy shop; Miss Nannie Chase, white elephant table; Mrs. Henry H. Clement and Mrs. Samuel A. Kimberly, fortune telling; Miss Eva P. Cox, flower table, and Mrs. Brown Harbold, chairman of decorations.

Madeleine Carroll Speaks Up

What's Woman's Best Age? Your Own, of Course, Says Star

By Ida Jean Kain

WHATEVER your age may be, Madeleine Carroll's idea of a woman's most interesting age will suit you just fine. "It's the age she is," declares Miss Carroll. "Of course she must make it her best age—and she can."

Each stage of life is full of promise if we live it that way, this understanding actress believes. "Hanging onto youth for dear life is pretty silly. It works against a woman actually because she misses out on the present." Imagine that from a movie star!

Miss Carroll lives her philosophy. For her, the war years were spent in the cause of humanity and freedom, most of the time overseas with the American Red Cross. Her main interest there was in working with children, because that was where she felt she could help most. When she returned home, American youngsters looked overweight in comparison with those abroad.

Lovely Madeleine Carroll comes back to the American screen in United Artists' "An Innocent Affair." An interview with this fortright actress is full of surprises

Struggle for Food

"European women have a great struggle every day to get enough food for the children," she explains. "Among the women themselves there is a tendency toward overweight because they must overeat on starches. Bread is not rationed, but there is little meat or other protein foods. The people over there are deeply appreciative of our food packages and clothing," she adds fervently.

Everyone knows Madeleine Carroll is a beautiful blonde—but this was by no means just another interview with a beautiful blonde. She is honest and surprisingly forthright — no stock answers to questions, no punches pulled. Asked for her opinion of what is most detrimental to American women's beauty, she came right back with: "Too much drinking. The cocktail habit is the worst thing in the world for a woman's looks."

Second most detrimental—not enough walking. "Exercise in the fresh air is essential to a trim figure and to good looks," she declares, "but so many women here have gotten into a lazy habit of never walking anywhere." Walking is Miss Carroll's favorite exercise and form of relaxation—she says she gets all her best ideas then. As for her figure: she's 5 feet 5 inches and weighs 118 neat pounds.

Overweight Mentally, Too

She strenuously objects to overweight, chiefly because of its effect on a person's thinking. "One gets overweight mentally too," she insists. "A sort of hopeless, what's-the-use attitude sets in with too much weight. The one thing women should do for their health and their men folks is to keep within the weight bounds."

Miss Carroll also takes a firm—and refreshing—stand on glamour. "Glamour is just being natural and unselfish," she maintains. "I really prefer the word charm to glamour. A woman who is charming thinks of other people."

That's Madeleine Carroll's destruction of charm—and it perfectly describes Madeleine Carroll. We're glad she's back in pictures.

Mothers Share Experiences In Discussions

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

There are many good study groups interested in the fast changing complexion of good child care and rearing, who can tap the existing supply of authoritative speakers and make their meetings interesting and provocative.

But, this should not discourage the groups who have no such sources to draw upon and who must depend upon themselves for inspiration and information.

To my way of thinking the most profitable way to study children is for each and every member of such a group to do some work on each subject under discussion. We get into the habit of sitting back and letting people put thoughts into our head. Sometimes they stick, but quite as often we argue with the speaker mentally and go away smug in our prejudices

In any group of women with children each has had personal experiences which should be helpful to others. In such groups, without authoritative leadership, a subject may be assigned to the whole group. Everyone may bring everything she can find to tell about obedience, or punishment, or feeding problems or sex education and on and on. At the meeting each person may speak on what has happened to her or what she has "discovered" and let the others criticize, refute or agree, as the case may be. Out of the whole discussion, there will emerge some conclusions which will be acceptable to all of them. If it is just one idea and it sticks, the afternoon has been beneficial.

It makes little difference with which subject such groups decide t ostart. In the end they will converge on the topics of interest to everyone. It is better to spend a whole winter on obedience, or on sex education and read, discuss, tell personal experiences and argue, than to try to cover a wide range of topics and end up with none of them understood or digested.

The women's magazines, the libraries, the Government, the newspapers, all offer an assortment of reading material, which will give any group of mothers a body of information upon which they can build. Just get that study group together, with or without speakers. To talk frankly about children in a group will stir up thinking and add to each mother's workable knowledge.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

'So, You're Danny's Brother'

When the younger child in the family goes to school for the first time, he may be met with, "Oh, you're one of the Jones children. I hope you'll do as good work as Mary did," or even "Jimmy Brown, eh? Well, young man, you'd better understand at once that I'm going to expect you to behave better than your brother."

Teachers for the most part realize that such an approach isn't fair to the child nor likely to work very well. We in the schools attempt to avoid such comparisons—good or bad. Each youngster needs to be understood and accepted for himself, not in relation to a brother or sister. Trying to live up to already-set standards or live down an older brother's or sister's reputation should not be demanded from any youngster.

If this happens to your child, try to help the teacher see that he is a different individual, and not just one of the peas in a pod.

FESTIVE HOLIDAY FROCKS THIS WEEK

Here come the holidays—Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's— and it's time to give thought to your party apparel. "Fashion Telling by Spadea" lends you a hand this Sunday with a sparkling display of inexpensive festive frocks. You'll learn about color, cut and cloth in this season's outstanding dress-up clothing.

Jean Spadea, famous fashion artist, illustrates five fetching holiday designs she has seen at leading dress houses. Fashion Editor Peggy Preston supplies the story.

Don't miss it Sunday in Section IV.

MRS. DOROTHY LEE

Portland's New Mayor Visiting Here

last year when the Oregonian's "Front Door Poll" broke down the votes into sexes, statistics indicated that 68 per cent of the Portland women and 64 per cent of the men were casting ballots for her.

Like Senator-elect Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, Mrs. Lee never mentions her opponent's name in a campaign speech. She has followed that practice since she began stumping. At present she is a member of the city commissioners, specializing in public utilities.

"A public figure becomes sexless," she says. "As a person stays in public life she becomes a symbol of issues and the man versus woman angle fades."

MAYOR-TO-BE DOROTHY LEE subconsciously became interested in politics at the age of 12 or 13 when she lived in the District of Columbia during the Wilson Administration. Her father, a regular naval officer, Frank E. McCullough, was Assistant Surgeon General during that time. Dorothy attended the Colonial School for Girls on Connecticut ave. But instead of doing her nightly homework, she slipped out of the house, took the Lincoln Park streetcar and slipped into the congressional galleries to listen to the debates on women's suffrage, then resounding in both Houses on Capitol Hill.

Born April 1, 1901, in Oakland, Calif., she was schooled in California, Rhode Island, and other sections of the country. However, she returned to her father's alma mater, the University of California, to get her A.B. and law degrees. It was there she met her husband, "Scottie." When he was sent to Portland by the Standard Oil Co. of California, she took down her attorney's shingle in California and two years later added Mrs. to her name. In Portland she again started her general law practice."

And why did Mr. Lee permit his wife to have a career of her own? "Well, I never liked brainless women," he said. "Only men with inferiority complexes resent their spouses contributing their talents to society in the fields for which they are best fitted.

The Lees have two adopted children—David, 12, and Priscilla, age 11.

Listening to good music is Mrs. Lee's hobby. Outside of concerts she has time for little else except her close-knit family. "I have to budget my time, and an extra five minutes with my family is a precious gain," she declares.

Club Hears Talk on Russia

Miss Helen Kirckpatrick, Washington correspondent of the New York Post, discussed Russia as she had seen it at a luncheon meeting of the Smith College Club of Washington at the Parrot Restaurant yesterday.

It was the Russians' hope that all of Europe would fall into their hands after the war, Miss Kirckpatrick said. The reason the Russians are opposed to the Marshall Plan is that it is gradually raising the standards of living in western Europe in comparison with the much lower standards in eastern Europe, she declared.

It is the Russian, not communistic, characteristics of Soviet policy which we find difficult to cope with today, Miss Kirckpatrick said. She explained that expansionist policies and suspicion of the West was found even under the Czarist regime.

The greatest enemy of communism, she told club members, was socialism, according to the Russians, since they feel that capitalism will eventually kill itself by a series of depressions and inflations.

Would you give your readers the benefit of your findings on various fillings in pillows. I am interested in purchasing some sleeping pillows and prefer soft ones, but do not know what filling will give me what I want.
M. M. C.

Feather fillings for pillows, listed in the order of their cost with the least expensive first, are: chicken, duck, goose feathers and goose down, and all down. The all-down-filled pillows are the softest, but for general durability and buoyancy, many people prefer a pillow filled with both goose feathers and down. The white goose feathers and down are considered to be of a higher quality than those from the gray goose. Because time and use removes the natural oils from feathers, causing them to become dry and brittle, 10 years is considered the average life of a feather pillow.

For allergy patients, there are kapok and pillows filled with glass fiber which makes a very firm pillow. The newest pillow filling on the market is a foam rubber which doesn't absorb odors, is soft and retains its buoyancy for many years. It can be used by those with allergies also. The foam rubber pillows sell for about the same as a fine feather-and-down pillow and, because of their long life, are a good investment.

I have devised a stuffed toy and would like to place it on the market. Any information you could give one concerning the procedure I should follow would be appreciated. Could it be registered or is it patentable? Should I begin making them in large lots in preparation for Christmas. It is unusual.
J. A. M.

It seems to me that you could do one of three things with your toy idea:

1. Visit a patent attorney for his advice as to protecting the idea by patent.
2. Make the toy yourself and sell it on commission basis through interested gift shops.
3. Sell the idea to a manufacturer of toys who would possibly buy it outright, taking care of the patents, etc., himself.

If you wish to make the toy and sell it through gift shops, there are shops on 14th st. in Washington, reached by calling Tuckerman 0220, and on 39th st., reached by calling Emerson 1484, which have signified an interest in seeing the toy. The manager of the shop at the Tuckerman phone has also said she would be able to give you addresses of firms manufacturing such items if you wished to try to sell it to such a firm.

This gala Halloween cake—with its chocolate and orange icing and pumpkin face in the center—can be bought ready-made at a local chain store by last-minute party planners

I want to make some muslin curtains with hand-tied fringe for my "new" old house. Can you tell me where in or around Washington I can buy the fringe by the yard? I. W. B.

I have not been able to find a firm which sells hand-tied fringe, but the drapery departments of most large department stores sell the machine-made ball-and-moss type of fringe by the yard. This would be suitable for use on draperies, if you could use a machine-made fringe. Also, several of the shops listed under "Dressmakers Supplies" in the yellow pages of the telephone book sell the machine-made fringe by the yard.

and NOBODY but NOBODY beats BARON and MELTZ TOY PRICES!

We were down-to-earth on toy prices last year, when everything was sky-high.

This year we're even "down-to-earther", when practically everything is even higher.

You'll see more toys here, in greater variety, and at lower prices, than you've seen since the good old days when a dollar really bought a dollar's worth. And remember—this isn't after Christmas, when everybody's bought and given his Christmas toys. It's right now—before Christmas—in time to give you plenty of breathing space to shop and pick exactly what you want from brilliant, brand new stock . . . in time to lay away your toys with a small deposit—and pay the balance comfortably between now and Christmas.

If toys are on your Christmas list, come on in to Baron & Meltz and get an eyeful of heaven for kids.

The tiny price-tags are kid stuff, too.

never have known how to act or what to say when I see these ingrate guests again.

How does a woman act in such circumstances? Is one to persevere in "being a friend" at the expense of being played for a fool, or at least being made to feel like one? Please advise.

S. C.

Woman Is Barking Up Wrong Tree

DEAR S. C.: Well, now, if you are talking of Washington men, or rather of Washington's "extra men," you are barking up the wrong tree in expecting them to register modest responsive appreciation of lonely Mrs. Newbody's hospitality; or so I gather from reading reports on the subject for 15 years.

The consensus opinion of those "in the know," who care to tell, is that Washington's bonafide or ersatz bachelors, whether in school, in trade, international diplomacy or Government service (just so long as they've reached long-pants age), have found themselves so much in demand as social props in the last quarter-century, that fine behavior in acknowledging hospitality is an all-but-lost art to them.

Critical observers, who bother to stalk the current species and report its habits for whatever reasons, relate that quality-manners and feelings to match seem to figure as rarely in its gulp-and-gallop social pattern (to purloin a phrase of David Cohn's), as dress suits figure in Zulu festivities.

Washington Beaux Too Much Pursued

A DECADE ago I was told by a mother, wise, humorous wife of a Government bigwig from the Middle West, that after some years in Washington, observing the spoiling effects of the social climate on the young male ego, she resolved to keep her teen-age sons at a far distance from the city until they were married and safely in charge of a girl with sense and spirit.

Thus it would appear that you don't need to feel that your talents for friendship have withered away, just because you can't catch a beau by "feeding the brute" in a town where brokenfield running from feminine pursuit has been bachelor exercise for many years.

For advice, when you meet negligent fellows who've failed to thank you nicely for dinner hospitality, behave as you please, but don't shrink in shamed chagrin, as if seeing a man who'd pushed you in the face for wanton presumption. Be amiably vague, as if you scarcely remember the name; or cordially kind, if the spirit moves. The circumstances of the encounter and your spontaneous reaction to the man's behavior of the moment should be your guide.

M. H.

On the Town

THE NEW Casino Royal show has an act the likes of which we haven't seen in many years. They're Christian and Dorea, and usually during the late show they go into an Apache routine from the dives of Place Pigalle.

Now the last time we saw a genuine Apache act was in a movie in the early thirties. The violent dance is our only clear recollection of the picture. Perhaps that's because at the end of the number the man picked up his girl friend and heaved her through a window without the courtesy of opening the window first.

Christian and Dorea look very Apache-ish in their costumes, with the turtleneck sweaters and Dorea's slit skirt. They carry it to the point where Dorea tries to knife her boy friend at the end of the act. Perhaps she saw the same picture we did and wanted to avoid the window sequence. The act is fun to watch if you like your ballet on the rough side.

Ross and Ross (relatives no doubt) are a novelty act in that they use punching bags for props. They punch their bags to rhythm, and the capper is when the male Ross manages to keep five punching bags moving at the same time. At one point in the act they impress the audience with the difficulty of keeping even one bag moving by bringing a couple of not too enthusiastic males onto the stage for a try at punching. We were perfectly willing to accept the fact without watching a couple of fellows become slightly embarrassed at their ineptness.

Connie Haines is playing to gratifying crowds at the Kavakos. As in every election year, things are a little on the slow side around town, and when a night club act is able to lure the would-be voters away from their loudspeakers, it's little short of a wonder. But then Connie has always been a good drawing card, a fact that keeps a smile on the face of Bill Kavakos.

We had a little chat with Florian ZaBach, who's at the Mayflower with his orchestra. Seems that the night of the champagne and orchids dance at the Mayflower, Arthur Godfrey did a little stint during the show. Afterward Arthur invited Florian to guest it on his Chesterfield show in New York.

Florian arrived at the Godfrey studio for rehearsal, opened his violin case and found that he didn't have a bow for his fiddle (it's almost sacrilegious to call an $8000 violin a fiddle). After kicking himself around for a few minutes Florian settled down and began to think about his predicament. He came up with the brainstorm of playing the "Jazz Pizzicato," a number that requires one fiddle, one fiddle player, a bunch of nimble fingers but no bow. He played it over the network and it went off very well.

If you have noticed Florian's particularly erect stature lately, blame it on a stiff neck. It's just the extra fiddle bow he's carring strapped to his back for a spare.

Here's a chance to combine a good time and do someone some good. Tomorrow night after the Navy-Notre Dame game at Baltimore the Washington, Maryland and Virginia Clubs of Notre Dame are sponsoring a dance at Uline Arena. The proceeds will go to a relief fund which buys books, clothing and food for students in European countries. The music will be by Larry Clinton and his "New Look Music," which undoubtedly means that the numbers are longer. The dance will be an open affair, and you can get tickets at all the nearby colleges and at the door.

One on the Aisle—

Rita's Carmen Pure Hollywood

By Richard L. Coe

"THE LOVES OF CARMEN," at the Warner, is fascinating, though not, to this observer at least, fascinating in quite the way Columbia Pictures may prescribe.

This Rita Hayworth vehicle is intriguing because it epitomizes the Hollywood movie. Physically, it probably is as perfect as Rita's beguiling body. Its soundtrack is the babblings of a childish, puritanical chatterbox. It achieves that curious ability of abiding by movieland's code while at the same time pointedly letting one imagine what one will about the most seemingly innocent matters. And it stems from the success of a French film which gave someone the idea that the same story, Technicolored and box-office buttressed, would be a wow.

Its success, no doubt, will be tremendous. Rita as Carmen should set tongues clucking from coast to coast. As an idea for a movie, it's a gold mine, especially with Rita's blushing denials these days that she's swooning over the Aga Khan's heir, Aly.

The film, I hasten to inform you, is not adapted from the Halevy script of Bizet's opera. As the French version starring Viviane Romance did, this goes back to the considerably coarser original of Prosper Merimee. In outline, the adaptation is reasonably faithful to Merimee, though the frame of the story (Don Jose in prison telling his story to a traveler) is ignored, if only to allow Carmen and Don Jose to die together, draped picturesquely over one another on a massive staircase.

It is this picturesque quality—and no doubt rightly so, for this is a movie—that gives "The Loves of Carmen" its prime attraction. Seldom do Mme. Kalmus' cameras capture a more passionate red. Even that smart new fruit shop on F st. couldn't imagine such perfect oranges as the ones Carmen steals in her first scene. Rita's teeth were never more pearly, Glenn Ford's hairline was never so exact. Victor Jory's swarthy evil was never blacker, no sunset ever promised a more gorgeous night. The color, in short, has been used with both brilliant and subtle effect. Its rich, vivid hues say things which in words would set the Johnston office on its well-mannered head.

And while the Merimee story is certainly there, it's told with a paucity of words that is downright funny. You hear Jose, who presumably has been living with Carmen for quite a spell after she's upset his promising army career, work himself into a snit when Carmen's husband gets out of jail. "It's driving me crazy," he complains, "knowing you're married to another man."

At another point, poor Jose, still unnerved by this suggestion of commandment-breaking, is pitching woo on a rock with Carmen, glad to be out of sight of her dirty-looking husband and their thieving associates. "I'm hungry," moans he, "for the sight of simple, gentle people."

What Else Do You Expect?

Jose's ideas, if not his words, are understandable in view of his deteriorating character. But the philosophical outpourings you get from one of the gypsy brigands, in big, four-syllable words, are something, too—good, clean, hifalutin' verbiage.

Now, I admit you, the way things are, you wouldn't expect to hear Glenn Ford or any other Hollywood actor say anything else. It is, in fact, a triumph of script-writing, this overlaying of twentieth-century American morality into a story of coarse passions in thieving gypsies of nineteenth-century Spain.

Rita's Carmen, considering the strictures placed on her vocabulary and general deportment, is perfectly effective and logical. She and the script writers make it clear that Carmen is a thoroughly nonmoral gal, a vital, animal creature.

MAURICE EVANS will be in town Tuesday to speak at a luncheon of the Women's National Press Club . . . This theater luncheon of the writin' gals is virtually an annual custom which this year might have gone on the rocks had not the actor-manager offered to come over from Baltimore, where, beginning Monday night at Ford's, he'll be playing a one-week stand in his revival of Shaw's "Man and Superman" . . . As I've said countless times in the past and intend remarking at every opportunity until the matter is decently cleared up, this is one heck of a World Capital where the living great of the theater cannot appear simply because they feel they should be reaching everybody and not just the lucky folks who happened to be born white . . . Tuesday's luncheon will be in the Press Club Auditorium at 12:30.

"THE LOVES OF CARMEN," Columbia Pictures release produced and directed by Charles Vidor. Screen play by Helen Deutsch from the story "Carmen" by Prosper Merimee. Flamenco music by Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco. Photographed in Technicolor by William Snyder. At the Warner.

Dupont Offers 85 Kid Actors But No Patter of Tiny Feet

When you know that a film titled "Portrait of Innocence" employs some 85 child actors, as does this new arrival at the Dupont, the expectations might well be that a sweet dish is in store. Not so.

For this latest of a season filled with overseas imports is an ironic little story of a wise set of Parisian youngsters, knowing enough to evade society's laws but at the same time following the most primitive of discoveries—that in unity there is strength.

The film begins a trifle slowly for complete enjoyment, but establishes the fact that one luckless lad must inspire some action to keep him from reform school. He had the misfortune to boot a soccer ball through a school's stained glass window.

His pals rally round him to raise 1800 francs with which to buy a new window. This fund-raising inspires a barrel of ideas, simplest of which is the breaking of piggy banks, though that easy matter leads to a general war on china. Another is the plan to evolve a private detective service, complete with beards and sporty clothes.

Most effective of the schemes, though, is a trick that overseas GI's will well remember from Europe and Africa. This consists of the profitable shoeshine venture, a deal sponsored concurrently with the business of installing a sure-fire way of seeing to it that everyone passing within 500 yards needs a shoeshine badly.

Yes, these youngsters are anything but innocents and their inventive guile will recall Richard Hughes' "A High Wind in Jamaica." The adult roles are played in easy, natural style, but it's the youngsters who do most of the work, led by Jean-Pierre Geffroy, Bussieres and Jean Buquet.

Needless to add, the kids get their glass window money, the boy with the disastrous kick stays out of reform school and Director Louis Daquin has his hands full.

"PORTRAIT OF INNOCENCE," a Pathe Film of Siritzky International Pictures release, directed by Louis Daquin, original screenplay by Nilsro and Gaston Modot. At the Dupont.

Ford Holdings Listed

Detroit, Oct. 28 (U.P.).—The first inventory report filed by the widow of the late Henry Ford, who was one of the world's richest men, today set the value of his personal estate at $5,159,104.07, exclusive of stock in the Ford Motor Co.

In a previous inventory not made by the widow, announced April 7, 1947, the Ford estate was valued at $28,397,143.57, exclusive of A and B stocks in the Ford company and of real and physical property outside of Michigan.

Ford's personal estate includes 286,099 shares of Class A stock and 95,321 shares of Class B stock.

No exact valuation has been set on the stock, but taxes have been paid at an arbitrarily fixed evaluation of $100 per share. If $100 were the true valuation of the stock, Ford's estate would be worth $43,301,104.

Ford, upon his death April 7, 1947, willed most of his personal belongings to his wife, Mrs. Clara B. Ford, who was named executrix in his will. He left control of the vast Ford Motor Co. to his family, headed by Henry Ford 2d., a grandson.

"Do Nothing" Officials Deny Crippled Girl's Plea For Justice

Dorothy Kilmer was minding her own business when a policeman's bullet ripped into her spine and crippled her for life.

It was an accident. The cop was toying with his pistol when it suddenly went off—and almost cost Dorothy her life.

After the doctors pulled her through, they gave her the bad news. Instead of looking forward to her impending marriage, Dorothy was faced with the prospect of spending the rest of her life in a wheelchair.

DOROTHY

It was suggested to Police Chief Barrett that, inasmuch as a policeman had been responsible for this injury to an innocent victim, the District ought to try to help her—perhaps by asking Congress for an appropriation.

But Major Barrett has recommended that nothing be done for the girl, because such action "might set a precedent," and the District Commissioners have readily agreed that it would be best to do nothing.

Dorothy is one of our girls; the cop who crippled her was one of our policemen.

If our officials refuse to face our town's responsibilities, we're going to have to do the job FOR them, as private citizens.

At the request of Dorothy's mother, I asked two of Washington's outstanding medical experts in this field to examine the girl.

Their report agrees completely with that of the physician who is now attending her. With the proper course of treatments, Dorothy can be "rehabilitated" to the extent that she would no longer be confined to her wheelchair.

She'll never again walk as you and I do. But through the miracle of modern medical techniques, she would be able to get about with the aid of special braces, and regain a useful place in our community.

The doctors estimate that it would take $10,000 to see Dorothy through this type of therapy. But the Kilmer family has no money—and our officials refuse to help.

So there's just one solution left. We simply cannot permit this girl to be shoved aside and forgotten.

We've got to find 10,000 District Liners with hearts . . . 10,000 Washingtonians who refuse to admit that our town will be caught to "do nothing" for its own.

It takes one dollar from each of us to give Dorothy Kilmer a chance to rehabilitate herself—and to give a resounding vote of "no confidence" to our Police Chief and District Commissioners.

Don't put it off until later; please—do it now. Put a dollar in an envelope, and send it to Dorothy Kilmer, care of the Washington Sanitarium, Takoma Park, Md.

Send it off NOW—and let's regain our community self-respect.

JUST LISTEN TO THE DIN AS "MAX" REPLACES "MIN"

E. Everett Ashley of 2604 Lee blvd., Arlington, Va., forwards the most interesting advertisement of the season, clipped from the Sunday edition of one of our afternoon contemporaries.

Most of the ad is devoted to a recitation of the virtues of a local firm which makes expert repairs to kitchens, bathrooms, porches, attics, etc. Then we're told:

". . . but best of all, all work is done with a maximum of annoyance to the occupants of the home."

District Liner Ashley's sense of humor wouldn't let him rest until he had dispatched a letter to the advertiser. He said:

"Before you make any more rash claims in your ads, better make sure of your ground. We are now in the midst of a renovation job at our house, and I'm sure the workmen we have employed can't be topped for 'annoyance to occupants'."

This wonderful definition of "Installment Plan" has been knocking around in my head for several days, and I can't remember where I heard it. It goes:

GEN. LUCIUS CLAY can have a top post with the A. & P. Co. as soon as he retires from the Army . . . When Ambassador James C. Dunn visited the set of "Rapture," the movie being filmed in Rome, Producer David Pelham invited him to appear in one of the scenes. "No, thank you," said Ambassador Dunn. "One James Dunn in the movies is enough."

Harold Young, who was No. 1 aide to Henry Wallace in Washington, returned to his native Texas after Wallace's Government career ended. Young then decided to open a law office in New York. Then he met former Mayor Maury Maverick of San Antonio, who had been to California and practiced law there. Maverick told him how unhappy he'd been away from Texas, and persuaded Young to accompany him on an auto tour of Texas. When their car reached Odessa, Tex., and they decided that this boom-town was bound to grow, Young stepped out of the car and opened his law office there.

Drew Pearson, now on a tour of the West, had his home rewired with a new set of burglar alarms before he left . . . The President's new ghost-writing team is composed of Judge Sam Rosenman, Jonathan Daniels and Columnist Jay Franklin.

Merriman Smith, the United Press correspondent and author of "The President is Many Men," was on the President's campaign train, where Columnist George Dixon and an Associated Press correspondent sat in his compartment. A member of the President's staff saw Dixon, they exchanged words and started to square off . . . "Just a moment," Smith interrupted, "before you two make a move, I have one request to make—will the Associated Press man please leave the room?"

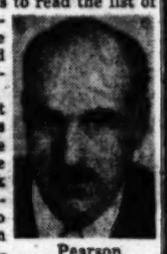
The Merry-Go-Round

Who Donates To Campaigns In the West

By Drew Pearson

Los Angeles.—En route through the West all you have to do to get a picture of who's backing who in this campaign is to read the list of campaign contributors to the Republican and Democratic parties.



Pearson

This is not quite as easy as it seems since you have to be careful to look up the contributors not only to the Republican National Committee, but to the GOP Senate and Congressional Committees and to a host of State GOP committees. These were organized to diversify campaign contributions and get around the Hatch Act.

On the Democratic side, the really big money is coming from labor. And it, in turn, to get around the Taft-Hartley Act, is spending the money through its own separately organized committees.

Also significant is the fact that the biggest GOP contributors—the duPonts of Delaware, the Pews of Pennsylvania, and the New York financial set—are pouring their money not into Dewey's campaign, but into the Senatorial races. They regard Dewey as good as elected.

Careful scrutiny of the big money gifts is illuminating. Take one family alone—the duPonts. The Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee is headed by a duPont henchman, former Senator John Townsend of Delaware. His job is to win GOP Senate elections in Tennessee, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Minnesota, Wyoming and Montana.

To help him, the duPont family poured in the following amounts of money during June, July and August: Lammot duPont, $2000; Irenee duPont, jr., $2000; Irenee duPont, sr., $2000; I. Sophie duPont May, $2000; Octavia M. duPont Bredin, $1000; Mariana M. duPont, $2000; Lucile duPont Flint, $2000; R. R. R. Carpenter (a duPont in-law), $2000; Pierre S. duPont 3d, $2000.

Under the Hatch Act no one man can contribute more than $5000. However, by splitting contributions between members of a family or between different committees of the same political party, the Hatch Act is held not to be violated.

For instance, a few days before Lammot duPont gave $2000 to the GOP Senatorial Committee on June 18 he gave $2000 to the GOP National Committee. This was on June 9. Also, on June 11, he gave $1000 to the Republican Congressional Committee.

Also, while Irenee duPont, jr., and his father and I. Sophie duPont May were giving $2000 each to the GOP Senatorial Committee on July 30, they also gave $2000 each to the Republican National Committee on July 9. Again, on July 14, the same three duPonts gave $1000 to the GOP Congressional Committee.

And on July 30 Octavia duPont Bredin, Mariana duPont Silliman and Lucille duPont Flint each gave $1000 to the GOP Congressional Committee, while on August 2 Pierre S. duPont 3d gave $1000 to the same committee. And again on August 18 Pierre 3d gave $2000 to the GOP National Committee.

It's these gifts to the "side" committees which really tell the story of where the campaign money comes from.

Note—Three significant contributions appearing on the GOP National Committee list are for $1000 each from Albert B. Wells, George B. Wells and Mrs. George Wells of Southbridge, Mass. The Wells family own the American Optical Co. of Southbridge, which was prosecuted under the antitrust laws by the Justice Department under a Democratic administration.

When Pat Hurley, former Ambassador to China, travels through New Mexico campaigning for the Senate, he really travels in style. The other day Pa Howell, owner of the Southern Pacific Hotel in Carrizozo, N. Mex., was a little surprised to receive a wire from Hurley reserving 10 rooms for a three-day stay.

The telegram stated that he and Mrs. Hurley would need four rooms; their secretaries, chauffeurs and campaign manager six more.

However, when the Hurley political caravan arrived in Carrizozo, the former Ambassador did not stay at the Southern Pacific Hotel. His party stayed at Petty's Court on the edge of town.

Pa Howell was a bit surprised at this and phoned Hurley. "I've held these rooms for you," he told the would-be Senator. "In fact, I've kicked out some people to have them ready."

"You are entirely mistaken," boomed Hurley. "At no time did I ever ask you to reserve any rooms for me."

That ended that—except for one thing. When Hurley held his big campaign rally in Carrizozo, and most of the town's 500 people had gathered to hear him, Pa Howell got up and addressed the crowd. His speech was brief and to the point.

He merely read Hurley's telegram to him reserving the hotel rooms, his reply to Hurley, and a second Hurley telegram clinching the reservation.

"If a man can't keep his own hotel reservations straight," Pa Howell told the crowd of New Mexicans, "I don't see how he can keep straight the problems of New Mexico in the Senate."
